ACTION TAKEN TO STOP GRAIN PRICE DECLINE

Stabilization Corporation Reenters Wheat Mart, Legge Announces.

OPERATIONS BEGUN IN CHICAGO, BELIEF

SEES MILNOR BEFORE MAKING STATEMENT

60,000,000 Bushels Bought Last Year Under Federal Plan.

Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, said in a statement last night that "demoralization in world grain markets has made it necessary for the Grain Stabilization Corporation to again enter the wheat market in order to stop panicky selling and to prevent further unwarranted declines in domestic prices."

"Comparatively," the statement added, "wheat is lower in price than other agricultural commodities. The price of flour fully reflects the price of wheat, which, no doubt is increasing the per capita consumption. While the visible supply of wheat is large, there is no congestion in any of the terminal markets.

Receipts at primary markets are unusually light, which suggests the extent to which farm stocks are being used for feeding purposes. Further price declines would be in sympathy with foreign markets and not justified by domestic conditions."

Confers With Milnor.

Legge did not say where the Grain Stabilization Corporation had entered the market. It was reported Saturday at Chicago, however, that Farm Board agencies had disposed of an immense amount of wheat to Italy or some other European country.

The announcement by Chairman Legge followed a conference yesterday with George S. Milner, general manager of the corporation, who expected to remain in Washington to attend the meeting of the coarse grain advisory committee today.

It was learned from authoritative sources that the corporation had entered the Chicago market and that it had been operating on a modest scale for some time.

Saturday, although the market collapsed at Winnipeg, the Chicago market largely held firm, with fluctuations in December wheat confined to within ¼ cents a bushel.

Farm Board's Opinion.

Purchases by the Grain Stabilization Corporation in its operations a year ago totaled somewhat more than 60,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Of this amount, about 10,000 bushels, as estimated by Chairman Legge, consisted of December futures. A week ago Mr. Milner notified the trade that the corporation contemplated taking delivery on the contracts.

The Farm Board has felt that its operations last year, from a relative point of view, kept the prices from going lower, and that a generally higher level was maintained until other factors, despite the operations, drove the market down again.

Stoned by Playmates, Boy, 13, Dies of Hurts

Northfork, W. Va., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Bruised and battered by stones hurled by playmates, Norman Williams, 13, struggled home to his father, but died last night as the father bore him in his arms up the steps of a hospital.

Tonight five other boys, ranging in age from 8 to 15 years, were held in Northfork Jail awaiting a hearing before a justice of the peace. All six, they said, were returning home from a movie. Norman lagged behind. As he caught up with his companions a stone was thrown and then another. Soon it was a battle, five against one. It ended when Norman dropped to the ground, and the other five fled to their homes.

Japanese Indict Youth Who Wounded Premire

Tokyo (Monday), Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Tomeo Sagoya, the youth who wounded Premier Hamaguchi last Friday in an attempted assassination, was formally indicted on a charge of attempted murder today. The indictment followed prolonged examination.

The premier appeared on the road to recovery today. Although physicians cautiously refrained from pronouncing the 60-year-old "warrior of peace" definitely out of danger, bulletins were optimistic.

Flier Escapes in Crash.

St. Louis, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—James Hamlip, well-known flier, escaped serious injury today when the engine of his speed plane cut out on a take-off at Lambert-St. Louis Field. The plane crashed into a ditch and was demolished.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The popular diversion exhibited in the sport world of killing the umpire and taking out the pitcher, when transferred to the political world becomes a demand for the resignation of the party chairman.

Some time ago one of these dispatches pointed out that chairmen are necessary under our system of party government. They are usually entitled to gratitude and respect.

Senator Fess was drafted at a difficult time. He is an honest and conscientious man of high character with a record for disinterested public service. If his party did not win the last national election no other party won a majority in Congress. As chairman and senator he is entitled to respectful consideration. The same is due to others. There are some in his party who disagree with him. That would be true of any one. Chairman Raskob has some in his party who disagree with him. They have suggested his retirement.

Probably both Senator Fess and Mr. Raskob would be delighted to be relieved of their office. Neither one is likely to be driven out by attacks. With divergent opinion on so many subjects the sane procedure for both parties is to make the most of a chairman of ability and character.

Crash on Crossing Kills 9 in Auto

Man, 4 Women, 4 Children Lose Lives in Disaster Near DeWitt, Va.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Nine persons were killed at Butterworth Crossing, near DeWitt, Va., tonight when their automobile was struck by a Seaboard Airline passenger train.

They were J. C. Flippen, white, of Clarksville, Va., and eight Negroes—four women and four children.

YEGGMEN LOOT SAFE IN SHOP AT HERNDON

ENTER 2D STRONG BOX

Ignoring an opportunity to steal several thousand dollars' worth of narcotics and several hundred dollars' worth of liquor, thieves blew open a safe in the Herndon Drug Store, in Herndon, Va., early yesterday morning and made off with $200 in cash, approximately $500 worth of jewelry and a large quantity of nonnegotiable securities. The yeggmen overlooked several hundred dollars in the cash register, representing the proceeds of Staurday's business.

The narcotics and liquor were in the same safe in which the jewelry was being held in safekeeping for E. L. Detwiler, of Herndon. This safe was already open. The safe containing the money was blown open with nitroglycerin after the combination had been knocked off.

There were two explosions. E. A. Stannard, who lives next to the drug store, said that he heard them about 3:30 o'clock. He telephoned Dr. Ralph V. Chamblin, proprietor of the drug store, and then got his shot gun. But Stannard says he could not find any shells for the gun. So he stayed at home. He heard the automobile of the safe crackers drive off in a northwesterly direction, he said.

Dr. Chamblin, arriving at his store, found both doors of one safe blown off and debris scattered over the counters and shelves.

Police are handicapped in their search for the thieves through lack of descriptions. Identification of the stolen jewelry or possible finger prints will represent the principal clew.

EMPLOYE OF STORE DIES FIGHTING FIRE

Firemen Find Man Overcome by Smoke in Basement of Candy Shop.

BURNER STARTS BLAZE

Overcome by smoke early yesterday morning while attempting to extinguish a blaze about an oil burner in the basement of the Martha Washington Candy Shop, 507 Twelfth street northwest, Walter Duke Dively, 46 years old, an employe of the store, was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital, where he was taken by the Fire Rescue Squad.

At the request of Ellis Sheets, Dively's uncle and owner of the establishment, Dively had remained late in the building and was occupying a room on the second floor. Aroused about 3:30 o'clock in the morning by a neighbor, who smelled smoke, Dively investigated and found a small oil burner on fire in the basement. After calling the Fire Department, he attempted to extinguish the flames with an automatic fire extinguisher.

Firemen later found him in an unconscious condition on the floor of the smoke-filled basement. He was removed to the street and given first aid, later being taken to Emergency Hospital.

Dively, who served as manager of several branch stores of the candy concern, lived with his wife, Laura, at 5509 Ninth street northwest. He is also survived by his father, Albert Dively, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and one daughter, Bernice, 15 years old.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow from the home of his uncle, 509 Twelfth street northwest. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Policeman Falls Dead After Halting Runaway

New York, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—After chasing a runaway horse for several miles through crowded traffic and capturing the animal by throwing his arms around its neck, Patrolman William T. Vorden, 35, fell dead of a heart attack last night at the horse's feet.

A police mount called Swede, owned by the department only five months, was being ridden by Patrolman Francis J. Murray. The horse slipped in the mud at 155th street and Eighth avenue, throwing its rider. Before Murray could remount the horse scampered away. Murray commandeered a taxicab and started in pursuit. The capture and Vorden's death followed.

THREE KILLED AS FIRE RAZES PACKING PLANT

Man, His Wife and Child Trapped in Winchester Apple Building.

ANOTHER SERIOUSLY AFFECTED BY SMOKE

Eight Others Rescued by Firemen From Second Floor of Place.

MOTHER IS FOUND WITH BABE IN ARMS

$40,000 Damage to Property With $5,000 Loss to Fruit Estimated.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 16. — Three persons lost their lives by suffocation early today in a fire which wiped out the apple packing plant of Glaize & Hurst here, and a fourth was in a hospital critically ill.

The dead are Roy Stewart, 24; his wife, Lillian, 23, and son, Voyne, 3. Smith White, a relative, has a chance to recover. Stewart died shortly after being taken to a hospital. His wife and child died while being taken there in an ambulance.

Stewart was a son of Albert Stewart, Wardensville, W. Va., and his wife a daughter of H. A. Sirbaugh, Gold Stream, W. Va.

Firemen Rescue Eight.

Smith White's wife and four children were rescued by firemen, who also saved Henry Luttrell, wife and child. All were occupants of second floor apartments of the two-story frame building. The men were employed at the plant.

The fire started at the extreme eastern end of a long connecting one-story building and had gained great headway before being discovered. Firemen checked the flames before they reached the main building, but it was filled with smoke of burning pine, and physicians expressed the opinion the Stewarts were really dying from suffocation when they were discovered.

Went to Family's Aid.

Those who escaped said Stewart had run out onto an upper porch and then back to rescue his wife and child, only to fall unconscious. Mrs. Stewart had her son clasped in her arms, slumped near a window, when firemen broke through and stumbled over them in the darkness. Doctors and nurses responded to emergency calls and treated the White and Luttrell families in nearby houses, while Smith White was removed to a hospital.

As the flames spread quickly in the one-story building, undermining the frame work, a heavy tin roof collapsed, scattering fire and sparks in all directions and menacing other frame buildings in the neighborhood. The property and equipment loss was estimated at $40,000, partly insured.

R. O. Fitch, who leased the plant from the owners, also lost seven carloads of barreled apples ready for shipment, valued at $5,000, and as many more in bulk. The fire was first seen near the platform connecting with Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks.

HOMAGE GIVEN JAILED PANDIT AS INDIA RIOTS

Disorders Are Reported as "Jawarhalal Day" Is Celebrated.

50 PERSONS UNDER ARREST AT SURAT

Crowds Gather at Bombay and Police Seize Trio of Speakers.

Bombay, India, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Serious disorders were reported from Karachi and Surat today, with lesser trouble occurring in Bombay itself, during the celebration of "Jawarhalal day," honoring the imprisoned Pandit Jawarhalal Nehru.

Several Europeans were injured at Karachi when stones and dust were thrown by Indian Congress adherents at the occupants of motor cars returning from the opening of the new Lloyd quay and Lloyd gate.

One of the injured was the wife of an assistant commissioner, who was struck over the eye.

Taxi Starts Another Riot.

More trouble occurred at dusk. By that time nearly all the cars had departed, but a taxicab knocked down three women in the middle of a road and this incensed the crowd, which stormed the taxi, filled it with stones and beat the driver.

The president of the municipality suffered a leg injury while investigating the disturbances and two policemen also were hurt.

Fifty persons were arrested in Surat following upon attempts in various parts of the city to defy the district magistrate's order forbidding meetings and salutations to the congress flag in connection with "Jawarhalal Day."

Many were slightly injured when police dispersed attempts at processions.

Three Arrested in Bombay.

In Bombay large crowds gathered on Chowpatti Sands in honor of the occasion Joseph Binnie, Indian Christian president of the Bombay war council, walked among his followers while reading speeches by Jawarhalal Nehru, which have been declared seditious. He was arrested, as were two other members of the war council. The police then withdrew and other members of the council addressed the crowd.

Numerous persons were arrested in various suburbs for forming processions in defiance of the police ban.

Two hundred and eighteen persons, including one woman, were arrested at New Delhi when police broke up a large procession.

Temblor Causes Fear On Island of Jersey

St. Helier, Island of Jersey, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—A severe earthquake today sent many Jersey residents running from their houses to the streets, despite a heavy rain. The shock, which occurred at 3:45 p. m., was preceded and followed by loud rumbling. No damage had been reported late today. The quake, however, was more severe than one felt here Tuesday evening.

BORAH DERIDES FEARS OF SENATE FILIBUSTER TO GET EXTRA SESSION

Gives Notice, However, There Will Be No "Stampeding."

REFUSES ANY SHARE IN DILATORY TACTICS

HINTS ACTION SOUGHT ON MUSCLE SHOALS

House Chiefs Are Returning Soon to Map Program for Their Confreres.

(Associated Press.)

Fears of a Senate filibuster at the approaching session of Congress, to force an extra session in the spring, were bettittled last night by Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the Republican independents.

At the same time, however, he gave notice there would be no "stampeding" of legislation at the short session.

Denying any intention of joining in a filibuster and scouting threats of such a move, Senator Borah belligerently asked, upon his return to the Capital: "Why all this excitement about a supposed filibuster in order to force an extra session?"

Mr. Hoover had solicited assurances from the party leaders in the Senate against a filibuster.

Heard No Such Threats.

"I have not heard of any such threats from the Democrats," he said, "neither have I heard any such threats from the Progressives. I think it an exhibition of superlative impudence to be stating, in effect, that the Progressives or the Democrats have not just as keen a sense of responsibility and quite as intelligent conception of their duty as the regulars.

"I have been a member of the Senate for 24 years. I have never joined a filibuster; I do not propose to join any now. But I do not propose either to be stampeded out of giving proper and necessary consideration to appropriation bills and such other important legislation as we know is now pending.

"I am in favor of going ahead and disposing of business in an orderly and, I trust, an intelligent way and I will pay no attention to any cooked-up effort to stampede the Congress."

Regarded As Ultimatum.

The pointed declaration of the Idahoan, who came back to the Capital with an election victory on his belt, was regarded here as notice that the independents were going to insist upon full consideration of some of their favored measures, regardless of demands for haste. One of those measures is the Norris bill for Government operation of the gigantic Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant.

While some of the Republican regulars have suggested that the Senate organization be turned over to the Democrats in the next Congress if the extra session is forced next spring, little consideration is being given to this by the party leaders.

However, it appears now that President Hoover's haste to get assurances from the Republican and Democratic floor leaders in the Senate, that they would cooperate to avoid the extra session in the spring, has focused every attention upon such a situation and aroused the Republican independents.

Held Extra Session Unwise.

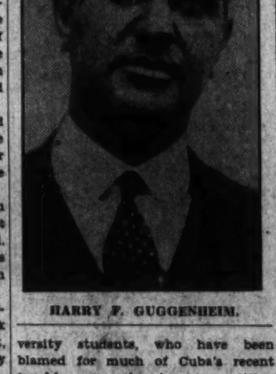
The Democratic leaders have regarded it as unwise both to have an extra session or to seek to assume power in Congress at this time. But should they get in the mood, a coalition of the Democrats and Republican independents could bring about

U. S. Embassy Is Put Under Guard in Cuba

Communist Plot Seen to Force American Intervention.



HARRY F. GUGGENHEIM.

Havana, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—American property in Cuba was put under special police guard tonight after the government announced discovery of an alleged Communist plot to force the United States to intervene in Cuba by destroying American-owned buildings.

The authorities said they believed the American Embassy might be the first object of such attack, and for that reason placed a large police guard there.

Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim expressed confidence that President Machado had the situation in hand. The number of troops in Havana has been reduced as the recent tension died down.

The tension produced by the establishment of martial law last week appeared to be diminishing tonight, and it was predicted that military control might be lifted by Wednesday.

It was reported tonight that university students, who have been blamed for much of Cuba's recent trouble, were planning to petition Congress that the University of Havana be made autonomous.

PILSUDSKI ELECTION VICTOR; SCORES HURT

Four Shot, Many Injured in Clashes During oVte for Polish Parliament.

FASCISTS GAIN IN DANZIG

Warsaw, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Sixty-one persons were wounded or bruised during clashes in Warsaw last night and today in connection with the Polish parliamentary elections, in which a victory was indicated for the government party of Premier Joseph Pilsudski.

Five persons in the capital were recorded as seriously injured. Four of them were shot. Most of the injuries resulted from minor scuffles, principally between Communists, government adherents and Laborites, with the Zionist and Orthodox Jews in their crowded quarters battling frequently.

Early reports from the various centers indicated that Pilsudski would be victorious. If he obtains the three-fourths majority that he has sought in the Sejm of 444 seats he must capture 333 mandates. In the old Sejm, which the veteran premier dissolved last August on charges that it "hamstrung" the government, Pilsudski's party had only 118 seats.

After this dissolution Marshal Pilsudski began putting opposition deputies out of the way until 81 of them were in jail by election day. In addition, other prominent oppositionists were arrested today.

There also is indication that the National Democrats will capture more seats when the votes are all counted, but the Central Radical bloc apparently suffered a smashing defeat. This group, composed of the Socialist and Peasant parties, had been expected to make a strong race.

Government circles smiled tonight at the likely discomfiture of the Socialists, who had invited two prominent French Socialists, Leon Jouhaux and JJean Louquin, here to witness the conduct of the elections. The

TORNADOES IN SOUTH TAKE SEVERAL LIVES

Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana Stricken; Young Wife Killed.

CHILD HURLED 75 YARDS

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Tornadoes blustering through widely separated sections of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia early today left an undetermined number of deaths and heavy property damage.

Full extent of life lost and property damage could not be ascertained immediately as roads and other forms of communication from a number of rural communities stricken were blocked.

Country settlements in the vicinities of Alexandria and Winnsboro, La., and Brookhaven, Miss., were the first to report fatalities.

At Brookhaven a young woman, Mrs. George Davis, 24, was crushed to death when the home in which she, her husband and two children were asleep collapsed. The husband and children were not hurt.

Near Winnsboro, La., a Negro infant was hurled 75 yards by the force of the wind and killed, and Mrs. Ella Diamond, 72, was critically injured. A Negro was killed near Alexandria, La.

The winds dipped into Franklin County, Miss., blowing down dwellings, barns and other buildings and killing many head of live stock. Many persons were injured, including the entire family of Will Whitehead, farmer. Five tenant houses on the E. R. Magee plantation were blown down.

Winds blew with damaging effect around Meridian, Miss., destroyed much property and causing slight human injury. Much timber was destroyed near Toomsuba, 12 miles east of Meridian. A number of Negro houses were unroofed and telephonic communication was disrupted.

Near Macon, Miss., 22 egroes attending a funeral "wakNe" at a

Boy, 11, Held as Pupil Of Bootlegging Fagin

Arrested Child Says He and 15-Year-Old Brother Were Taught to Make Deliveries by "Sol;" Received No Compensation.

The arrest of Dominick Foote, 11 years old, on a charge of transporting liquor, has uncovered a modern Oliver Twist, who, police say, was schooled in the art of law evasion by a bootlegger named "Sol."

Authorities last night were searching for the modern Pagan, who, the boy said, instructed him and his 15-year-old brother, Nick, in the latest technique of bootlegging. The police intend to question Nick. Police also claim to know the identity of "Sol."

Evidently the bootlegger, in using the boys as carriers, as alleged, had stolen a suggestion, later rescinded, given to enforcement officers by their superiors to use children in their work.

Policemen H. W. Whitlow and W. H. Cox, of the Fifth Precinct, who might be considered as the Cheeryble brothers, who rescued Oliver Twist from the disreputable Bill Sikes, Fagan and Charlie Bailey, arrested the child soon after he left his home on Seventh street, near I street southeast. In his possession they found two half-gallon jars of alleged whisky.

Although badly frightened by his arrest, Dominick was reluctant to give the name of his exploiter. His brother, Nick, he said, usually made the deliveries. Usually, he told the police, he would precede his brother when a delivery was to be made.

Dominick would see whether the "coast was clear" before Nick started on the delivery, police said. After Nick started, the younger boy would follow him to see whether he arrived safely at his destination.

However, Nick was not home last night, and Dominick had to make the delivery alone, police said. He was on his way to a house on I street near Sixth street southeast when the officers arrested him.

Officers Whitlow and Cox said that they had been working for several days on information that children were being used in the Southeast section as "runners" for bootleggers.

Mrs. Foote told the police that she did not know that her sons were engaged as bootleggers, although police say that the home of the children had been used as a distributing base for the liquor.

The child received no compensation for his liquor running, he said. Police assert that the boys have been exploited for four months by the bootlegger.

Nick and Dominick are the eldest of five children. The father of the family is dead, police say.

Demand Made for Cannon Prosecution by Tinkham

Representative Asks Attorney General to Place Charges of Corrupt Practice Act Violations Before Federal Grand Jury.

(Associated Press.)

A formal demand that Attorney General Mitchell place before a Federal grand jury charges that Bishop James Cannon, jr., had violated the corrupt practices act was made yesterday by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts.

Tinkham made the charges against the Southern Methodist Church man in previous letters to the Attorney General, on the House floor and before the Senate lobby committee.

The bishop was charged by Tinkham with violating the Federal act by failing to report to the House clerk $65,300 received from E. C. Jameson, of New York, for use by the anti-Smith Democratic committee in Virginia in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Later, Tinkham said, Bishop Cannon, as chairman of the committee, reported receipts of $17,000 of the amount, but refused to testify before the Senate lobby committee "in relation to his political expenditures or those of his committee and to account for this difference of $48,300."

In a letter to the Attorney General, made public yesterday, Tinkham said:

"Unless the evidence is placed before a Federal grand jury shortly, the operation of the statute of limitation will bar action against Bishop Cannon and he will be granted immunity by you from the penalty of a gross violation of a criminal statute and of conduct wholly lawless.

"Therefore, there arises for your determination the question whether this officer, Bishop Cannon, and other officers of ecclesiastical organizations, may indulge in political activities in contravention of the Constitution and

3-Day Madrid Strike Ends After Riot Injures Scores

Known Dead 2, With 200 Suffering Minor Hurts; Famine Threat Removed as Unions Order Bakers to Resume Work.

Madrid, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—After three days of riot and disorder, with two known dead, a number gravely injured and 200 with lesser hurts, orders were issued tonight to end the Madrid general strike.

Following a day in which more than a score of persons were injured in bread riots, and an attack on Catholic students selling the newspaper El Debate, labor headquarters issued a communique which put taxicabs back on the street at midnight, ordered street car men to resume work tomorrow morning and told all other strikers to be back on the job by 5 o'clock tomorrow evening.

The news brought great joy to the population of the capital, because many had run out of food since the strike was declared, following upon charges of police brutality at a funeral of four workmen Wednesday.

Bakers had not been working, and it was almost impossible to obtain bread; all stores were closed, and transportation was lacking. Army bakers worked night and day to produce bread, transporting it in army trucks, but the supply was not nearly sufficient to care for the needs of the population of the nation's capital.

Even before the labor communique was issued tonight, the motion picture theaters opened and drew packed houses, as the people had no other place to go. They watched American screen favorites as police and civil guards, mounted and afoot, with rifles and portable machine guns ready for action, protected the exteriors.

Troops meanwhile patrolled the city watchfully, although martial law was an extra session and control of the organization of the new Senate.

The leaders of all factions now are agreed that no attempt is going to be made for the extra session on the basis of the present outlook.

Two of the "Big Four" Republican House leaders—Speaker Longworth, of Ohio, and Representative Snell, of New York—will return to Washington Thursday to confer with President Hoover concerning legislative plans for the December session.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican floor leader, and Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic floor leader, plan to return after Thanksgiving. Representative Hawley, of Oregon, the last of the Republican "Big Four," and chairman of the ways and means committee, is due here November 24.

At Work on Supply Bills.

In the meantime, Chairman Woods, of the House appropriations committee, with Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the ranking minority member, are cooperating in preparing the annual supply bills, which are to be pressed for action as rapidly as possible. Hearings were begun last week, and the billion dollar Post-office-Treasury bill probably will be reported for House action the third day of the session.

Chairman Britten, of the House naval committee, hopes to open hearings on the naval building program early in December. Unemployment legislation will occupy the House judiciary committee. The House agriculture committee expects to give early consideration to a $60,000,000 seed and fertilizer bill, for relief in drought-stricken States.

Flood Control Plans Up.

Proposed changes in the Mississippi plan are before the House flood control committee. Chairman Reid hopes for action at the short session.

Administration-sponsored legislation affecting oil and shale reserves will be considered by the House public lands committee. The public building committee will study the proposed extension of the public building program as an unemployment relief measure, while the post-office committee possibly will have before it a proposed increase in postage rates.

church were slightly injured but badly frightened. The fright was caused by the sight of the casket containing the body of Brown Hughes, Negro, being hurled into a nearby field by the lashing wind.

Sections of Alabama and Georgia felt the winds, with property damage widespread.

Three residences were leveled in Jackson, Ala., north of Mobile, and ten others were badly damaged. A church was blown down and a number of garages and automobiles were demolished. No injury was reported.

Queenstown, Ala., 12 miles south of Birmingham, suffered the destruction of several buildings. The streets of Birmingham were flooded by torrential rains. Three persons were injured near Dawson, Ga., in Terrell County. A blow razed a house in which three Negroes had taken refuge and tore off the roofs of other structures.

of the traditions of our country and be regarded nevertheless as immune from the operation of criminal statutes."

Tinkham suggested the Justice Department inquire into certain bank records as to disposition of money contributed by Jameson for the anti-Smith campaign through Bishop Cannon. He mentioned the Lawyers Trust Co. of New York, the Continental Trust Co. of Washington and the First National Bank of Blackstone, Va.

Meanwhile, Dr. Ray Lyman Sexton, attending physician, said the condition of Bishop Cannon, suffering from arthritis in a local hospital, was satisfactory.

"The spread of the disease has been definitely arrested," Dr. Sexton said. "Our worst fear that it would spread to the heart has not materialized."

3,358,700,000 Travel In New York During Year

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—New York City's 6,000,000 took 3,358,700,000 rides—most of them underground—on city transit lines during the year ended June 30, the transit commission reported today. The passengers paid $181,624,000, an average of less than 5 cents a ride.

The figures for the different lines of transport were Interborough Rapid Transit, subway, 986,700,000; Interborough Rapid Transit, elevated, 347,400,000; Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, subway and elevated, 714,400,000; Hudson & Manhattan tubes, under the Hudson River to New Jersey, 110,700,000; bus lines, 239,000,000; street cars, 960,500,000; other lines, 347,400,00.

New Methods Increase Demand for Steel Pipe

Cleveland, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Developments of electrically welded pipe for distribution of oil, natural gas and gasoline, have increased the demand for steel pipe to such an extent that potential requirement for the next three to five years is from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons, the Arthur G. McKee Co., Cleveland engineers, estimates.

The growth of probable demand to such proportions is ascribed to the greater distances to which pipe lines may now be stretched, by use of electrically welded and seamless pipe, which is built to withstand high pressures. The new type of pipe has largely replaced screwed lapweld pipe, the company observers.

Skull Found in Vault Used in Football Play

Hennicker, N. H., Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Passersby near the town hall here were horrified yesterday to see a group of small boys playing football with a human skull.

Investigation by Chief of Police Henry Colby revealed that a private vault in the old cemetery back of the town hall, had been broken into, the door lock smashed and the skull removed. The boys were kicking it around with apparent enjoyment. Town authorities immediately took the object back to its resting place and the door of the vault was fastened securely.

BECK ASKS REPEAL OF VOLSTEAD LAW

SEES DOMINANT ISSUE

(Associated Press.)

Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, yesterday urged repeal of the Volstead act by Congress, thereby leaving enforcement of the eighteenth amendment "to the political discretion" of the several States.

Mr. Beck, a former solicitor general of the United States and an anti-prohibitionist, said the recent elections had shown that prohibition will be the dominant issue in American politics for at least a decade and probably a generation, adding that "any political party that tries to sidestep it will be doomed to defeat."

Although holding repeal of the eighteenth amendment to be the ultimate objective, the Pennsylvanian attacked as unwise those advocating outright appeal at this time. He contended at least twenty States would quickly block the move.

Result Foregone Conclusion.

"Indeed," he said, in a statement, "if a resolution were now adopted by Congress to submit the question of repeal to the States, the result would be a foregone conclusion and would postpone any practical relief for another generation."

Representative Beck's statement followed closely upon an assurance that President Hoover's law enforcement commission has no intention of asking for repeal, whatever the ultimate recommendations of its forthcoming dry law report may be.

The commission already has reached tentative conclusions, and when the eleven members reconvene here a week from today they will launch a concerted drive, in the light of seventeen months of prohibition investigation and deliberation, to determine whether these conclusions should be altered or added to.

Assurance that the report will not make any such recommendation as 4 per cent beer or holding a national referendum on the dry law has caused a growing number of people in political Washington to believe the commission principally will urge changes to strengthen the present system. Nevertheless, word has come from within the ranks that there will be "no pussyfooting."

Differs With Morrow.

In giving his views on repeal, Beck said he could not share the confidence of Dwight W. Morrow, Republican senator-elect from New Jersey, that "a repeal is possible within a reasonable time, nor his suggestion that, pending such repeal, the present Volstead law should be enforced." He termed "still more unwise" the plan proposed by Charles H. Tuttle, defeated Republican gubernatorial candidate in New York, for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the adoption of a new amendment.

Beck contended, however, that the same political discretion which allowed Congress to pass the enacting Volstead provision would allow its repeal, adding: "This is not nullification."

"Little can be expected in the present Congress," he said, "but in the Seventy-second Congress, which, in my judgment, will be more closely divided on the wet and dry issue than the election returns would indicate, an attempt should be made to repeal the Volstead law, at least in its application to light wines and beers, and, if this be not practicable, to refuse to waste public moneys by attempting to enforce the unenforceable."

Chinese Minister Sees Prosperity

Strong Nation in Offing, Dr. Wu Asserts in Talk Over Radio.

An era of prosperity for a rejuvenated and strong China is in the offing when stabilization forces in progress have been extended throughout the republic, declared Dr. Chao Chu-Wu, Chinese Minister, in a Conclave of Nations talk over the Columbia Broadcasting System from Station WMAL yesterday afternoon. He was introduced by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut.

"The Chinese people are adjusting themselves to the changing conditions," Dr. Wu asserted. "The National government, half of whose cabinet ministers are graduates of American universities, is consolidating its authority day by day all over the country. As soon as the two processes have made sufficient headway an era of prosperity will begin.

"For centuries the unit of Chinese society has been the family. On the other hand, the unit of Western society is the individual. With the impact of the West, individualism is making inroads into the Chinese family system. Also, women in China are taking their places as business managers, doctors, lawyers, judges and officials, and responsible officials, too, of the government. These, then, are some of the social changes."

Unemployment Blamed In Nicaraguan Banditry

(Associated Press.)

Unemployment was blamed yesterday by the Foreign Policy Association for much of the activities of Nicaraguan "bandits."

In a review of Nicaraguan history since American intervention in 1927, Raymond Leslie Buell, research director, suggested a guarantee of slightly more than 50 cents a day for every one of the insurgents employed in lawful work probably would thin their ranks to a negligible figure. "For the most part," he asserted, "they are not a professional criminal class, but natives who temporarily join a bandit leader because they lack other employment."

Seven Persons Poisoned By Eating Cream Puffs

New York, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Seven persons were stricken with acute food poison and rushed to St. Vincent's Hospital for treatment early this morning after having eaten a dozen cream puffs, purchased in a small confectionery store in Greenwich Village a few hours previously. Among the victims was Vic Burrone, 23, featherweight boxer.

Burrone and his wife, Lena, 22, were the hosts at the dinner where the cream puffs were served Saturday night. The wife, their 2½-year-old son, Victor, jr.; Frank Vpagliucca, 24, a brother-in-law of the boxer, and three friends, Marie Viggiano, 17; Mrs. Lucy Probter, 30, and Mrs. Philip Pagliucca, all ate the puffs.

Heiress Marries Former Ice Man

Boy Worked Way Through College as Driver of Truck.

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 16 (A.P.)—Miss Harriet Green Huntington, 20-year-old heiress to the Huntington millions, has become the bride of Albert Doerr, jr., 20, who worked his way through Stanford University, driving an ice truck.

In far contrast to the first meeting of the couple at Stanford, when for lack of other means Doerr took the young woman to a dance in his ice truck, they rode from the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James E. Brehm, last night in a limousine, after a wedding witnessed by Southern California social leaders.

Miss Huntington's grandfather was the late Henry E. Huntington, traction magnate and art patron. Her mother's father was the late Adam Green, pioneer San Francisco business man. She is a graduate of Smith College and attended Stanford.

Doerr graduated from Stanford last June and is employed by a Los Angeles steel corporation. While in school he gained a reputation as a boxer. He is the son of a Mexico City mining executive.

Air Line Plans Aid For Unemployed

Curtiss-Wright Service to Give Entire Proceeds to Charity.

New York, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Aviation has found a way of doing its bit for the unemployed. Maj. E. H. Brainard, president of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, today made public an order to his field managers throughout the country designating Sunday, November 30, as unemployment relief day and instructing them to stage air shows on this date, the entire proceeds of which are to be turned over to local relief agencies for the benefit of the needy.

Local Curtiss-Wright managers are authorized by the order to invite the unemployment relief committees of their various cities to take over the facilities of the different bases for the day, charging admission to the field, parking fees for automobiles and letting whatever concessions they see fit. Maj. Brainard prefers to have all finances handled outside his own organization.

As the flying service itself will bear all expenses incident to the aerial entertainment of the day, whatever is realized will be 100 per cent profit for the unemployed.

San Francisco to Seize Capone if He Goes There

San Francisco, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—If Al Capone, Chicago gang leader, arrives in San Francisco, as rumor says, he is to be met by a reception committee, William J. Quinn, chief of police, announced last night, and taken to one of the biggest places in town. Moreover, his board and room will be free.

"We have no positive knowledge Mr. Capone is in California," said the chief, "but the general assumption is that he is with us." Among other things, the racketeer will be asked, Chief Quinn said, what he proposes to do about California grape concentrates which a report Thursday said he had barred from sale in Chicago.

STRIKE IN MADRID ENDS AFTER 3 DAYS

Plan No Revolt.

Socialist and Republican elements, allied with the labor unions, said tonight they had decided not to attempt converting the general strike into a movement for revolution. They added that an attempt at revolution would be made later, but the present time is inopportune.

Government officials smiled when hearing such statements and in effect said, "Let's go; we are ready."

Much opposition developed to the strike the Catholic labor unions and the Chamber of Commerce issuing statements decrying he movemen. In addition, billboards were plastered today with statements signed by the "League Against Revolution," saying in effect:

"We are more than 2,000,000 Spaniards who will never permit Spain to be dominated by Red Russia. We are against this Communist revolution. We will fight for our homes and our country. Down with this attempt at revolution in Spain."

Minor Disorders Occur.

Several minor disorders occurred tonight, one of them centering around Puerta Del Sol, which is termed the Times Square of Madrid.

Great crowds assembled in the square, attempting to impede the progress of private motor cars, and mounted civil guards charged several times to break up the manifestations. A few persons were slightly injured.

Civil guards also dissolved groups of strikers in Glorieta Del Bilbao Plaza, where a cafe had attempted to open in defiance of the strike edict. Several strikers were arrested.

College Maidens Rate Love First in Mates

Gainesville, Ga., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The senior maidens of Brenau College are not gold diggers nor flappers, but they do demand love. At least that is how they voted in a test sponsored by Dr. John T. Miller, head of the education department, on qualification in selection of a mate.

Of the 63 girls, 57 rated love as the most important attribute in him who is to be led to the altar, and the other six rated it as "quite important." On the other hand, not one rated ability in dancing or card playing or chances of inheriting wealth, under the heading of most important attributes.

Next to love, the girls listed health as "most important," 56 finding this a major matter. Mentality rated next, with 50 declaring it of supreme necessity.

Athletic prowess, political ideals and fighting ability got one vote each as "most important," and thirteen asserted that a quality of prime importance in their partner was to be a "good listener."

Religious Meeting Heckled by Reds

Scuffles Ensue as Jews and Christians Protest Russian Campaign.

Berlin, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Communists nearly broke up a meeting tonight in which Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders assembled to protest the antireligious campaign in Russia.

Reds in various parts of the audience constantly heckled speakers, with the result that numerous scuffles ensued. Police finally ejected a number of the disturbers, but some remained and the meeting ended with the mingled singing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and the Communist "Internationale."

The meeting, held at the Sportpalast, under the auspices of the German Society for the Protection of Western Culture," was "for culture and faith against the world revolution." Speakers included Emil Karow, general superintendent of the Evangelical Church; the Jesuit Prof. Berg, Aix-la-Chappelle; Rabbi Rosenthal, Cologne, and Bishop Seraphio, of Kharkov, representing the Russian Orthodox Church.

Hope of Finding Securities Held

$3,840,000 in Assets of Bank in Nashville May Be Recovered.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Attorney General L. D. Smith said today that he is "hopeful of recovering a part or all" of approximately $3,840,000 in securities which were not found among assets of the closed Bank of Tennessee. He was not prepared, he said, to announce what plans were contemplated toward recovery. In a statement yesterday Mr. Smith said that investigation had failed to show the securities among the assets.

These securities, Mr. Smith said, were deposited as a part of the bank's assets September 25 upon demand of D. D. Robertson, superintendent of banks, when his examination showed the institution's condition "unsatisfactory." Cash in excess of $1,000,000 was on hand at that time, the attorney general reported.

November 4 a committee of Nashville bankers took over the affairs of Caldwell & Co., banking house of which the Bank of Tennessee was a subsidiary, and decided to liquidate the bank. Mr. Robertson in his official capacity was appointed receiver November 9. After the bank had closed, an examination by the receiver, the attorney general said, revealed that none of the securities deposits on demand and September 25 were found among its assets and the cash on hand had "been all dissipated."

West Virginia Crops Far Below Normal

Special to The Washington Post.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 16.—The November estimated production of West Virginia's leading agricultural crops shows that the State's aggregate production is materially below that of 1929, according to reports compiled by State and Federal Bureaus here. The prospective crop yields of November 1 are only 58.8 per cent normal, which is the poorest for the entire country.

The production of all classes of fruit is below the 1929 crop and corn, oats, buckwheat, soybeans, all hay crops, potatoes, tobacco and sorghum for syrup is exceedingly short of the production last year, due principally to lower yields per acre caused by the most unfavorable growing season on record.

Detroit Man to Head Alaskan Road Survey

(Associated Press.)

Herbert H. Rice, of Detroit, was appointed yesterday by the Department of the Interior as chairman of the commission created by Congress to investigate the feasibility of constructing a highway to connect the northwestern part of the United States with British Columbia, Yukon Territory and Alaska.

Others on the commission are Ernest Walker Sawyer, representing the department, and Maj. Malcolm Elliott, of the Army, who is president of the Alaskan road commission. Mr. Rice is treasurer and a director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Gen. Fountain, Indian War Veteran, Is Dead

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Brig. Gen. Samuel Warren Fountain, veteran of the Civil War, Indian encounters and the Spanish-American War, died at his home last night. He was 83. He was national commander of the Order of Indian Wars.

After serving as a private in the Civil War, where he received a certificate of thanks and recognition of honorable services signed by President Lincoln, he entered West Point. He was graduated in 1870.

FOREIGN TRADE AID VALUE $50,000,000

Commerce Department Tells of Assistance to United States Exporters.

NEW BUSINESS IS FOUND

(Associated Press.)

Activities of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in behalf of American exporters for the last fiscal year were valued yesterday at $50,000,000 in the annual report of W. L. Cooper, director of the bureau.

This figure represented a gain of 20 per cent over the previous fiscal year, and was accomplished "notwithstanding the decline in United States export trade," the report said. The cash value of the bureau's services represented not only new business developed for domestic exporters, but savings accomplished as a result of its other activities.

These services include providing up to the minute information on specific markets, assistance in adjusting commercial misunderstandings, explaining foreign tariff classifications, aiding in foreign trade mark registration and advice concerning the financial standing of foreign buyers and agents.

Specific examples of new business developed were cited in the report, to show that exporters in all parts of the country were availing themselves of the bureau's services.

Increased Cable Service.

"Among these," the report said, "are the sale of Alabama knit goods in South Africa; California canned sardines in Java; Illinois washing machines in New Zealand, and Missouri bricks in Norway."

To meet the ever-growing requests for service and information, the bureau said it had increased its cable service abroad by more than 25 per cent, and strengthened all its statistical and informational services. In addition, it rushed to completion many researches it felt would be of practical value in the present economic depression.

FIVE MEN INJURED IN POLISH BATTLES

visit of the Frenchmen aroused indignation in the government newspapers, but tonight it appeared they would see the defeat of their friends.

Pollin gwas heavy everywhere except in the Vilno region and in East Calicia, where heavy rains interfered.

Poznan, Poland, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Five university students were seriously wounded by police, who dispersed a demonstration in front of the government party headquarters. A great many others were bruised. The students, with National Democrat sympathizers, attempted to demolish the government offices.

Berlin, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler's brown-shirted Fascists scored almost phenomenal gains in today's municipal elections in the free city of Danzig and in various parts of Germany, emulating their success in the Reichstag elections October 14.

The Danzig Volkstag election, coteenth anniversary of the interallied decree which formally separated the city from the German reich (November 9, 1920), resulted in a sixteenfold increase in Fascist strength, the party capturing 34,000 votes against 2,130 in 1927.

The Communists, who also made wide gains in the Reichstag elections, made almost a 100 per cent jump today. The Social Democrats, although still the leading party, polled only 54,000 votes against 61,779 in the last election.

In Baden the Fascists ran even more strongly, increasing their mandates in Karlsruhe from nothing to 28 and in Kehl from nothing to 21, thereby becoming the leading party in both cities. The Social Democrats ran second.

The Fascists also jumped from nothing to fourteen in Freiburg, in Constance from one to twelve, and in Loerrach from one to nine. Results elsewhere in Baden were similar.

Karlsruhe, Germany, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The Fascists scored the highest number of votes in today's municipal election with 18,889. The Socialists obtained 12,719 and the Centrists 11,039.

Municipal elections were held throughout Baden. Adolf Hitler, Fascist chieftain, personally led his cohorts, and while the piling percentage did not approach that of the Reichstag election October 14, the Fascists obtained seats on virtually every communal council in Baden.

More Deaths Feared From Poison in Flour

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The probability that at least three other persons, and possibly more, would die as a result of poison which killed Mrs. Jane Grisham, 54, near Raleigh, was expressed by Dr. Auda Garrison, of Galatin, who is treating 21 persons now ill.

Arsenate of lead, which was found in flour in the F. G. Grisham home, had been eaten in biscuits by all the 21 who came to the Grisham home after Mrs. Grisham died, and as the poison is slow to act, the number of deaths to be expected is problematical.

Mrs. Hoover Returns From Visit to Her Son

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, yesterday returned from Asheville, N. C., where she visited her son, Herbert Hoover, jr., who is convalescing there from illness.

Mrs. Hoover left here Thursday night for her first trip to the temporary home of her son.

MOUNTAINEERS DENY GIVING UP CHILDREN

Pastor Says People Hard Hit, but Will Not Starve This Winter.

ONLY FEW HAVE CREDIT

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 16.—Although poor and hard hit by the severe drought of the past summer and fall, the mountaineers in the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge in Greene County have no intention of giving their children away, as reported rather than see them starve this winter, according to the Rev. W. R. Mason, associate archdeacon of the Blue Ridge Mission of the Episcopal Church.

"It is true," said the clergyman, "that there is great need in the mountains, and I fear that before spring there will be suffering of both live stock and of people on account of the drought and lack of work, but there are no people starving at present, and we will try to see to it that they will not get in that condition. It is true also that I have been asked to take several children, and believe we may have later on to open up a little house to provide for these and others.

"The mountain people, however, that are in such trying circumstances, do not want to give up their children permanently. They trust us, because they know us to be their friends, but would not be willing to let their children go to strangers.

"The relief measures proposed by the government are not much help to our people, who can not give the necessary security. Only those who are what we would call the 'well-to-do' can get credit. What we need for our people is work, credit and financial help, all of which can be best administered through their friends in the mountains."

Active Tobacco Market Reported

442,880 Pounds Brought to Petersburg During Past Week.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 16.—Petersburg tobacco market for the past week was strong and active in spite of the low average price shown for the period. Total sales reached 442,886 pounds which brought a total of $47,119.02. The average was only $10.64 per hundred pounds, but the low figure was due to the marketing of such a large quantity of inferior grades of leaf. Some lots of tobacco brought prices as high as $50 per hundred pounds. But the fact that many lots brought as low as 5 and 7 cents a pound brought down the average.

The long drought is blamed for the quantity of inferior grades that has flooded the market this season. There still is some better type tobacco to be marketed and this is expected to bring up the average for the season. So far this year growers have brought 1,496,782 pounds of tobacco to Petersburg which has been sold for a total of $165,719.85.

The average for the season is $11.08 per hundred pounds. Improvement in all grades of tobacco and greater activity is believed near.

NEELY SEEN IN ROLE OF 1932 DARK HORSE

West Virginia Senator-Elect Viewed as Presidential Possibility.

LIBERAL DRY, IS CLAIM

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 16.—According to some close political observers in West Virginia, an effort will be made in 1932 at the Democratic national convention to nominate for the Presidency Matthew Mansfield Neely, senator-elect from West Virginia. These observers, admitting that Senator Neely would occupy the role of dark horse, point out that John W. Davis, who led the Democratic ticket in 1924, was in the same category when the delegates assembled at Madison Square Garden. Of course, the observers further point out, the West Virginian would be in the background at the outset of the convention, but should Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who seems at this time to be most favored for the nomination, fail to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority, Senator Neely would make an ideal candidate, they argue.

Further argument set forth is that Senator Neely as a campaigner is the most without equal in the country. In little more than a month prior to the last election he started on a tour of the State and by the eve of election day had spoken in every one of its 55 counties.

Although Senator Neely is classed as a dry by the Antisaloon League, it is generally conceded that he polled a big majority of the moist votes on November 5. In his campaign he refrained from speaking in favor of prohibition, but merely referred to his record. Supporters of his, who claim it not to be quite liberal on the prohibition question now, are of the opinion that he has about decided that some change must be made in the Volstead act and that if nominated for President on an antiprohibition platform he would not refuse a chance to lead his party to victory.

PARK PLAN SHOWN TO ENTAIL NO LOSS

DROP IN TAXES SCOUTED

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Hugh R. Kirby yesterday replied to an inquiry by Col. Charles T. Jesse, of the Arlington Rotary Club, when the colonel addressed the club at a recent meeting, urging united support for the George Washington Memorial Parkway, as provided in the Capper-Cramton bill passed at the last session of Congress.

The question involved was, "How will Arlington County be compensated for the loss in revenue now enjoyed from taxation on the lands proposed to be acquired and appropriated to the Gorge Washington Memorial Parkway, thereby withdrawing them from the taxable area of Arlington County, comprising a strip from the Long Bridge westward along the banks of the Potomac River to the abutting line of Fairfax County, aggregating 269 acres?"

The letter to Mr. Jesse reads in part:

"First let me say that when I purchased the original tract of land in the Woodmont subdivision of the Bradley estate, I paid an annual tax of $67 in 1927 on the vacant property, and immediately after construction of my home the taxes were increased to $806 in 1929; thus showing that a small thing like an individual home increased the tax income to Arlington County more than nine times in one year, and from this one may visualize that a great development like the George Washington Memorial Parkway might even increase the taxable values on newly improved real estate far in excess of this percentage.

"One reliable authority states it is generally recognized by tax authorities that withdrawal of land from taxation for park purposes never reduces the tax revenue, because the value of the land purchased for park purposes is automatically transferred to the abutting property.

"A recent investigation of values of land situated within 500 feet of the Bronx River Parkway in Westchester County shows an average increase ranging from 600 per cent near the New York City line to an average of 1,100 per cent in the Scarsdale and White Plains section, or a general increase of value along the parkway of more than 800 per cent during the ten-year period since the commission purchased the land for the parkway.

"Now, as the George Washington Memorial Parkway will adorn the National Capital, and as Arlington and Fairfax Counties and especially Arlington County are environs of the National Capital, its great development will be advertised throughout the civilized world, because our Capital in the past decade has become one of the most important governmental centers of the entire world, and further because the land comprising the District of Columbia is practically all developed, and as the land in Maryland adjacent to the District of Columbia has made great strides in its higher development by zoning restricted areas, Arlington County looms on the horizon as the next section for extensive development, particularly because by opening next year of the Arlington Memorial Bridge, all the sections of Arlington County will be easier of access and nearer to the center of the City of Washington than most of the districts now developed as residential in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md.

"The Westchester County Park Commission's report shows that from inception of their park system in 1902 to December, 1929, their total investment for land and improvements, as well as drivewarys, aggregated the sum of $55,433,773.50. The number of acres in their park system is 18,671. The cost of operation is said to be $1,500,000, while their income from rental of buildings, amusements and concessions equals the sum of $2,803,675.57. Hence the cost of operation was entirely taken care of and left a profit of $1,303,675.53. While the taxable values of the abutting and adjoining property in 1923 was $768,029,020, and five years later in 1929, it has increased to $1,500,486,473.

"The total cost of $55,458,773.50 for the Westchester Park development was borne by the State of New York. While the George Washington Memorial Parkway will be paid for equally by the United States Government and by the State of Virginia.

"The completion of the Memorial Bridge this year and the construction of the Lee boulevard from it direct to the Shenandoah National Park, with approaches to it from the George Washington Memorial Parkway from Mount Vernon and Great Falls, make it accessible to every hamlet in Arlington County within a very few minutes, and thus opens up every available bit of space in the county as a desirable "home site."

"The celebration of the 200th birthday of George Washington, beginning on February 22, 1932, and ending on Thanksgiving Day of that year, will bring into this section countless millions of people from every State in the Union. This development will depend largely upon what we Virginians do toward the establishment of the parkway, in order to induce these people to come and live among us.

"We will never induce them to come and live among us and build homes if we allow our Palisades of the Potomac River to be scarred and marred by the erection of large metal oil tanks for the storage of millions of gallons of gasoline. For, if one company is permitted to do so, many others will do the same thing, as all are entitled to the same treatment, and I am confident that the possible amount of taxes which these oil companies would pay the county of Arlington would in no way compare with the tremendous tax income that would be derived by the county from the establishment of fine homes and recreational environs, as now planned, and for which all of the money is available, provided the State of Virginia, or any political subdivision or responsible citizen or corporation thereof, will pledge to repay to the United States Treasury the sum of $3,750,000 without interest for a period of eight years."

In conclusion, Mr. Kirby says: "My opinion is that the present income from taxes collected by Arlington County from the several parcels of land from the city line of Alexandria to the Fairfax County line, westward along the banks of the Potomac River, comprising the total to be withdrawn from taxation by Arlington County, aggregating the total acreage of 269 acres, will be retrieved by a margin of at least 1,000 per cent within five years from the date the George Washington Memorial Parkway is an established reality"

Since the county voted at the recent election for a change in the form of government, which carries with it abolition of the three magisterial districts, the question has arisen as to what will happen to the Arlington District Council of Citizens Associations.

This organization was formed many years ago to advance development of the district. It is composed of a majority of the civic bodies.

The council will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon. Its secretary, it is learned, has sent notices for all delegates to attend the meeting, as the future of the organization is to be decided.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its November meeting tomorrow night as the guest of the Arlington Fire Department in its new firehouse near the Columbia pike.

Members of all departments affiliated with the association are requested to attend, as nominations will be made.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Nellie Custis School at Aurora Hills will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the community house at 8 o'clock.

Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, who has been confined to his home with a heavy cold for several days, was reported much improved last night.

Wednesday night the Woman's Club of Lyon Park will hold its monthly business meeting in the county house at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Arthur Orr, the president, requests a full attendance, as many matters are to be discussed.

The Woman's Club of Lyon Village will hold a Pilgrim's party in connection with its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. John Stewart, 149 Oak street. Mrs. John Balster will be the cohostess.

The executive committee of the newly organized Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington-Lee High School, at a special meeting in the school's auditorium tomorrow night, will appoint all standing committees.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Thomas Nelson Page School at Ballston will give a benefit card party Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Clarence Simmons.

Harmony Circle of the Ballston Central Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. J. P. Devine Wednesday afternoon.

TAX FIGURES SHOW $59,000 INCREASE

Intangible Property Levies for Virginia Exceed 1930 Estimate.

SOME BOOKS DELAYED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—State taxes assessed on intangible personal property in and for the tax assessment year 1930 thus far aggregate $2,859,409.26, according to personal property books sent to the department of taxation by city and county commissioners, State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrisett said today.

These figures did not include the personal property books of Rappahannock and Warren Counties, where completion was delayed. Mr. Morrisett said, however, that the intangible personal property taxes assessable in those counties did not amount to enough to have any appreciable effect on the revenues.

When the current budget was prepared last winter, it was estimated that for the year ending June 30, 1931, receipts from intafigible personal property taxes would amount to $2,800,000, making the assessments thus far $59,000 in excess of the estimates of actual collections.

Capitation Taxes Increase.

The figures $2,859,409.26, representing the assessments up to date in 1930, did not include such supplemental assessments as will be made during the residue of the current calendar year, and the department of Taxation was of the opinion that these supplemental assessments will probably offset such of the intangible personal property assessments already made as will be returned uncollectable.

State capitation taxes thus far assessed in 1930 amount to $1,561,587, as compared with 1,538,568 assessed in 1929, an increase in 1930 over 1929 of $23,019.

Taxes now extended against bonds, notes and other evidences of debt in 1930 amounted to $1,248,899.80, as compared with $1,244,211.50 in 1929, an increase in 1930 over 1929 of $4,688.31.

The 1930 taxes on money show a slight increase. The taxes thus far extended on money for 1930 amount to $192,671.68 as compared with $197,424.73 in 1929, a decrease of $4,753.05. The 1930 assessments of taxes against moneyed capital employed in competition with national banks likewise showed a decrease. The decrease was set at $14,624.21.

Rates Same as 1929.

On the other hand, Mr. Morrissett said, capital not otherwise taxed, this being mainly the capital used or employed in the manufacturing and mining businesses, showed an increase over 1929. The taxes for 1930 amounted to $1,391,588.50 as compared with $1,382,659.25 for 1929, an increase of $8,929.25.

Intangible personal property was subject to State taxation exclusively and no county, city or town had any authority to impose any local taxes on intangible personal property. The rates of taxation in 1930 were the same as they were in 1929, bonds, notes and other evidences of debt, 50 cents per $100; money, 20 cents; moneyed capital, $1, and capital not otherwise taxed 75 cents.

Mr. Morrissett said he was very much pleased with the 1930 assessments of intangible property, "because no one knew what the effect of the general business depression would have upon the assessments for 1930 and many people feared that the estimates made last winter might prove too high. It is now seen that the 1930 assessments of taxes on all classes of intangible personal property are only $5,759.80 less than the corresponding 1929 assessments," he said.

Mrs. C. P. Taylor Dies In Dinwiddie County

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Caroline Peterson Taylor, 84, wife of the late Jasper Taylor, of Dinwiddie County, died yesterday afternoon at her home at Kenilworth. Mrs. Taylor's health had not been good for several months, but her death was sudden and unexpected.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. Calvin Watkins; one son, Samuel S. Taylor, of Kenilworth, and one sister, Mrs. Henrietta Wright, of Richmond.

Farmers Rushing Freight Shipments

Agents in Drought Section Hurry to Get Benefit of Reduced Rates.

(Associated Press.)

Farmers and county agents in the drought area were said yesterday by Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the Federal drought relief committee, to have been active during the past week in an effort to obtain shipments of feed and live stock before the expiration of the lower emergency freight rates on November 30.

Outlining some of the benefits received by farmers in hard hit areas, the secretary pointed out that already more than 32,000 carloads have been shipped under the emergency rates granted by the railroads—a reduction of 50 per cent in the East and South and 33 1-3 per cent in the West.

Virginia farmers alone estimate, Mr. Warburton continued, that shipments they made on the reduced tariffs effected an aggregate saving of between $750,000 and $1,000,000. The railroads have announced they will not continue the lower rates beyond November 30 on account of the loss of revenue.

FAIRFAX TEACHERS SEEK RULE CHANGE

Would Have Yearly Sick Leave Accumulative Over Three Years.

CONTRIBUTE TO LIBRARY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County Teachers Association will ask the county school board to allow the five-day sick leave, which is now granted them, to accumulate for a three-year period instead of limiting it to the one-year period under the present system. The teachers unanimously adopted this plan following the report of the executive committee made at the quarterly meeting held in the auditorium of the Oakton School. Principal Gordon E. Smith, of McLean, made the report for the executive committee and stressed the merits of the accumulative sick leave.

The association also adopted motions to contribute funds toward the teachers' library in the office of the divisional superintendent at Fairfax and to contribute 25 cents of the March salary of each teacher for the benefit of the treasury of the Fairfax County Educational Association.

Delegates were chosen to attend the meeting of the State Educational Association to be held in Richmond during Thanksgiving week. The delegates are Gordon E. Smith, principal of the Franklin Sherman School at McLean, to represent the county principals; C. P. Scott, of Falls Church, to represent the high school teachers; Miss Elizabeth Simms, the grammar grade teachers; Miss Marie Creel, of Annandale, with Miss Helen Quigg, of Chesterbrook, the primary grade teachers.

Miss Martha E. Reely, in making the report of the publicity committee, urged the teachers to send the school news to her by the twentieth day of each month, together with the percentage of pupils on the honor roll, and the percentage of attendance.

Lewis L. Linn, of Washington, was ordered held for the action of the grand jury by Justice of the Peace John T. Molling, of Falls Church, on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The charges grew out of an automobile collision on the Chain Bridge highway at Langley. It is alleged that a car driven by Linn hit another machine driven by Claude Anderson, of Oakton, Va., who was on his way to his home. It is charged that Linn failed to stop after hitting the Anderson car. He was later arrested by the Washington police and turned over to the Fairfax County authorities. The trial on the hit-and-run charge against Linn was set for November 20 by Justice Molling.

A series of special services are being held this week in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Chesterbrook. The Rev. R. E. Rice, of Fairfax, will conduct the services tonight. Tomorrow night the Rev. D. L. Snyder, of Alexandria, will officiate. The services Wednesday night will be conducted by the Rev. C. H. Cannon, of Falls Church, and the Rev. R. A. Bergdoll, of Chesterbrook, will take charge Thursday. The services will close Friday night, with the Rev. J. H. Pearson, of Clarendon, conducting.

The regular meetnig the Shernon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will be held tonight in the Masonic Hall at McLean.

The Women's Guild of the St. Mary's Episcopal Church at Rixey will hold its meeting this afternoon in the parish hall of the church.

The nomination of a slate of officers for the coming year will be the principal order of business of the Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 44, which will meet tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall, on Broad street, in Falls Church.

The Fairfax Parent-Teacher Association has selected the personnel of its standing committees for the coming year as follows: Program committee, Mrs. W. T. Woodson, Mrs. Robert J. White and Mrs. M. Tanner; membership committee, Mrs. Stacy Swart, Mrs. John Whalen, Mrs. Fields and Mrs. N. F. Young; publicity committee, Mrs. James U. Kincheloe, Mrs. Mary Etta Stephenson and Miss Catherine Groh; finance committee, Mrs. Ruth Coyner, Mrs. James U. Kincheloe and Mrs. John Whalen; library committee, Mrs. H. N. Clarke, Miss Iva Fairfield, Mrs. H. M. F. Palmer and Miss Mary Ambler; health, Dr. E. C. Waring and Mrs. James E. Nickell; music, Mrs. J. H. Hallman, Mrs. Wilson M. Farr and Miss Olga Jensen.

The report of the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, No. 2, for last month, shows a total production of 844,335 pounds of milk and 23,030.6 pounds of butter fat for 920 cows tested. This would make an average production of 591.6 pounds of milk and 25.03 pounds of butter fat per cow.

Of the cows tested, 147 were dry, 77 were producing 40 or more pounds of butter fat and 39 were on the honor roll.

The herd of Jenkins & Wilson again leads the association with an average production of 911.6 pounds of milk and 38.7 pounds of butter fat. The herd owned by C. T. Rice, of Oakton, was a close second, with an average production of 921.3 pounds of milk and 37.34 pounds of butter fat.

A pure-bred Guernsey cow owned by B. F. Salsbury, of Merrifield, made the highest individual cow record by producing 79.7 pounds of butter fat and 1,476.1 pounds of milk. The herds owned by T. B. Mason, B. F. Salsbury, Jenkins & Wilson, C. T. Rice, A. M. Schuerman, Oscar Hileman and Kennelworth Farms all made an average production of 30 or more pounds of butter fat.

Salvation Army Officer Transferred.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 16 (Special).—Ensign and Mrs. William Hummer have been transferred from Cambridge, Md., to this city to take charge of the local work of the Salvation Army, succeeding Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Thomas, who resigned. The change is effective immediately.

CHURCH TO BE GIVEN OLD BELL CLAPPER

Object Comes From Congregation Served by Ancestor of George Washington.

IS SENT TO ALEXANDRIA

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 573.

Bishop William P. Remington, of Oregon, will preach at Christ Episcopal Church next Sunday evening, and will present to the church the clapper from the bell in the tower of the Episcopal Church at Purseigh, England, which was presented to him last summer while visiting this church.

The Rev. Lawrence Washington, the great-great-great-grandfather of George Washington, was the vicar of this church, and this clapper is being presented to the church in Alexandria of which George Washington was a vestryman. The bell, of which this clapper was a part, has rung out in acclaim at the coronation of thirteen sovereigns of England. A new clapper was placed in the bell last year, as this original one was so worn that it did not give the proper tone to the bell.

The Rev. William Jackson Morton, rector of Christ Church, made the announcement of the gift to be made the church at the service yesterday. Bishop Remington will describe his visit to England and the conditions which he found there.

Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will present several medals to students of the Alexandria High School Cadet Corps, under such conditions as the professor of military science and tactics may prescribe. One medal will be offered for the best drilled private and one for the best drilled corporal commanding a squad.

In the selection of the best drilled private, each squad from a uniformed platoon will have its best drilled private selected by its corporal as a candidate, such candidate being determined by competitive drill arranged by the squad leader after January 1, and prior to February 15, 1931.

Some time prior to March 15, 1931, the platoon leader will hold a competition among the best drilled privates so selected, one from each squad, and shall determine which one will be the candidate from his platoon.

Some time prior to April 15, the cadet captain at each school will select by competitive drill, from the best drilled candidates from the platoon, the private to represent his school.

The final stage of the competition will be at the military tournament, between the representatives from each school, the winner to be determined by the judges to be selected for the occasion. Uniformed cadets only are eligible.

In selecting the best drilled squad, some time between February 1 and March 15, the platoon leader will determine by competitive drill the best drilled squad in his platoon, and some time prior to April 15 the cadet captain will determine by competition the best drilled squad in his company. At the military tournament, which will be held about May 15, the best drilled squad from the George Mason High School will compete against the best drilled squad from the Alexandria High School, the corporal of the winning squad to receive the medal. Judges of the military tournament will render the decision.

The local post of the American Legion has taken an active interest in the cadet corps of the Alexandria High Schools, and was instrumental in having an Army officer detailed as instructor.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club has completed arrangements for its annual ladies' night celebration which will be held in the George Mason Hotel at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening. It is expected there will be 175 persons attending, including members of the club and their friends, and a few invited guests from Washington.

Special "boost" prizes will be awarded the ladies, and there will be several other attractions. The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Roger C. Sullivan, chairman; Thomas M. Jones, jr., D. C. Brook, F. Clinton Knight, Doll Zirkle and Dr. R. H. Case.

The second meeting of the George Washington Highway Association, which was recently formed at Winchester, and which has as its object the giving the name of George Washington to one of the Virginia highways, will be held at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the George Mason Hotel.

The funeral of Osha Almond, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Almond, of Hunters Station, Fairfax County, who was accidentally shot and killed Saturday, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow from Cunningham's funeral home, 809 Cameron street, and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

The recreation committee of the Alexandria Children's Home and Day Nursery will hold a silver tea Wednesday, from 3 to 5 p. m., in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, for the benefit of that institution. Mrs. Thomas A. Huffish, jr., is in charge of arrangements and will be assisted by Miss Margery Arden Hall, Miss Roberta Schneider and Miss Mary Louise Nicol.

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Two Are Held in Theft Of 500-Pound Bearing

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Robert and Earl Penwell and James Hott, of this city, were arraigned in a justice's court yesterday for the theft of a babbit-lined bearing, weighing approximately 500 pounds, from a limestone plant here earlier in the week and were held under $1,000 bond each for the action of the grand jury. Unable to furnish bond, they were sent to jail.

They were arrested in a junk dealer's yard here while trying to sell some brass alleged to be from the bearing.

Failure of Shenandoah Corn Crop Is Reported

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 16.—Devastating effects of the long drought in the Shenandoah Valley, extending since late last winter, are seen in results of corn husking here and there in northern Virginia and nearby West Virginia sections. C. W. Snyder, of Summit Point, reported today that he had gathered 20 barrels of short corn from 20 acres of land that had been well cultivated. Even worse was the experience of Thomas E. Howell, of near Engle Station, who declared he obtained only 2 barrels from 17 acres.

It was not necessary to use a truck or wagon, the huskers simply carrying the corn in sacks to the crib as they husked it.

Washington* REAL ESTATE

Offers SAFETY and PROFIT to Those Who Buy NOW . . .

*In speaking of Washington, the neighboring territories in Maryland and Virginia, whose people work and buy in Washington, are included by common understanding.

DURING the past three years Washington has been through a period of readjustment of real estate values, the result of which is that today prices are lower than at any time since the war. In the opinion of those best informed THESE LOW PRICES CAN NOT CONTINUE and the conclusion is based on many incontrovertible facts, among which are:

1. The building program of the Federal Government is now well under way and the expenditure of more than one hundred million dollars and the utilization of upward of 30 city squares has been authorized by Congress.

2. The creation of a municipal center for the local government will take out of private ownership at least four more entire squares.

3. The steady expansion of the park area, not only in the District of Columbia, but in contiguous sections of Maryland and Virginia, will further reduce the amount of land available for private ownership.

4. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States lists over four hundred national organizations with either headquarters or offices in the National Capital. Many of these have purchased land and erected monumental structures. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Geographic Society, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Federation of Labor and the National Educational Association are a few typical examples—and more are coming.

5. The great George Washington Bicentennial Celebration, running through practically the entire year of 1932, will bring to this city literally millions of visitors and give to Washington the most widespread advertising ever enjoyed by any city in history.

. . . and these are FACTS, not the visionary dream of an overenthusiastic promoter!

LOYALTY OVERDONE WOMEN ARE TOLD

Pleasing Male's Taste but One Thing, Linebarger Says in Address.

CHINA HELD ADVANCING

Loyalty to men has been overdone—both in this country and in China—but now the women of both countries are becoming wise to the fact that there are other things in the world besides pleasing the tastes of the masterly male.

Women—mostly American—applauded with delight yesterday afternoon as they heard these words from Judge Paul Linebarger, legal adviser of the national government of China. Judge Linebarger, who believes it would help solve China's economic problems if the United States came through with a loan of one thousand million ounces of silver, talked to the women in the auditorium of the National Women's Party Club, 144 B street northeast.

Putting feet into shoes three times too small was an old Chinese custom of displaying admiration for husband or sweetheart, just as it was in the case of American women who crammed their waists into a circumference several times smaller than normal, Judge Linebarger declared. But now all that has passed, he added. Women, both in America and China, are modernized—they are expanding their loyalty to all humanity rather than to just their boy friends, the speaker explained.

American women have set the model for the Chinese women, Judge Linebarger said. The Chinese women, he added, will have to advance more slowly because they have problems involved in the mass of China's population, which is one-fourth of the whole world, the speaker observed.

Chimpanzees Arrive To Aid Colds Fight

Baltimore, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Four new residents of the Johns Hopkins University Medical School, tentatively named Eeny, Meeny, Miney and Moe, have joined the school's animal colony. They are chimpanzees from 23 to 36 months old. They arrived from New York to aid a corps of specialists in research work on the symptoms, causes and possible antidote of the common cold.

Beyond admitting that the "chimps" were quite expensive, physicians at the hospital had little to say concerning them. Four more are expected within a month, it was said.

Author Supports Textile Strikers

Sherwood Anderson Talks to Union Workers in Danville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 16.—Sherwood Anderson, American author, told Danville textile strikers at a mass meeting here last night, "I hope to God you win." He was invited to speak here by labor officials who said they had heard he was a champion of the cause of labor.

"I came here," Anderson told the strikers, "in the hope that I might be able to write something that would bring your situation to the attention of the country. There is something we have in common, and that is that we are all Virginians, and Virginia has a tradition for freedom and right that makes me ashamed to know that there are men in Virginia who are not willing to grant you your rights and to deal with you fairly."

The American Red Cross was suddenly injected into the textile strike today when a committee of union men went to Alta Vista to make an inquiry into the report that the Alta Vista Chapter had told idle workers in a bankrupt textile mill that further relief would be denied them unless they came to Danville to take jobs in the local mills.

Virginia Health Group Will Meet

Session in Richmond Today to Discuss Variety of Problems.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Problems bearing on public health in Virginia will be discussed at length by the Virginia Public Health Association in a meeting to be held in the Industrial Commission here tomorrow. The meeting has been called by Dr. Ennion G. Williams, State health commissioner, who said among other things to be considered will be methods of treating problems arising from milk distribution and production in the State.

Among the speakers will be Dr. W. Brownley Foster, director of public welfare in Richmond, and Albert H. Hill, superintendent of city schools here.

There will be round-table discussions of the milk problems, led by Col. C. R. Kelley, of the State Board of Health staff, assisted by Dr. E. W. Maxey, professor of public health at the University of Virginia, and Dr. H. G. Grant, of the State Health Department.

Tropical 'Whoopee' Tales Denied by Mrs. McPherson

Evangelist Says Lemonade and Water Beverages Drunk in Cabaret.

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, returned today on the liner Tolos from a cruise in the Caribbean, still not completely recovered from her recent nervous breakdown.

As the ship was tying up to the pier, she gave her first interview since her breakdown. She charged that "some reporter" had pictured her party as drinking liquor in Canal Zone cabarets. This, she said, was false, as were rumors of difficulties with immigration authorities at the canal and Havana.

Her face thin, eyes dark-circled, she clasped and unclasped her hands as she talked, and when she reached out to take a newspaper clipping her hand shook. In moving about the deck, which was slippery from the fog, she was supported by the purser of the Tolos and her nurse. She said she had lost 38 pounds during her illness.

Her remarks supplemented a prepared statement in which she charged that newspapermen at Cristobal, to whom she had refused an interview because of her health, had threatened to "write a racy story accusing me of making whoopee."

"I presume they made good their promise," she said, adding that she had heard of one story which "insinuated everything except that I smoked a pipe."

The statement continued:

"It is true that, with other passengers we broke the long sea journey by going ashore and making a tour of the canal and the city (Cristobal). Being a sailor town, the long streets of saloons and places and types of entertainment afforded them was interesting to me as compared with the strikingly small number of churches or revival halls.

AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON.

"With other passengers of the ship, we entered several of these places as spectators, remaining only a few minutes in each. I drank water or lemonade. To state otherwise is silly, and a mere attempt to slap back at the definite stand I have always taken for temperance."

Mrs. Margaret Smith and her young son, "of New Hampshire," and a secretary accompanied Mrs. McPherson on the cruise. She was met at the pier by F. C. Winters, her business manager, who said he had planned to leave for the Pacific Coast with the party this afternoon, but because of the evangelist's condition, had decided to rest two or three days in New York. Then they expect to go directly to Los Angeles.

Man Fatally Hurt In Auto Accident

Five Others Are Injured in Crashes Around Harrisonburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 16.—J. L. Lester, 65, of Oxford, Pa., died today in the Rockingham Memorial Hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile wreck near Lacey Spring, in which his wife and a Mr. Hall, of Lincoln University, Pa., were also injured.

Mr. Lester received a crushed hip and a severe blow on the head. He died from a brain hemorrhage. Mrs. Lester received cuts about the face. Mr. Hall was only slightly injured. Mr. Lester was driving the car. As it approached the crest of a hill, he applied the brakes, which caused the car to swerve on the slippery road. It dashed up an embankment and backing down turned over. Mr. Lester and his party were on their way to Christiansburg, their former home.

Three other persons were badly injured in accidents caused primarily by the slippery condition of highways. H. C. Stafford, of New York City, lost an eye when his car plunged down an embankment near Mount Crawford. His car was wrecked. Emery and Owen Shifflet, of Rockingham County, were badly injured when their car skidded on the Elkton pike and hit a telephone pole. Emery Shifflet is still in an unconscious condition in the hospital.

$200,000 to Be Asked For Blue Ridge Road

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Nov. 16.—That he expects to ask Congress at the convening of the winter session for an appropriation of $100,000 to build a road from President Hoover's fishing lodge on the Rapidan River along the top of the Blue Ridge dividing Madison and Rappahannock Counties from Page County to "Panorama," a summer resort 7 miles east of Luray, is the outlined program of W. E. Carson, chairman of the Virginia Conservation and Development Commission. Mr. Carson is sure that he will get the appropriation.

If the road is built according to Mr. Carson's ideas it will pass along the backbone of Blue Ridge for a distance of 12 or 15 miles and will command a scenic view of great beauty.

West Virginia Health Group Meeting Is Set

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Plans have been completed for holding the fifth annual meeting of the West Virginia Public Health Association and Health Officers' Conference, which will be held here November 20-22.

Speakers will include Dr. W. R. Redden, New York; Prof. Ira V. Hiscock, Yale, University; Dr. R. H. Riley, Maryland State health commissioner, and Dr. Clarence E. Smith, Washington. Prof. Hiscock will conduct a special school of instruction for health workers. The West Virginia Health Council, the medical licensing board of the State, will meet here at the same time to examine applicants for licenses to practice medicine.

Starving Hikre Faints Leaving Police Station

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 16.—A youth who claims his home is in New York and that he is on his way back came to the police station last night for a night's lodging. He said he had not had anything to eat for three days and that, with the exception of about 40 miles, he had walked all the way from Florida to Petersburg. He had been employed in Florida picking oranges, he said, and had been robbed of all he possessed.

Money sufficient to buy him food was given him and he started off for a restaurant. As he left the station he fainted just outside of the building. First-aid treatment was given him and police sent for food. After eating the meal he was given a night's lodging.

Taxes on Real Estate Increase in Jefferson

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 16.—Taxes on real estate in Jefferson County, W. Va., are more than three times as large now as they were 57 years ago, according to some old receipts in possession of Henry Dutrow, of Summit Point.

He exhibited what he called a curiosity in the form of a tax receipt found among effects of his father, the late Jacob Dutrow, showing that in 1873 he paid a tax of $54.85 on his farm. The amount paid on the same farm last year was $174.47.

POLITICAL UPHEAVAL LAID TO TAX SYSTEM

Bowen Claims Confiscatory Policy Responsible for West Virginia Results.

LAUDS VIRGINIA METHOD

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 16.—The political upheaval in West Virginia, during which M. M. Neely was elected to the United States Senate by 130,000 majority, was caused by the confiscatory State tax system, it was declared today by Col. Samuel E. Bowen, of Charleston, Democratic delegate-elect to the lower branch of the West Virginia Legislature, who is the guest of J. O. T. Sellers here.

Col. Sellers predicted that the new Virginia tax plan will form the model by which West Virginia Democrats will attempt to reform the tax system of that State. Col. Sellers made tax reform his paramount issue in the election. He was elected by 3,000 majority in a district, Kanawha County, which is normally Republican by 15,000.

Victory of Democrats.

"More than 48,000 homes and farms were forfeited to the State in 1928 because the owners could not pay the taxes," said Col. Sellers. "Farm and home owners have suffered the heaviest.

"The extent of this revolt against this confiscatory tax system can be judged by the fact that West Virginia has been normally Republican since 1892. On November 4 the big Republican majorities in that State were overturned, and the Democrats elected M. M. Neely to the United States Senate by 130,000 and elected 68 members of the Legislature. In my judgment, the tax system was the prime cause of this revolt.

Follow Virginia Policy.

"The result of this election is most reassuring to local capital and it will serve to revive business in my State, which has been temporarily halted by a confiscatory and paralyzing tax system. The Democratic leaders are now studying Virginia's equitable plan, and I presume it will be the center of our plans to reform the tax system in West Virginia when the next Legislature meets. Our constitution is modeled after Virginia's, and now we are looking to the mother State for a plan to remodel our tax system and take the tax burden from our people."

Virginia's new tax system, installed during the Byrd administration, has for its objective the abolition of duplication of State and local taxes. Under it the State abolished the 25-cent State tax per $100 assessed valuation on all farm lands, homes and personal property, leaving those subjects of taxation for local purposes only. It is estimated that approximately $2,000,000 a year was saved farms and homes in taxes by the abolition of this State tax.

Price of Turkeys Reaches Low Ebb

Thanksgiving Fowl Will Retail for 30 Cents Per Pound.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 16.—With the turkey market at its lowest point in 20 years, the Thanksgiving fowl this year will provide the cheapest meat to be found, instead of being a luxury as usual. This condition is of great benefit to the city dwellers but works an extreme hardship on the already hard-hit farmers, many of whom depend upon their sideline turkey crop to pay the Christmas bill and to buy clothing.

Local produce dealers predict that dressed Thanksgiving turkey will sell in the cities for less than 30 cents per pound and that the wholesale price will drop below 20 cents, an almost unprecedented situation.

The farm wife who, in nine cases out of ten, tends to the turkey flock, loses money when the price falls below 25 cents here. Huge crops of turkeys in the West and bountiful crops wherever turkeys are raised are blamed for the collapse of the turkey market. Harrisonburg, the largest poultry market in the East, already has shipped coop after coop of live turkeys and barrel after barrel of dressed fowl for the Thanksgiving trade in the Northern cities.

Government Donated Battlefield Park Land

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 16.—The United States Government has been donated by the Douglas Wooten Land Corporation, of Prince George, a tract of land containing about seven acres in that county for the Petersburg National Military Battlefield Park.

The land is located between the Norfolk highway and Birdsong road. I. V. Colston, resident engineer of the park, has a group of men at work clearing the land in the vicinity of Battery 5.

Man Is Held in Attack On Wife, 18, of Another

Martinsburg, W. V., Nov. 16.—James S. Bartley, a Young County man, was held here yesterday on a charge of criminal assault upon Mrs. Lillie Belle Nicewarner, 18-year-old wife of Charles Nicewarner.

The attack is alleged to have occurred in the Bartley home, where the Nicewarners have been staying, during the absence of the husband, who made the complaint when he was advised of the affair by his wife.

Humorist to Speak Before Pen Women

Strickland Gillilan Will Appear on Program of Celebrities.

Strickland Gillilan, humorist and author, will address the League of American Pen Women on "Celebrity—Painless and Otherwise," at a meeting of the organization to be held at noon Saturday in the Willard Hotel. Mr. Gillilan's column, "Washington Wash," appears daily in The Washington Post.

Other speakers on the program, which will open a series of "celebrity breakfasts," will be the Ambassador of Chile, Dr. Don Carlos G. Davila; Mrs. Sallie V. H. Pickett, Mrs. Minnegerode Andrews, Dr. Henry Clay Risner, and Mrs. Harriet Doan Prentiss, of Philadelphia, author of "In Harmony With Life." Mrs. Grace Zaring Stone and Mrs. Eugene E. Peters, both well-known authors of this city, will be among the guests of honor.

Mr. Gillilan, formerly of Baltimore, is the author of "Including Finnigin," which gave to the world the constantly quoted line, "Off again, on again, gone again, Finnigin." He is past president of the American Press Humorists and is a contributor to the National Capital Magazine, recently established here.

Power Firm Authorized To Extend Light Lines

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 16.—A franchise has been granted by the Jefferson County Court at Charles Town, W. Va., to the Northern Virginia Power Co., Winchester, subsidiary of the Potomac Edison Co., to extend its electric power and lighting lines over a number of public roads in that county. It will enable the company to supply large numbers of rural farming communities with electricity for lighting and power purposes.

The franchise authorizes the company to construct lines on several roads north of Charles Town, and also from Shenandoah Junction, Shepherdstown, Middleway, Kearneysville, Summit Point, Bloomery and other sections. The court, however, deferred action on the application for a franchise on certain other roads.

WET AND DRY PROSPECTS.

Several facts and probabilities are emerging in regard to the prohibition controversy:

The election of November 4, while it will result in an increase of wet votes in the Seventy-second Congress, has not changed the complexion of either house. Both are dry by heavy majorities and will remain so until March 4, 1933.

The drys are on the defensive, largely because of lack of leadership.

The wets are aggressive, but are not united upon any plan.

The Law Enforcement Commission will not recommend repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but it seems to be divided in regard to the Volstead act.

Unless the recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission are unanimous they will have little influence upon Congress.

Without regard to any recommendation by the commission, the Seventy-first Congress will be asked to make increased appropriations to enforce the law.

It seems probable that a controversy will arise this winter over prohibition appropriations. Pending the time when the majority of Congress will be wet, the wet minority may be expected to oppose increased appropriations, or any appropriations at all, for enforcement of the Volstead act. A filibuster against the bill containing appropriations for prohibition enforcement may develop if the bill is delayed until late in the session.

A successful filibuster, compelling the President to call an extra session, would be to the advantage of the wets, who will have increased representation in the Seventy-second Congress and will therefore more aggressively oppose prohibition appropriations.

The duty of Congress to make provision for enforcement of the laws is as imperative as the duty of the President to enforce them. Until the Volstead act is repealed Congress must make appropriations to enforce it.

COPPER REGULATION.

The farmer is not the only one who feels the effect of overproduction. The rubber planter struggled along after the war with prices for his product standing at levels lower than the production cost, simply because too much crude was dumped on the markets every month. The oil industry is seeking means to equalize production with demand, to the end that prices may be raised to a level that will make possible profitable operation. In almost every field of production, the great impetus to demand that was given by the war and by the subsequent boom era made it necessary to step up the wheels of production, and when demand slackened there was left a production machine geared up to a point that caused it to throw the whole distribution system out of adjustment. Radical readjustments are called for, but it has not proved easy to articulate production and demand.

World copper interests this week reached an agreement to reduce the output of their mines about 20,000 tons a month, in the hope that the reduction would bring about a balance between production and demand. Those entering into the agreement produce about 90 per cent of the world's copper and although a reduction of 20,000 tons a month will do no more than balance production with demand, it is believed that opportunities will arise from time to time to dispose of the surplus of the metal now in hand. In 1929 copper reached a high price of 24 cents a pound. In October of this year it reached a low level of 9½ cents; but the announcement of the curtailment agreement had the immediate effect of stiffening the price.

If the copper interests should be able to work in concert along these lines the industry will be rescued from its present serious situation. But there is always the danger in limitation programs that, when the price begins to show improvement, groups or individuals will increase production to take advantage of the improved price. The British rubber restriction scheme broke down because Dutch planters increased their production when the price improved. The Brazilian coffee valorization scheme ended in disaster because neighboring producers expanded their acreage as Brazilian acreage was withdrawn from cultivation. Copper is produced in Canada, South America, Africa and elsewhere. Sixty per cent of the world supply is produced outside the United States. If producers will generally limit their output, the curtailment scheme agreed upon this week should work. If, however, producers begin to take advantage of the improved price and increase their output, the experiment will end in disaster.

LEGGE SHOULD STAY.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, wants to resign. No one can blame him. He has had a most difficult row to hoe in attempting to carry out the provisions of the agricultural marketing act. His policies, the board, and he himself have been abused by farmers and politicians. Moreover, when he came to Washington at financial sacrifice he agreed to stay only a year. The year has elapsed and Mr. Legge feels that he is entitled to be relieved of his onerous duties. But in view of the present troublous state in which agriculture finds itself it may be hoped that Mr. Legge can be prevailed upon to stick it out a little longer. He is needed in Washington.

Whether or not the agricultural marketing act will eventually result in improving the position of agriculture, certainly it has not had a beneficial effect thus far. Farm prices are lower than they have been in years. Surpluses are still being produced, although the drought had the effect of reducing the production of certain commodities this season. In the final analysis it will be found impossible permanently to improve the position of agriculture until and unless individual farmers adjust production to demand. In this project the cooperative movement, fostered and nurtured by the Farm Board, must play a dominant role.

Because agriculture is still in the doldrums, the insurgent-Democratic farm bloc in Congress stands ready to renew the agitation for the panaceas that were turned down in earlier sessions. Senators Borah, Norris and Brookhart propose to get behind new export debenture legislation. It is not unlikely that the equalization fee will come in for another airing during the winter. These schemes are, of course, economically unsound, but they make an appeal to the farmer as well as to the politician. In an era of unsettled economic conditions there is always a disposition to experiment with legislation of this nature. A man versed in sound economic principles, a man of courage and ability, will be needed this winter to lead the attack upon the debenture. Mr. Legge is better equipped than any other to assume this burden. It is to be hoped that he will reconsider his decision to retire.

WASHINGTON TAXES.

It is evident that Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, proposes to play a prominent part in the affairs of the special House committee appointed to consider matters of fiscal policy as affecting the District. "The amount of money appropriated by the Federal Government," says Mr. Frear, "should never enter into the question of fiscal relations. District taxpayers should pay a fair tax, and every cost above the revenue produced by that fair tax should be paid by the Federal Treasury."

Theoretically, this is a good basis upon which to tackle the difficult problem of fiscal relationship. The people of Washington have no desire to shirk their just responsibility for the maintenance of the local government. But, in the past, when attempts have been made to ascertain exactly what constitutes a "fair" tax, charges have always been made against local taxpayers that should have been made aginst the Government.

Because the District is the seat of the Government it is necessary and proper that it should be developed and maintained on an elaborate scale. The local park system is and should be far more extensive than the park system of any other city of comparable size. The street and highway system is and should be more extensive than the system of any other city. It is proper that a part of the cost of building and maintaining parks and highways should be charged against the Federal Treasury. Because of the large number of Government buildings situated in Washington it is necessary that the local police and fire departments be larger than the police and fire departments of other cities. The Government should share the cost of maintaining these services. The schools, the water system and, in fact, almost every branch, activity and department of the local government is affected by the fact that Washington is the seat of the National Government.

Generally when attempts have been made to establish a "fair" tax, the basis has been an attempted comparison between the local tax rate and tax rates obtaining in cities of comparable size. In all probability Representative Frear has such a comparison in mind when he says that District taxpayers should be called upon to pay only a fair tax. The tax rate elsewhere, however, has no possible bearing on the fairness of the tax rate in Washington. Other cities may be graft-ridden; their governments may be inefficient or corrupt. Because tax rates are high in other cities is no reason why the tax rate should be boosted in Washington.

It is to be hoped that Representative Frear will prove himself a friend of Washington in the special fiscal committee of the House. The make-up of the committee indicates that Washington will need a friend during the discussions if a report at all fair or just is to be rendered.

THE GREAT CHEESE MYSTERY.

On the heads of British farm wives is placed the burden of blame for the declining quality of Cheshire cheese, in the making of which England enjoys a practical monopoly. Experts say that the quality of Cheshire cheese is governed by the quantity of cream in the milk from which it is made and since the cream content of the milk from British cows remains fairly constant, there has been somewhat of a mystery as to why the quality of the famed cheese has not been up to standard of late. Now the truth comes out! It is said that British farm wives have succumbed as have women everywhere to the lure of auction and contract bridge, and that they have been skimming the cream from the milk set aside for cheese-making to make into butter, which they sell to pay their bridge losses.

If only the bridge craze would spread to Switzerland one of the grave problems of the Department of Agriculture might be settled. In recent years the United States has been consuming about 36,000,000 pounds of "Swiss" cheese annually, about half of which has been imported. There is a tendency, however, for the imports to increase in volume at the expense of the domestic Swiss-cheese industry and this is what is worrying the department. In the five-year period 1920-1924, the total Swiss cheese production of the United States averaged about 22,000,000 pounds a year, but in the five-year period 1925-1929 it averaged somewhat less than 20,000,000 pounds. One of the chief reasons why the American production of Swiss-type cheese is in a less favorable position than Switzerland Swiss cheese in the American market, says the department, is that the imported product is of higher average quality than the domestic product.

If only the Swiss farm wives would take to playing bridge, adopting the expedient of skimming the cream from the milk set aside for cheese making to pay their bridge losses, the disparity in the quality of the domestic product might be eliminated. But the department is not willing to wait for the bridge craze to sweep Switzerland. Carefully explaining that "the high quality of the imported Swiss cheese is not the result of the sweet mountain grasses on which the cows feed nor of the pure mountain air which they breathe," and adding that "there is no scientific basis for the supposition that such factors determine the quality of cheese," the department explains that the important factors are "the quality of milk used and the control of bacterial development in the cheese during manufacture and ripening." Firm in the belief that the American cow is ready to produce milk of a quality equal to that produced by the cows of Switzerland or, for that matter, any other nation, the department, through its cheese scientists and research experts, offers the American cheese industry "new manufacturing processes and scientific methods which will enable it to compete more successfully with the Swiss producers." It may be hoped that the industry will embrace the new method. If it doesn't, and the department is sincere in its desire to keep America out of a war to protect its Swiss cheese industry, the only expedient will be to draft Milton Work and Sidney Lenz and set them loose to do their dirty work in Switzerland.

GERMANY AT LOW TIDE

By George N. Shuster, in the Commonweal.

Even yet Germany does not look poor. A nation, the political affairs of which are in a state of literally indescribable chaos, nevertheless manages to keep its ageing buildings in decent repair, to dress its children soberly and to go about its business with normal earnestness. But evidences of business depression can not be hidden away. Though the German trade balance for September shows a considerable excess of exports over imports, the reason is entirely due to lessened domestic purchasing power. Almost every large enterprise is relatively stagnant. Tax receipts have diminished to such an extent that the recession to be expected during the coming year is estimated at a billion marks. Hand in hand with this is an increasing tendency to place funds outside Germany. That means a lack of confidence in the economic future of the country and an unwillingness to share its destiny.

Loss of confidence is the key to current political happenings. The Reichstag opened with a virtual thunderstorm. Not a few disorderly incidents revealed the drift of public opinion to extreme conclusions. The Communists are by all odds the most colorful offenders. Day in and day out they bombard the government with protests and catcalls. Their meetings end constantly in brushes with the police, during which shots are fired and beer bottles thrown. Almost every morning the newspapers report some clash between the supporters of Hitler and the still more belligerent disciples of Karl Marx.

The strength of the Hitlerite party lies in its ability to recruit youth dissatisfied with many things, and unwilling above all to face ten more years such as those just past, without the promise of tangible results. It is the danger of a possibly Communistic Germany which just now gives one concern. And from this point of view, at least, Herr Hitler is a blessing.

The gap between the extremes is perilously narrow. Gone, for the time being, is Germany's old "liberal" party which had given Stresemann to his country and the world. Some of the factions of the right are moderate only because they are not yet willing to adopt a Fascist program; the Social-Democratic party is moderate only because of its opposition to the Communist scheme. The only genuinely effective spokesmen for what we may term "democratic liberalism" yet remaining are the Centrists. Round them the groups willing to conserve the existing form of government have rallied, giving Chancellor Bruening the opportunity to undertake a possibly final defense of the regime.

It is an interesting situation, the international effects of which may be tremendous. We are virtually witnessing the evolution of a country which is being supported by foreign credit in order to enable it to meet its obligations. Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted, and the experiment may fail. For the moment, however, the moral effect is perhaps most worth watching. The recrudescence of a "nationalism of despair" expressing itself in willingness to repudiate obligations and to risk war, has built round about itself a whole moral philosophy. Just now Germany seems to be a place in which everything is under discussion and everything under fire. None the less, as has been said, the stairways are scrubbed, the clothes mended, the children got off to school. Fundamentally, the German is still the best regulated—and most regular—citizen in the world.

AMERICA'S AIR TRAFFIC.

A generally accepted belief is that the United States lags behind Europe in air passenger travel, observes the Boston Transcript. But notice these comparisons: In February, while 1,388 were arriving and departing from London's huge airport at Croydon, 7,373 flew in and out of the airport at Tulsa, Okla. While 1,850 arrived at or departed from Le Bourget, the Paris airport, 3,136 came in or out of the Chicago airport. While Tempelhof, Berlin, was host to 658, Boston was host to 770. European air lines have been carrying passengers for ten years; American lines are very recent. Paris and Berlin are great centers where many lines converge and a passenger on a through trip would be counted twice. Boston, by comparison, has one line to New York. Also, it would be noted that Berlin has a population of over 4,000,000, while metropolitan Boston has less than 2,000,000.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE BLACK SHEEP.

Why they never understood
They had labored for his good,
Led him through his days of youth
Always to the paths of truth.
Yet when he burned temptation's flame
Often he was lured to shame.

Him they never understood,
Naught was told them so they could,
Strange they thought it he should be
So unlike his ancestry.
Back for years his kith and kin
Had remained unshamed by sin.

Never were they reconciled
To this wayward, careless child.
Never could they understand
Why he heeded no command;
Why in matters, great and small,
He was different from them all.

When he died the mourners near
Couldn't see and couldn't hear.
But below the dust was stirred
And a friendly willow heard,
One long dead to memory,
Whispering: "He was just like me."

It's a Poor Charity That Provides a Banquet Instead of Daily Bread.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE truly great are those who serve the world as fly wheels.

The function of a fly wheel, as you know, is to regulate and continue momentum and thus prevent jerks and jolts.

The power that drives the machinery of civilization is the ambition generated by discontent. It is a tremendous power, and when fired by enthusiasm it threatens to run wild and wreck the machine. The fly-wheel men are those who harness ambition and conserve its energy through the years and thus prevent the tragedies that would result when enthusiasts make sudden starts and as suddenly stop.

Enthusiasm is dangerous. It is power without control, like powder that flashes in a pan.

Its very nature shortens its life, for it is a kind of frenzy—an abnormality similar to rage and fear.

The enthusiast leads a forlorn hope to conquer a city and then is bored by the prosaic business of administration. He achieves great things that surpass the dreams of conservative men, but the very intensity of his effort exhausts his interest and when the excitement is over he travels on in quest of new adventure and leaves to fly-wheel men the task of consolidating his gains.

Enthusiasm is blind. It sees only the thing it wishes to see. It achieves much by risking much. It goes off half-cocked. To trust it is to find yourself a thousand miles from anywhere with an empty gas tank.

The abnormality of a genius consists wholly in his ability to keep enthusiasm alive. His natural state is one of frenzy. His excitement never cools. He alone can be trusted despite enthusiam, for he never burns out when a task is half done.

The ordinary man must avoid enthusiasm as he would a fever. It will prompt him to build an orphanage and then leave the orphans to starve. It will pledge him to a degree of righteousness beyond his powers and leave him an easy prey to temptation when the reaction comes. It is the quality that makes shouting converts at a camp meeting and leaves them depressed and cynical when the fever cools.

Do not trust it. In every instance it is followed by reaction.

When enthusiasm offers plans for the day, study them carefully and ask yourself whether you could follow them tomorrow, also, and every tomorrow.

The first to drop out of the race are those who set a pace they can't keep.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Al Smith, Columnist.
New York Times.

New York's former governor is soon to join that choir invisible but audible which writes a newspaper column. He has contracted to supply once a week an article of "from 1,000 to 1,500 words" on any subject that interests him. Former President Coolidge is writing his views daily; actors and radio broadcasters are doing the same thing. Not one of these could have worthier observations than the always informed Mr. Smith.

His good sense was never better revealed than in his contract to do a piece once a week instead of daily. It is difficult, even for professional journalists, to interest the reading public in their comment every day. Amateurs, however distinguished, usually begin with a large and expectant following, which shrinks to a few faithful after lumps of quartz begin to occur more frequently than nuggets. In due time the daily column's sacred first page position is lost in the shuffle of real news, and a little while later the distinguished contributor turns to other work. Mr. Smith's weekly efforts should have a longer life.

A Great Big If.
Christian Science Monitor.

If both major parties pull toward the same constructive goal, the even division of their strength in the newly elected Congress will mean merely smoother teamwork.

Fears Congress Disturbance.
Philadelphia Inquirer.

This country needs a long period free from congressional disturbance and uncertainty. There would be rejoicing in industrial and business circles from border to border, from ocean to ocean, if it were definitely known that the coming short session of Congress would devote itself to the passage of the appropriation and unemployment relief measures and not plunge into noisy disputes over highly controversial subjects such as debentures for exported farm products, attacks upon the Farm Board, amendments to the tariff law now. Give the Nation a chance to recover from depression. Also the Farm Board and the tariff schedules ample opportunity to operate.

Welcome Back, Jim!
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What'ye Mean, Broke?
Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. Hoover broke the solid South even better than his party first thought.

Home Runs.
Detroit News.

"Later returns" broke up as many contests this year as Babe Ruth.

Busy Brookhart.
Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, worked harder than most other senators during the fall campaign, although he was not up for reelection.

He went out in the woods and chopped down trees to provide fuel for the poor. In case the poor do not happen to need the trees, the senator can take them back to Washington and do a little log rolling.

Another Victory and We Are Lost.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

Some one has discovered that the election was a vindication of the administration. It sure can't stand many more vindications like that.

Those Ohio Senators.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Being a senator from Ohio seems to be almost as precarious a job as being a capitalist in Soviet Russia. With the election of Robert J. Bulkley five men have been called on to serve out one six-year term. And who can tell what will happen to Mr. Bulkley in the remaining two years of that term?

If Ohio keeps on this way, she will have as many citizens sporting the title "Senator" as neighboring Kentucky has colonels.

More Jobless.
Elizabethtown News.

The unemployment situation now is about as bad in Congress as anywhere else.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Copper Proration Agreement Not Intended to Boost Price Beyond Legitimate Demand.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Upon receipt of the announcement that the copper producers had agreed to prorate the production of copper down to 20,000 tons a month, the price of copper advanced to 11 cents a pound and some forecasters, on the strength of an increased demand from abroad, predicted that it would reach 12 cents a pound within the next 24 hours. Wall street, that incorrigible "copy cat" of all reactions and emotions, became "bullish," and metal and copper stocks went up.

Operators in all lines of business are often wrongly accused of spreading deceiving news for their own benefit at the expense of the public. The real trouble lies in the fact that the public fails to understand the meaning of the news. Investors and speculators who wished to buy copper stocks on the strength of the proration agreement, in the hope of making a gigantic quick turnover, are liable to be greatly disappointed.

A proration agreement is an instrument drafted for the purpose of cutting down production with a view of bringing about a stabilization of prices during a depression period. When the copper producers signed the proration agreement they did not do it with the intention of bringing a sudden "copper rush," and it would be a direct insult to their intelligence to so believe. They did it as a means of sheer existence, to bridge over the depression period. While this agreement might be instrumental in preventing further sharp drops, it certainly will not bring a big advance in the price per pound. We must remember that the law of supply and demand, which is as old as Adam and Eve, is still operating. This proration, like the oil proration, was designed with a view of bringing down the supply to the demand, and not to create an artificial demand, which would be a physical impossibility.

ECONOMIST.

One Aspect of Unemployment That Makes Home Owners Wonder.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Are not the President and District authorities in danger of slopping over in this matter of the jobless? Are not the jobless somewhat at fault? Let me give you an illustration or two that have come under my own observation. I have a friend who is a home owner. He read in the papers the articles urging home owners to make repairs now and thus aid the jobless. He thought he would have some painting done.

A painter applied for work, saying he had not had any work for three months. My friend showed him the work he was contemplating having done. The painter said it would take three days. On being asked what wages he wanted he replied, $11 a day. The owner said he was only receiving $6 a day, and it would take two days of his wage to pay the painter for one, and asked him if he could not afford to work cheaper. He replied that he would not work under the schedule. He was not engaged.

Another friend employed a painter and carpenter to do some repairs on his house. After beginning work the painter struck because the carpenter was a nonunion man. Both were among the jobless.

At least 2,000 women in Washington are doing their own housework who would employ a maid were it not for the demands made by domestic workers. They demand $10, $12 or $15 a week, and car fare, one day off, no Sunday work, no laundry. One of my friends employed a maid, who, after working three days, quit because the employer would not give her two lamb chops every day for lunch.

Many home owners earn only $5 or $6 a day, and they can not afford to pay $10 or $11 a day to have painting done. Hence they do that work themselves in odd hours.

A HOME OWNER.

Statement That All Money Is Redeemable in Gold Is Disputed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Altruist" writes The Post, in re the loan of a billion ounces of silver to China by the United States: "There is a way it could be done. * * * We have * * * a mountain of 539,959,520 silver dollars stored in the Treasury * * * to redeem * * * silver certificates. Who ever heard, or will ever hear, of a silver certificate being redeemed in silver? All our money is redeemable in gold."

This is misinformation. The "539,959,520" outstanding silver certificates are not redeemable in gold. Take one of the silver certificates to the Treasury and see if you can get gold for it. The paying teller will ask you: "Can you read?" If you can, he'll say, "Read what's printed on the face of that note."

All our money payable in gold, is it? How about the $65,000,000,000 of bank credits? Is this credit money payable in gold? Why, there is not enough minted gold and silver, gold bullion, bar silver, gold notes, greenbacks and silver certificates in the United States today to pay off the $65,000,000,000 of credit money.

"Old Voter" Predicts That Republican Party Will Be Dry "Perforce."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Notwithstanding your apt and enjoyable editorial in regard to Democratic advisers of the Republican party, I make bold to say that the G. O. P.'s best bet will be a bone-dry plank in the platform of 1932. The Raskobian wetness of Democracy in 1928 had as much to do with the election of Hoover as anything else. The Republican party was dry, while the Democratic party was wet. It is proper to consider them so classified until a realignment, if any, is made.

Why any but a hopeless G. O. P. wet should hesitate I can't make out. In the Anti-saloon League and nearly all the great church organizations the party of great moral ideas is supported by a mighty phalanx united for a single purpose, for dryness. And these people are not likely to be fooled by political claptrap. Side-stepping and smoke-screening in accordance with light-wine-and-beer pussyfooting by a law enforcement commission will do no good. Which is as much as to say that the Grand Old Party is dry perforce.

CHINESE REDS DEFY NATIONALISTS' DRIVE

Continue to Loot Towns and Fire on Shipping, Despite Soldiers' Efforts.

CHANGSHA IN JEOPARDY

Shanghai, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Attempts of the Nationalist Government to crush the roving bands of Communists, which for months have ravaged the central provinces of China, appeared today to have met many more obstacles than were anticipated.

The Nationalists a fortnight ago, on conclusion of the civil war against the alliance of northern war lords, sent 100,000 soldiers into the provinces and predicted suppression of the outlaws within a few months. Despite this action, dispatches today said that throughout the greater part of Kiangsi and Hunan provinces the Reds were roaming freely in groups numbering far into the thousands, capturing and looting town after town, kidnaping any one worth while, paralyzing trade and causing missionaries to seek safety in the major cities.

Cannon Menace Shipping.

An exception was a small part of northwest Kiangsi, where pressure from soldiers caused the Reds to retreat westward into northeast Hunan. All over the latter province, the Communists apparently were holding a carnival of outlawry. Most of Hupeh province likewise reported similar conditions.

Along the Yangtse River, the Communists' muzzle-loading cannon continued to fire upon passing steamers, constituting a menace to navigation. Nationalist gunboats which were selected to conduct a campaign against the Red cannonaders on shore, like the military appear to be having difficulties in effectively opposing the Red strongholds. A majority of the Chinese craft were tied up at the river ports and indications they were planning to engage the Communists soon were lacking.

Scope of Depredations.

Nanking's military apparently has not been able to oppose the elusive Reds effectively. Today the Communist may boldly uphold the Red cause, while tomorrow, if necessity demands, he may appear to be a peaceful farmer, thereby causing the troops to search blindly the countryside for an invisible enemy.

Changsha, Honan province, was reported to be menaced again by the Red legions which were within 15 miles of the city gates. The Changsha-Wuchang Railway has been cut below Yochow, where a strong body of Reds was operating. Virtually every other city of any importance in Hunan was reported suffering from the Communist menace, which has resulted in many of the wealthier inhabitants evacuating to Hankow.

Similar conditions existed throughout Hupeh and southern Honan provinces, while the provinces of Anhwie, Fukien and parts of Kiangsu and Chekiang were also feeling the Red depredations intermittently.

Chicago's Lofty Ceres Will Get Face Washed

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Chicago's topmost face, and also one of its grimiest, is soon to be washed. The face belongs to Ceres, goddess of grain and harvests, whose perch above the observation tower of the Chicago Board of Trades Building is the loftiest point in the city.

Peter J. Niemann, exchange headquarters supervisor for the Board of Trade, has been nominated to restore the dazzling shine to Ceres. He has devised a permanently fixed sandblaster, automatically operated by strong air pressure. The unique machine is planned to bathe the aluminum goddess so quickly and completely, Mr. Niemann says, that Ceres will change color before the eyes of onlookers within 20 seconds.

Jewish Deputies Score Zion Policy

Action Taken as Debate in House of Commons on Issue Looms.

London, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—In view of the coming debate on Palestine in the House of Commons, the Board of Deputies, known as the "Parliament of British Jews," today adopted a resolution condemning the recently announced Palestine policy of the British government.

The resolution said "the policy outlined in the White paper on Palestine is contrary to the spirit of the mandate and a breach of the public pledges made in the name of England by successive British governments" and that the Board of Deputies "welcomes the pronouncements, written and spoken, of leading statesmen of the Conservative party, Mr. Lloyd George and Gen. Smuts, to the same effect."

The British Colonial office recently announced restrictions must be placed on Jewish immigration into Palestine. The announcement stirred the Jews in America and Europe to indignant protests. They contended the restrictions were in violation of the Balfour declaration recognizing Palestine as the Jewish homeland, and a "betrayal" of pledges made to Jewish leaders who accepted the British government's promises.

Artist Files Suit Because of Arrest

Winter Residents at Miami Beach Named in Action for $100,000.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hirsch, Chicago, winter residents of Miami Beach, yesterday were named defendants in a $100,000 suit filed by attorneys for Harmon Neill, portrait painter. Neill's attorneys said the suit is based on alleged false arrest and imprisonment of their client last June at request of the defendants.

The suit stated Neill was commissioned to paint a portrait of Mrs. Hirsch for $500, that the plaintiff refused to deliver it before it was completed, and that he was paid only $250.

Neill was arrested later on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and released on a writ of habeas corpus. He later was acquitted of the charge.

Fierce Storm Lashes Chicago Lake Region

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—A general warning to Lake Michigan shipping was sent out today, as a 40-mile gale lashed the Chicago shore line. Small boats moored along the western shore were smashed.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, of the local weather bureau, said he believed the main path of the storm would pass north of Chicago. Capt. John Anderson, of the Central Coast Guard, however, thought the storm might strike the Chicago area full force.

DO-X MAY NOT FLY TO U.S. TILL SPRING

Dornier Considers Weather Is Likely to Make Feat Unduly Hazardous.

FRENCH COUNSEL DELAY

Bordeaux, France, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Claude Dornier, designer and builder of the giant seaplane DO-X, announced here today that weather conditions might prevent a transatlantic flight before spring. He insisted, however, that the engines had given entire satisfaction on the trip toward Lisbon and said the final decision regarding an oceanic crossing will be made there.

French experts declared last night that a transatlantic flight now might be hazardous, because the DO-X's motors had not been turning as well as was expected.

Will Be Due to Weather.

"We do not want to attempt anything unreasonable," Dr. Dornier told the Associated Press, "but should the transatlantic flight be postponed until spring, it will be due only to unfavorable weather and not because of any lack of confidence in the motors or the boat.

"Our motors thus far have given us entire satisfaction. If we were forced to alight on water off the Vendee Coast, it was because darkness was coming on and also fog—our bitterest transatlantic enemy. We felt safer on the surface than aloft. I believe the fact that the DO-X taxied a hundred miles on the water, to shelter behind the Isle de Re, was quite a performance."

The DO-X remained in the Gironne Estuary today instead of coming up to Bordeaux. Tomorrow the plane will fly over Bordeaux with officials and newspaper men aboard. Present plans call for departure Tuesday for Lisbon.

Holds It Difficult Feat.

"Dr. Dornier believes it would be difficult to negotiate the first leg of a transatlantic flight from Lisbon to Horta in the Azores on a short winter day. Especially, he believes, the flight from the Azores to Bermuda would be difficult, requiring several hours of night flying. He insisted, however, that the idea of a transatlantic cruise this winter had not been abandoned.

Paris, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—A big, four-motored German hydroplane of the DO-X type alighted in the Seine at Suresnes, just outside Paris, today after flying from Havre in an hour. This plane will be exhibited at the coming aeronautical salon here.

Air Minister Eynac announced that besides containing aviation units designed for the defense of France, the salon will exhibit new methods of manufacture calculated to increase safety in the air.

French Fliers Take Off On Trip to Madagascar

CONFIDENCE VOTED KEMAL IN TURKEY

Retains Parliament Control, After Fight, by Vote of 225 to 10.

SHOUT OPPOSITION DOWN

Istanboul, Turkey, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Mustaphia Kemal Pasha today retained his control of Parliament after a hot battle in the Assembly at Angora last night. The Parliament expressed confidence in the government by a vote of 225 to 10.

Fethi Bey, opposition leader, opened the fight with an attack on Kemal's minister of interior. He said the minister had not allowed the citizens to vote freely in the recent municipal elections.

"You want to kill the opposition party, fearing free opposition will bathe the nation in blood," cried Fethi Bey.

Members of Parliament shouted him down, however. The vote of confidence was taken on a question of the minister of interior's worthiness.

Bad Weather Thwarts Junior Record Take-Off

Newark, N. J., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Bad weather today prevented Gerald P. Littleton, 20-year-old Toledo, Ohio, aviator, from taking off in his attempt to break the East-West junior transcontinental flight record.

On the basis of weather reports, airport officials believed the storm would prevent a take-off tomorrow also.

WET AND DRY PROSPECTS.

Several facts and probabilities are emerging in regard to the prohibition controversy:

The election of November 4, while it will result in an increase of wet votes in the Seventy-second Congress, has not changed the complexion of either house. Both are dry by heavy majorities and will remain so until March 4, 1933.

The drys are on the defensive, largely because of lack of leadership.

The wets are aggressive, but are not united upon any plan.

The Law Enforcement Commission will not recommend repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but it seems to be divided in regard to the Volstead act.

Unless the recommendations of the Law Enforcement Commission are unanimous they will have little influence upon Congress.

Without regard to any recommendation by the commission, the Seventy-first Congress will be asked to make increased appropriations to enforce the law.

It seems probable that a controversy will arise this winter over prohibition appropriations. Pending the time when the majority of Congress will be wet, the wet minority may be expected to oppose increased appropriations, or any appropriations at all, for enforcement of the Volstead act. A filibuster against the bill containing appropriations for prohibition enforcement may develop if the bill is delayed until late in the session.

A successful filibuster, compelling the President to call an extra session, would be to the advantage of the wets, who will have increased representation in the Seventy-second Congress and will therefore more aggressively oppose prohibition appropriations.

The duty of Congress to make provision for enforcement of the laws is as imperative as the duty of the President to enforce them. Until the Volstead act is repealed Congress must make appropriations to enforce it.

COPPER REGULATION.

The farmer is not the only one who feels the effect of overproduction. The rubber planter struggled along after the war with prices for his product standing at levels lower than the production cost, simply because too much crude was dumped on the markets every month. The oil industry is seeking means to equalize production with demand, to the end that prices may be raised to a level that will make possible profitable operation. In almost every field of production, the great impetus to demand that was given by the war and by the subsequent boom era made it necessary to step up the wheels of production, and when demand slackened there was left a production machine geared up to a point that caused it to throw the whole distribution system out of adjustment. Radical readjustments are called for, but it has not proved easy to articulate production and demand.

World copper interests this week reached an agreement to reduce the output of their mines about 20,000 tons a month, in the hope that the reduction would bring about a balance between production and demand. Those entering into the agreement produce about 90 per cent of the world's copper and although a reduction of 20,000 tons a month will do no more than balance production with demand, it is believed that opportunities will arise from time to time to dispose of the surplus of the metal now in hand. In 1929 copper reached a high price of 24 cents a pound. In October of this year it reached a low level of 9½ cents; but the announcement of the curtailment agreement had the immediate effect of stiffening the price.

If the copper interests should be able to work in concert along these lines the industry will be rescued from its present serious situation. But there is always the danger in limitation programs that, when the price begins to show improvement, groups or individuals will increase production to take advantage of the improved price. The British rubber restriction scheme broke down because Dutch planters increased their production when the price improved. The Brazilian coffee valorization scheme ended in disaster because neighboring producers expanded their acreage as Brazilian acreage was withdrawn from cultivation. Copper is produced in Canada, South America, Africa and elsewhere. Sixty per cent of the world supply is produced outside the United States. If producers will generally limit their output, the curtailment scheme agreed upon this week should work. If, however, producers begin to take advantage of the improved price and increase their output, the experiment will end in disaster.

LEGGE SHOULD STAY.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, wants to resign. No one can blame him. He has had a most difficult row to hoe in attempting to carry out the provisions of the agricultural marketing act. His policies, the board, and he himself have been abused by farmers and politicians. Moreover, when he came to Washington at financial sacrifice he agreed to stay only a year. The year has elapsed and Mr. Legge feels that he is entitled to be relieved of his onerous duties. But in view of the present troublous state in which agriculture finds itself it may be hoped that Mr. Legge can be prevailed upon to stick it out a little longer. He is needed in Washington.

Whether or not the agricultural marketing act will eventually result in improving the position of agriculture, certainly it has not had a beneficial effect thus far. Farm prices are lower than they have been in years. Surpluses are still being produced, although the drought had the effect of reducing the production of certain commodities this season. In the final analysis it will be found impossible permanently to improve the position of agriculture until and unless individual farmers adjust production to demand. In this project the cooperative movement, fostered and nurtured by the Farm Board, must play a dominant role.

Because agriculture is still in the doldrums, the insurgent-Democratic farm bloc in Congress stands ready to renew the agitation for the panaceas that were turned down in earlier sessions. Senators Borah, Norris and Brookhart propose to get behind new export debenture legislation. It is not unlikely that the equalization fee will come in for another airing during the winter. These schemes are, of course, economically unsound, but they make an appeal to the farmer as well as to the politician. In an era of unsettled economic conditions there is always a disposition to experiment with legislation of this nature. A man versed in sound economic principles, a man of courage and ability, will be needed this winter to lead the attack upon the debenture. Mr. Legge is better equipped than any other to assume this burden. It is to be hoped that he will reconsider his decision to retire.

WASHINGTON TAXES.

It is evident that Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, proposes to play a prominent part in the affairs of the special House committee appointed to consider matters of fiscal policy as affecting the District. "The amount of money appropriated by the Federal Government," says Mr. Frear, "should never enter into the question of fiscal relations. District taxpayers should pay a fair tax, and every cost above the revenue produced by that fair tax should be paid by the Federal Treasury."

Theoretically, this is a good basis upon which to tackle the difficult problem of fiscal relationship. The people of Washington have no desire to shirk their just responsibility for the maintenance of the local government. But, in the past, when attempts have been made to ascertain exactly what constitutes a "fair" tax, charges have always been made against local taxpayers that should have been made aginst the Government.

Because the District is the seat of the Government it is necessary and proper that it should be developed and maintained on an elaborate scale. The local park system is and should be far more extensive than the park system of any other city of comparable size. The street and highway system is and should be more extensive than the system of any other city. It is proper that a part of the cost of building and maintaining parks and highways should be charged against the Federal Treasury. Because of the large number of Government buildings situated in Washington it is necessary that the local police and fire departments be larger than the police and fire departments of other cities. The Government should share the cost of maintaining these services. The schools, the water system and, in fact, almost every branch, activity and department of the local government is affected by the fact that Washington is the seat of the National Government.

Generally when attempts have been made to establish a "fair" tax, the basis has been an attempted comparison between the local tax rate and tax rates obtaining in cities of comparable size. In all probability Representative Frear has such a comparison in mind when he says that District taxpayers should be called upon to pay only a fair tax. The tax rate elsewhere, however, has no possible bearing on the fairness of the tax rate in Washington. Other cities may be graft-ridden; their governments may be inefficient or corrupt. Because tax rates are high in other cities is no reason why the tax rate should be boosted in Washington.

It is to be hoped that Representative Frear will prove himself a friend of Washington in the special fiscal committee of the House. The make-up of the committee indicates that Washington will need a friend during the discussions if a report at all fair or just is to be rendered.

THE GREAT CHEESE MYSTERY.

On the heads of British farm wives is placed the burden of blame for the declining quality of Cheshire cheese, in the making of which England enjoys a practical monopoly. Experts say that the quality of Cheshire cheese is governed by the quantity of cream in the milk from which it is made and since the cream content of the milk from British cows remains fairly constant, there has been somewhat of a mystery as to why the quality of the famed cheese has not been up to standard of late. Now the truth comes out! It is said that British farm wives have succumbed as have women everywhere to the lure of auction and contract bridge, and that they have been skimming the cream from the milk set aside for cheese-making to make into butter, which they sell to pay their bridge losses.

If only the bridge craze would spread to Switzerland one of the grave problems of the Department of Agriculture might be settled. In recent years the United States has been consuming about 36,000,000 pounds of "Swiss" cheese annually, about half of which has been imported. There is a tendency, however, for the imports to increase in volume at the expense of the domestic Swiss-cheese industry and this is what is worrying the department. In the five-year period 1920-1924, the total Swiss cheese production of the United States averaged about 22,000,000 pounds a year, but in the five-year period 1925-1929 it averaged somewhat less than 20,000,000 pounds. One of the chief reasons why the American production of Swiss-type cheese is in a less favorable position than Switzerland Swiss cheese in the American market, says the department, is that the imported product is of higher average quality than the domestic product.

If only the Swiss farm wives would take to playing bridge, adopting the expedient of skimming the cream from the milk set aside for cheese making to pay their bridge losses, the disparity in the quality of the domestic product might be eliminated. But the department is not willing to wait for the bridge craze to sweep Switzerland. Carefully explaining that "the high quality of the imported Swiss cheese is not the result of the sweet mountain grasses on which the cows feed nor of the pure mountain air which they breathe," and adding that "there is no scientific basis for the supposition that such factors determine the quality of cheese," the department explains that the important factors are "the quality of milk used and the control of bacterial development in the cheese during manufacture and ripening." Firm in the belief that the American cow is ready to produce milk of a quality equal to that produced by the cows of Switzerland or, for that matter, any other nation, the department, through its cheese scientists and research experts, offers the American cheese industry "new manufacturing processes and scientific methods which will enable it to compete more successfully with the Swiss producers." It may be hoped that the industry will embrace the new method. If it doesn't, and the department is sincere in its desire to keep America out of a war to protect its Swiss cheese industry, the only expedient will be to draft Milton Work and Sidney Lenz and set them loose to do their dirty work in Switzerland.

GERMANY AT LOW TIDE

By George N. Shuster, in the Commonweal.

Even yet Germany does not look poor. A nation, the political affairs of which are in a state of literally indescribable chaos, nevertheless manages to keep its ageing buildings in decent repair, to dress its children soberly and to go about its business with normal earnestness. But evidences of business depression can not be hidden away. Though the German trade balance for September shows a considerable excess of exports over imports, the reason is entirely due to lessened domestic purchasing power. Almost every large enterprise is relatively stagnant. Tax receipts have diminished to such an extent that the recession to be expected during the coming year is estimated at a billion marks. Hand in hand with this is an increasing tendency to place funds outside Germany. That means a lack of confidence in the economic future of the country and an unwillingness to share its destiny.

Loss of confidence is the key to current political happenings. The Reichstag opened with a virtual thunderstorm. Not a few disorderly incidents revealed the drift of public opinion to extreme conclusions. The Communists are by all odds the most colorful offenders. Day in and day out they bombard the government with protests and catcalls. Their meetings end constantly in brushes with the police, during which shots are fired and beer bottles thrown. Almost every morning the newspapers report some clash between the supporters of Hitler and the still more belligerent disciples of Karl Marx.

The strength of the Hitlerite party lies in its ability to recruit youth dissatisfied with many things, and unwilling above all to face ten more years such as those just past, without the promise of tangible results. It is the danger of a possibly Communistic Germany which just now gives one concern. And from this point of view, at least, Herr Hitler is a blessing.

The gap between the extremes is perilously narrow. Gone, for the time being, is Germany's old "liberal" party which had given Stresemann to his country and the world. Some of the factions of the right are moderate only because they are not yet willing to adopt a Fascist program; the Social-Democratic party is moderate only because of its opposition to the Communist scheme. The only genuinely effective spokesmen for what we may term "democratic liberalism" yet remaining are the Centrists. Round them the groups willing to conserve the existing form of government have rallied, giving Chancellor Bruening the opportunity to undertake a possibly final defense of the regime.

It is an interesting situation, the international effects of which may be tremendous. We are virtually witnessing the evolution of a country which is being supported by foreign credit in order to enable it to meet its obligations. Nothing of the kind has ever been attempted, and the experiment may fail. For the moment, however, the moral effect is perhaps most worth watching. The recrudescence of a "nationalism of despair" expressing itself in willingness to repudiate obligations and to risk war, has built round about itself a whole moral philosophy. Just now Germany seems to be a place in which everything is under discussion and everything under fire. None the less, as has been said, the stairways are scrubbed, the clothes mended, the children got off to school. Fundamentally, the German is still the best regulated—and most regular—citizen in the world.

AMERICA'S AIR TRAFFIC.

A generally accepted belief is that the United States lags behind Europe in air passenger travel, observes the Boston Transcript. But notice these comparisons: In February, while 1,358 were arriving and departing from London's huge airport at Croydon, 7,373 flew in and out of the airport at Tulsa, Okla. While 1,850 arrived at or departed from Le Bourget, the Paris airport, 3,136 came in or out of the Chicago airport. While Tempelhof, Berlin, was host to 658, Boston was host to 770. European air lines have been carrying passengers for ten years; American lines are very recent. Paris and Berlin are great centers where many lines converge and a passenger on a through trip would be counted twice. Boston, by comparison, has one line to New York. Also, it would be noted that Berlin has a population of over 4,000,000, while metropolitan Boston has less than 2,000,000.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE BLACK SHEEP.

Why they never understood
They had labored for his good,
Led him through his days of youth
Always to the paths of truth,
Yet when he burned temptation's flame
Often he was lured to shame.

Him they never understood,
Naught was told them so they could,
Strange they thought it he should be
So unlike his ancestry.
Back for years his kith and kin
Had remained unshamed by sin.

Never were they reconciled
To this wayward, careless child.
Never could they understand
Why he heeded no command;
Why in matters, great and small,
He was different from them all.

When he died the mourners near
Couldn't see and couldn't hear,
But below the dust was stirred
And a friendly willow heard,
One long dead to memory,

It's a Poor Charity That Provides a Banquet Instead of Daily Bread.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE truly great are those who serve the world as fly wheels.

The function of a fly wheel, as you know, is to regulate and continue momentum and thus prevent jerks and jolts.

The power that drives the machinery of civilization is the ambition generated by discontent. It is a tremendous power, and when fired by enthusiasm it threatens to run wild and wreck the machine. The fly-wheel men are those who harness ambition and conserve its energy through the years and thus prevent the tragedies that would result when enthusiasts make sudden starts and as suddenly stop.

Enthusiasm is dangerous. It is power without control, like powder that flashes in a pan.

Its very nature shortens its life, for it is a kind of frenzy—an abnormality similar to rage and fear.

The enthusiast leads a forlorn hope to conquer a city and then is bored by the prosaic business of administration. He achieves great things that surpass the dreams of conservative men, but the very intensity of his effort exhausts his interest and when the excitement is over he travels on in quest of new adventure and leaves to fly-wheel men the task of consolidating his gains.

Enthusiasm is blind. It sees only the thing it wishes to see. It achieves much by risking much. It goes off half-cocked. To trust it is to find yourself a thousand miles from anywhere with an empty gas tank.

The abnormality of a genius consists wholly in his ability to keep enthusiasm alive. His natural state is one of frenzy. His excitement never cools. He alone can be trusted despite enthusiam, for he never burns out when a task is half done.

The ordinary man must avoid enthusiasm as he would a fever. It will prompt him to build an orphanage and then leave the orphans to starve. It will pledge him to a degree of righteousness beyond his powers and leave him an easy prey to temptation when the reaction comes. It is the quality that makes shouting converts at a camp meeting and leaves them depressed and cynical when the fever cools.

Do not trust it. In every instance it is followed by reaction.

When enthusiasm offers plans for the day, study them carefully and ask yourself whether you could follow them tomorrow, also, and every tomorrow.

The first to drop out of the race are those who set a pace they can't keep.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Al Smith, Columnist.

New York Times.

New York's former governor is soon to join that choir invisible but audible which writes a newspaper column. He has contracted to supply once a week an article of "from 1,000 to 1,500 words" on any subject that interests him. Former President Coolidge is writing his views daily; actors and radio broadcasters are doing the same thing. Not one of these could have worthier observations than the always informed Mr. Smith.

His good sense was never better revealed than in his contract to do a piece once a week instead of daily. It is difficult, even for professional journalists, to interest the reading public in their comment every day. Amateurs, however distinguished, usually begin with a large and expectant following, which shrinks to a few faithful after lumps of quartz begin to occur more frequently than nuggets. In due time the daily column's sacred first page position is lost in the shuffle of real news, and a little while later the distinguished contributor turns to other work. Mr. Smith's weekly efforts should have a longer life.

A Great Big If.

Christian Science Monitor.

If both major parties pull toward the same constructive goal, the even division of their strength in the newly elected Congress will mean merely smoother teamwork.

Fears Congress Disturbance.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

This country needs a long period free from congressional disturbance and uncertainty. There would be rejoicing in industrial and business circles from border to border, from ocean to ocean, if it were definitely known that the coming short session of Congress would devote itself to the passage of the appropriation and unemployment relief measures and not plunge into noisy disputes over highly controversial subjects such as debentures for exported farm products, attacks upon the Farm Board, amendments to the tariff law now. Give the Nation a chance to recover from depression. Also the Farm Board and the tariff schedules ample opportunity to operate.

Welcome Back, Jim!

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What'ye Mean, Broke?

Atlanta Constitution.

Mr. Hoover broke the solid South even better than his party first thought.

Home Runs.

Detroit News.

"Later returns" broke up as many contests this year as Babe Ruth.

Busy Brookhart.

Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, worked harder than most other senators during the fall campaign, although he was not up for reelection.

He went out in the woods and chopped down trees to provide fuel for the poor. In case the poor do not happen to need the trees, the senator can take them back to Washington and do a little log rolling.

Another Victory and We Are Lost.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Some one has discovered that the election was a vindication of the administration. It sure can't stand many more vindications like that.

Those Ohio Senators.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Being a senator from Ohio seems to be almost as precarious a job as being a capitalist in Soviet Russia. With the election of Robert J. Bulkley five men have been called on to serve out one six-year term. And who can tell what will happen to Mr. Bulkley in the remaining two years of that term?

If Ohio keeps on this way, she will have as many citizens sporting the title "Senator" as neighboring Kentucky has colonels.

More Jobless.

Elizabethtown News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Copper Proration Agreement Not Intended to Boost Price Beyond Legitimate Demand.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Upon receipt of the announcement that the copper producers had agreed to prorate the production of copper down to 20,000 tons a month, the price of copper advanced to 11 cents a pound and some forecasters, on the strength of an increased demand from abroad, predicted that it would reach 12 cents a pound within the next 24 hours. Wall street, that incorrigible "copy cat" of all reactions and emotions, became "bullish," and metal and copper stocks went up.

Operators in all lines of business are often wrongly accused of spreading deceiving news for their own benefit at the expense of the public. The real trouble lies in the fact that the public fails to understand the meaning of the news. Investors and speculators who wished to buy copper stocks on the strength of the proration agreement, in the hope of making a gigantic quick turnover, are liable to be greatly disappointed.

A proration agreement is an instrument drafted for the purpose of cutting down production with a view of bringing about a stabilization of prices during a depression period. When the copper producers signed the proration agreement they did not do it with the intention of bringing a sudden "copper rush," and it would be a direct insult to their intelligence to so believe. They did it as a means of sheer existence, to bridge over the depression period. While this agreement might be instrumental in preventing further sharp drops, it certainly will not bring a big advance in the price per pound. We must remember that the law of supply and demand, which is as old as Adam and Eve, is still operating. This proration, like the oil proration, was designed with a view of bringing down the supply to the demand, and not to create an artificial demand, which would be a physical impossibility.

ECONOMIST.

One Aspect of Unemployment That Makes Home Owners Wonder.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Are not the President and District authorities in danger of slopping over in this matter of the jobless? Are not the jobless somewhat at fault? Let me give you an illustration or two that have come under my own observation. I have a friend who is a home owner. He read in the papers the articles urging home owners to make repairs now and thus aid the jobless. He thought he would have some painting done.

A painter applied for work, saying he had not had any work for three months. My friend showed him the work he was contemplating having done. The painter said it would take three days. On being asked what wages he wanted he replied, $11 a day. The owner said he was only receiving $6 a day, and it would take two days of his wage to pay the painter for one, and asked him if he could not afford to work cheaper. He replied that he would not work under the schedule. He was not engaged.

Another friend employed a painter and carpenter to do some repairs on his house. After beginning work the painter struck because the carpenter was a nonunion man. Both were among the jobless.

At least 2,000 women in Washington are doing their own housework who would employ a maid were it not for the demands made by domestic workers. They demand $10, $12 or $15 a week, and car fare, one day off, no Sunday work, no laundry. One of my friends employed a maid, who, after working three days, quit because the employer would not give her two lamb chops every day for lunch.

Many home owners earn only $5 or $6 a day, and they can not afford to pay $10 or $11 a day to have painting done. Hence they do that work themselves in odd hours.

A HOME OWNER.

Statement That All Money Is Redeemable in Gold Is Disputed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Altruist" writes The Post, in re the loan of a billion ounces of silver to China by the United States: "There is a way it could be done. * * * We have * * * a mountain of 539,959,520 silver dollars stored in the Treasury * * * to redeem * * * silver certificates. Who ever heard, or will ever hear, of a silver certificate being redeemed in silver? All our money is redeemable in gold."

This is misinformation. The "539,959,520" outstanding silver certificates are not redeemable in gold. Take one of the silver certificates to the Treasury and see if you can get gold for it. The paying teller will ask you: "Can you read?" If you can, he'll say, "Read what's printed on the face of that note."

All our money payable in gold, is it? How about the $65,000,000,000 of bank credits? Is this credit money payable in gold? Why, there is not enough minted gold and silver, gold bullion, bar silver, gold notes, greenbacks and silver certificates in the United States today to pay off the $65,000,000,000 of credit money.

"Old Voter" Predicts That Republican Party Will Be Dry "Perforce."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Notwithstanding your apt and enjoyable editorial in regard to Democratic advisers of the Republican party, I make bold to say that the G. O. P.'s best bet will be a bone-dry plank in the platform of 1932. The Raskobian wetness of Democracy in 1928 had as much to do with the election of Hoover as anything else. The Republican party was dry, while the Democratic party was wet. It is proper to consider them so classified until a realignment, if any, is made.

Why any but a hopeless G. O. P. wet should hesitate I can't make out. In the Anti-saloon League and nearly all the great church organizations the party of great moral ideas is supported by a mighty phalanx united for a single purpose, for dryness. And these people are not likely to be fooled by political claptrap. Side-stepping and smoke-screening in accordance with light-wine-and-beer pussyfooting by a law enforcement commission will do no good. Which is as much as to say that the Grand Old Party is dry perforce.

CHINESE REDS DEFY NATIONALISTS' DRIVE

CHANGSHA IN JEOPARDY

Shanghai, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Attempts of the Nationalist Government to crush the roving bands of Communists, which for months have ravaged the central provinces of China, appeared today to have met many more obstacles than were anticipated.

The Nationalists a fortnight ago, on conclusion of the civil war against the alliance of northern war lords, sent 100,000 soldiers into the provinces and predicted suppression of the outlaws within a few months. Despite this action, dispatches today said that throughout the greater part of Kiangsi and Hunan provinces the Reds were roaming freely in groups numbering far into the thousands, capturing and looting town after town, kidnaping any one worth while, paralyzing trade and causing missionaries to seek safety in the major cities.

Cannon Menace Shipping.

An exception was a small part of northwest Kiangsi, where pressure from soldiers caused the Reds to retreat westward into northeast Hunan. All over the latter province, the Communists apparently were holding a carnival of outlawry. Most of Hupen province likewise reported similar conditions.

Along the Yangtse River, the Communists' muzzle-loading cannon continued to fire upon passing steamers, constituting a menace to navigation. Nationalist gunboats which were selected to conduct a campaign against the Red cannonaders on shore, like the military appear to be having difficulties in effectively opposing the Red strongholds. A majority of the Chinese craft were tied up at the river ports and indications they were planning to engage the Communists soon were lacking.

Scope of Depredations.

Nanking's military apparently has not been able to oppose the elusive Reds effectively. Today the Communist may boldly uphold the Red cause, while tomorrow, if necessity demands, he may appear to be a peaceful farmer, thereby causing the troops to search blindly the countryside for an invisible enemy.

Changsha, Honan province, was reported to be menaced again by the Red legions which were within 15 miles of the city gates. The Changsha-Wuchang Railway has been cut below Yochow, where a strong body of Reds was operating. Virtually every other city of any importance in Hunan was reported suffering from the Communist menace, which has resulted in many of the wealthier inhabitants evacuating to Hankow.

Similar conditions e isted throughout Hupeh and southern Honan provinces, while the provinces of Anhwie, Fukien and parts of Kiangsu and Chekiang were also feeling the Red depredations intermittently.

Chicago's Lofty Ceres Will Get Face Washed

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Chicago's topmost face, and also one of its grimiest, is soon to be washed. The face belongs to Ceres, goddess of grain and harvests, whose perch above the observation tower of the Chicago Board of Trade Building is the loftiest point in the city.

Peter J. Niemann, exchange headquarters supervisor for the Board of Trade, has been nominated to restore the dazzling shine to Ceres. He has devised a permanently fixed sandblaster, automatically operated by strong air pressure. The unique machine is planned to bathe the aluminum goddess so quickly and completely, Mr. Niemann says, that Ceres will change color before the eyes of onlookers within 20 seconds.

OPEN ROUND-TABLE CONFERENCE

Jewish Deputies Score Zion Policy

Action Taken as Debate in House of Commons on Issue Looms.

London, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—In view of the coming debate on Palestine in the House of Commons, the Board of Deputies, known as the "Parliament of British Jews," today adopted a resolution condemning the recently announced Palestine policy of the British government.

The resolution said "the policy outlined in the White paper on Palestine is contrary to the spirit of the mandate and a breach of the public pledges made in the name of England by successive British governments" and that the Board of Deputies "welcomes the pronouncements, written and spoken, of leading statesmen of the Conservative party, Mr. Lloyd George and Gen. Smuts, to the same effect."

The British Colonial office recently announced restrictions must be placed on Jewish immigration into Palestine. The announcement stirred the Jews in America and Europe to indignant protests. They contended the restrictions were in violation of the Balfour declaration recognizing Palestine as the Jewish homeland, and a "betrayal" of pledges made to Jewish leaders who accepted the British government's promises.

Artist Files Suit Because of Arrest

Winter Residents at Miami Beach Named in Action for $100,000.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hirsch, Chicago, winter residents of Miami Beach, yesterday were named defendants in a $100,000 suit filed by attorneys for Harmon Neill, portrait painter. Neill's attorneys said the suit is based on alleged false arrest and imprisonment of their client last June at request of the defendants.

The suit stated Neill was commissioned to paint a portrait of Mrs. Hirsch for $500, that the plaintiff refused to deliver it before it was completed, and that he was paid only $250.

Neill was arrested later on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and released on a writ of habeas corpus. He later was acquitted of the charge.

Fierce Storm Lashes Chicago Lake Region

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—A general warning to Lake Michigan shipping was sent out today, as a 40-mile gale lashed the Chicago shore line. Small boats moored along the western shore were smashed.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, of the local weather bureau, said he believed the main path of the storm would pass north of Chicago. Capt. John Anderson, of the Central Coast Guard, however, thought the storm might strike the Chicago area full force.

Money In the Bank When Money Is Needed

A certain satisfaction comes from the feeling that there is an ever-reliable cash reserve in the bank, ready to serve as a bulwark against arising emergencies. This cash reserve, known as the Savings Account, has also a more tangible value because it is a desirable investment, safe, stable, profitable and available for use when money is needed to take advantage of opportunities.

DO-X MAY NOT FLY TO U.S. TILL SPRING

FRENCH COUNSEL DELAY

Bordeaux, France, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Claude Dornier, designer and builder of the giant seaplane DO-X, announced here today that weather conditions might prevent a transatlantic flight before spring. He insisted, however, that the engines had given entire satisfaction on the trip toward Lisbon and said the final decision regarding an oceanic crossing will be made there.

French experts declared last night that a transatlantic flight now might be hazardous, because the DO-X's motors had not been turning as well as was expected.

Will Be Due to Weather.

"We do not want to attempt anything unreasonable," Dr. Dornier told the Associated Press, "but should the transatlantic flight be postponed until spring, it will be due only to unfavorable weather and not because of any lack of confidence in the motors or the boat.

"Our motors thus far have given us entire satisfaction. If we were forced to alight on water off the Vendee Coast, it was because darkness was coming on and also fog—our bitterest transatlantic enemy. We felt safer on the surface than aloft. I believe the fact that the DO-X taxied a hundred miles on the water, to shelter behind the Isle de Re, was quite a performance."

The DO-X remained in the Gironne Estuary today instead of coming up to Bordeaux. Tomorrow the plane will fly over Bordeaux with officials and newspaper men aboard. Present plans call for departure Tuesday for Lisbon.

Holds It Difficult Feat.

"Dr. Dornier believes it would be difficult to negotiate the first leg of a transatlantic flight from Lisbon to Horta in the Azores on a short winter day. Especially, he believes, the flight from the Azores to Bermuda would be difficult, requiring several hours of night flying. He insisted, however, that the idea of a transatlantic cruise this winter had not been abandoned.

Paris, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—A big, four-motored German hydroplane of the DO-X type alighted in the Seine at Suresnes, just outside Paris, today after flying from Havre in an hour. This plane will be exhibited at the coming aeronautical salon here.

Air Minister Pynac announced that besides containing aviation units designed for the defense of France, the salon will exhibit new methods of manufacture calculated to increase safety in the air.

French Fliers Take Off On Trip to Madagascar

Le Bourget, France, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The French aviators Lefevre and Demazieres took off today on the first leg of a flight to Madagascar.

They intended to fly across Spain, over the straits to Africa, and then across the Sahara Desert.

CONFIDENCE VOTED KEMAL IN TURKEY

Retains Parliament Control, After Fight, by Vote of 225 to 10.

SHOUT OPPOSITION DOWN

Istanboul, Turkey, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha today retained his control of Parliament after a hot battle in the Assembly at Angora last night. The Parliament expressed confidence in the government by a vote of 225 to 10.

Fethi Bey, opposition leader, opened the fight with an attack on Kemal's minister of interior. He said the minister had not allowed the citizens to vote freely in the recent municipal elections.

"You want to kill the opposition party, fearing free opposition will bathe the nation in blood," cried Fethi Bey.

Members of Parliament shouted him down, however. The vote of confidence was taken on a question of the minister of interior's worthiness.

Bad Weather Thwarts Junior Record Take-Off

Newark, N. J., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Bad weather today prevented Gerald P. Littleton, 20-year-old Toledo, Ohio, aviator, from taking off in his attempt to break the East-West junior transcontinental flight record.

On the basis of weather reports, airport officials believed the storm would prevent a take-off tomorrow also.

Former Envoy Plays Host to Royal Guest

Infanta Beatrice Visits Mr. and Mrs. Morris at Paris Home.

THE former Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, who are at present in Paris, have had as their guest at the Ritz Hotel there for the past two weeks, the Infanta Beatrice of Spain, wife of Infante Alfonso of Bourbon-Orleans.

The Morrises have given a series of luncheons and dinners for their royal guest, whom they number among their very close friends. Mr. and Mrs. Morris, in fact, are well acquainted with other members of the royal family. For the Infanta Beatrice's eldest sister is Queen Marie of Roumania, and thoughts of Mrs. Morris are associated with her role as one of the group accompanying her majesty on her journey through the United States in October of 1926.

Another sister of the Infanta Beatrice is Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, and the third is Princess Alexandra of Hohenlohe-Langenbourg, whose son is in business in Paris and is well known among the American colony there. The grand duchess has attended several of the parties which the Morises have given. It will be remembered that she visited this country last year.

From time to time, word drifts back to Washington of the activities of Mr. and Mrs. Morris, who are pleasantly remembered here, where they have been frequent visitors. Of late, however, Mr. and Mrs. Morris have elected to spend most of their time in Europe. They live for several months here and there in the smart cities abroad. Recently they visited Biarritz, where they were entertained extensively by members of the American colony. Mr. and Mrs. Morris have a particular liking for Italy, where they have a beautiful estate, Villa d'Este, on Lake Como. The imposing villa, overlooking the picturesque lake, is one of the finest in Italy.

Wives of Diplomats To Attend Benefit.

Princess de Ligne, wife of the Belgian Ambassador, and Mme. Debuchi, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, are among those who have made reservations for the card party to be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 in the Chinese room at the Mayflower for the benefit of work for poor churches.

Others who have made reservations are Mrs. William Benson, Mrs. George P. Scriven, Mrs. Harold Norton, Mrs. Alexander Johnson, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Bowie Hunter, Mrs. Henry Flather, Mrs. Milton Alles and Mrs. Robert Hinckley.

Results achieved by the White House child health conference will be told Saturday, November 22, 9:30 to 10 p. m., by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, in a National Radio Forum speech over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Dr. Wilbur's topic will be "Results of the White House Child Health Conference." As chairman of the group, formed by President Hoover more than a year ago, Dr. Wilbur has directed the 2,000 members in their efforts to better the health and welfare of the country's children.

Dr. Wilbur opened the National Radio Forum's winter series November 8 with a talk outlining the scope of the conference meeting in Washington this week.

Assisting at the tea to be given by the board of lady visitors of the Washington Home for Children at the home on Friday from 3 until 6 o'clock will be Mrs. John Lewis Smith, president of the board; Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. John W. Thompson, Miss Anna Warner, Mrs. Frank Reeside, Mrs. Charles Williamson, Mrs. Boyd Taylor, Mrs. John Pratt, Mrs. Floyd Cissell, Mrs. William Quinter and Mrs. Simon Wolff.

Miss Jean Woodson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Woodson, is passing several days in Chicago, where she attended the Illinois-Chicago football game.

Count Szechenyi, Minister of Hungary, has taken over the affairs of the legation after a prolonged absence. He has returned to Washington, accompanied by Countess Szechenyi. With his two eldest daughters, Countess Cornelia and Countess Alice, the minister arrived in New York a week ago from Europe and was met there by Countess Szechenyi and the younger members of the family, who had returned to this country several weeks ago and had since been visiting Countess Szechenyi's mother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, in Newport.

Mrs. J. Wilmer Biddle and her daughters, Miss Elizabeth Gordon and Miss Stanley Gordon, who have been abroad for several months, have returned to Binderton House, their home in Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

During their stay in England they visited Mrs. Biddle's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gwynne Keppel-Palmer, at Ivy Gate, their house at Henley-on-Thames, near London.

The marriage of Miss Stanley Gordon and Mr. Archibald Carson Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Edwards, of Oklahoma City, will take place in June at Kenmore, Mrs. Biddle's country estate in Rappahannock County, Va.

Mrs. Katherine Prindeville has returned to her apartment at the Shoreham after a visit of some weeks to Mount Clemens, Mich.

Mrs. Nancy Hoyt Curtis entertained a large party at Chanteclér Saturday night. Mr. W. E. Carter was host to another group.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hughes announce the marriage of their daughter, Hannah, to Mr. George S. Adams. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home in Rock Creek Church road Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne, of Wallace Presbyterian Church. The wedding was very quiet, only the immediate families and a few close friends being present.

Mrs. John Wesley Snoddy entertained at dinner at her home in Thirteenth street yesterday in honor of Mrs. Everett Monroe Ellison.

Miss Janet Richards, at the first lecture this morning in her course of "Talks on Public Questions," will consider some of the outstanding causes of world unrest with its alleged menace to continued peace. Her personal impressions will also be given of the depressing utterances of some of the leading statesmen at the eleventh annual meeting of the League of Nations in Geneva last September.

Following some comment on the aftermath of the recent elections, Miss Richards will give a short talk on "The Surprises of Travel in Modern Spain." The talk will be given at the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, at 10:30 o'clock.

State Society To Hold First Dance of Year

Massachusetts Group to Open Season Tomorrow at Wardman Park.

The Massachusetts Bay State Society of Washington will hold the first dance of the season tomorrow night in the gold room of the Wardman Park Hotel. A short program interpersed with dancing has been arranged by the entertainment committee.

The president of the society, Mr. Sanford Bates, and officers of the society extend to all members and their friends an invitation to attend the Thanksgiving dance. Mr. Lewis W. Hart will have charge of the dancing.

At the annual election of officers last week the group chosen to assist Mr. Bates included: First vice president, Mr. Robert H. Kempton; second vice president, Mr. Albert Michaud; third vice president, Miss Loretta H. Ryan; secretary, Mr. George A. Hernan; treasurer, Mr. William T. Simpson; board of trustees, Miss Martha H. Gould, Miss Eleanor Carleton, Dr. William I. Ogus, Mr. Edward L. Bacher, Miss Harriet Cheney, Mrs. Robert H. Kempton and Mr. John Andrews.

The committees appointed are: Auditing, Miss Eleanor Carleton, Mr. Raymond Manning and Mr. George Roberts; finance committee, Mr. Rowland S. H. Dyer, Miss Helen G. O'Neill and Mrs. James A. Walsh; entertainment committee, Mr. Lewis W. Hart, Mr. John I. McDonald, Miss Grace Chamberlain, Mr. Charles F. Sharkey, Miss Ruth M. Noyes, Mr. John Springer, Mrs. Patrick J. Murray, Mr. William R. Russell, Miss Eleanor Carleton, Mrs. Olive Cain, Mr. Robert Kempton and Mr. John Nesline. The membership committee includes Miss Barbara Butler, chairman. Heading the reception committee is Mr. Robert H. Kempton.

Judge and Mrs. Holland Entertain at Dinner.

Judge and Mrs. Rush La Motte Holland entertained a company at dinner at the Shoreham Hotel on Saturday evening, the party remaining later for the supper dance. The dinner was in compliment to their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Fanning, of New York, also Mr. and Mrs. Harris, of Janesville, Ga., who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wheeler, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hulbert, of New York City, who are now in Washington for a short stay.

Maj. James B. Crawford also entertained at the supper dance there on Saturday evening, his guests including Maj. and Mrs. Homer R. Oldfield, Capt. H. B. Smith, of Fort Meade; Miss Alice McLean, Miss Ruth Gaffney and Maj. and Mrs. E. R. Van Dusen.

"The Booklovers" of Washington will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets, when Miss Alice Hutchins Drake will give an informal talk for the members and their friends as well as for the public, which is invited to be present.

Tonight's topic will be "Writing the Short Story," and a number of outstanding collections of short stories will be reviewed, including Edith Wharton's "Certain People." Another feature of the program will be Miss Drake's reading of an up-to-date mystery story, new to Washingtonians.

The Booklover Hour at the Y. W. C. A. occurs twice a month, on the first and third Monday.

Mrs. Patrick Moynaham and her daughter, Mrs. Harry K. Gilman, and the latter's daughter, Virginia, of Chicago, returned to their home on Saturday after spending a week in Washington, their former home.

Drama Guild Will Sponsor Play Readings

Mrs. William J. Peters to Head Committee for Their Production.

Mrs. William J. Peters is chairman of the committee of the Community Drama Guild of Washington, which has in charge a series of three evenings of play readings, January 10, March 20 and May 15. Mrs. Peters already has made her selection for the January program, which will comprise a new play of unusual interest that has never been produced in Washington. In January the second full-length play of the season, "The Queen's Husband," will be given. More amateur groups than ever before in the history of the one-act play tournament will register between now and January 1 for this season's drama contest. Miss Marjorie Webster, who is chairman of the committee having arrangements in charge of the tournament, will accept registrations from all amateur groups of recognized standing in the Capital. The preliminaries of the tournament will take place between February 6 and 21, with the finals on March 6.

Later in the spring will come an original "All-Washington Revue," to be written, staged, costumed and acted by Washingtonians. This revue is offered as a feature of the season and promises much in the way of sparkling satire.

Mrs. William E. Chamberlain, who is in charge of the season's program, will be assisted by Mr. Denis E. Connell in the production of the two December plays which will follow the performances of "The Great Divide," to be played on November 28-29. "The Clinic in Make-Up" and "Opportunity Night" will be given in December.

Mrs. Sybil Hoereth, of Los Angeles, Calif., is a guest at Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bailey, of Philadelphia, were week-end guests at the Dodge Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris, of Janesville, Wis., have motored to Washington and are guests at Wardman Park Hotel.

Pen Women's Breakfast to See Notables

Prominent G. O. P. Workers to Be Guests of Mrs. Albers.

Mrs. Henry Albers, who is sponsoring a table for the celebrity breakfast of the Pen Women on Saturday at noon at the Willard Hotel will have with her a group of prominent Republican women, including Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Henry Fry, Mrs. Warren Haines, Mrs. John T. Sherman, Mrs. Bruce Baird, Miss Clara McQueown, Mrs. Edward T. Keys, Mrs. Frank Mondell, Mrs. James Wentz and Mrs. Verna Bielefeldt.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

It's the new raisin shade crepy woolen with pink crepe frills on the bodice and the sleeves.

Its slender unusual lines will have instant appeal for all-day wear.

The back is straight crossed by a partial belt that starts at either side of the front at the natural waistline.

The pin tucks of the front flaring skirt are chic detail to detract from breadth through the hips.

Style No. 158 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The medium size requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝-yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Black canton crepe with touch of white, tete de negre brown crepe silk with turquoise and black transparent velvet with ecru lace are exceptionally lovely combinations.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, 408 World Building, New York City.

Made New
$4 to $9
You can't buy a really good mattress for $4 to $9. But you can have a buoyant mattress made of your old one for this price.
Let us call for your mattress, carry it to our factory and manufacture a new one out of it. First, the entire mattress will be sterilized. Then the old ticking will be taken off and destroyed. The inside will be thoroughly cleaned and its buoyancy restored. The new ticking can be any of a number of charming patterns. You make your own selection from the sample book which our representative will gladly bring you.
Thousands of Washington people are delighted with the mattresses which we manufacture out of their old ones. We also make box springs to order for $25.

LOW PRICES MAKE JOBS
Increased Buying Speeds Wheels of Industry
ALL authorities agree that the best way to help business is to speed up consumption of goods. That sets idle wheels turning, increases employment of labor, and so adds to buying power. These same authorities agree that the best way to speed up consumption is to keep retail prices as low as possible. A&P does this in good times as well as in bad times. How this policy has worked in the present circumstances is shown by the fact that A&P is steadily adding to its payroll.
Today A&P is giving employment to 3,085 more wage earners than it did a year ago.
During the last year, because of the general slowing up of business, increases in salaries have been rare.
A&P has increased the average wage of all its employees by more than $50 a year.
The fact that A&P has been able to hire more workers and raise wages during hard times is due directly to its policy of cutting the retail price of food as fast as growers and producers reduce their prices to A&P.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IN a moving plea for the unemployed last Friday evening Uncle Abe and David, through the return of Edward, David's lost nephew, voiced a powerful word for the jobless, waiting in bread lines, often with sick or needy families at home.

"There is not any man alive, knowing such a thing existed, but would go right down and help those poor fellers," Abe and David concluded, as they put on their coats and went to the rescue.

It was a great piece of acting and the suggestion is made that J. D. Kaufman try to get them to make a record of it, which could be rebroadcast for the benefit of the Washington Community Chest and other charitable organizations throughout the country.

Navajo and Hopi Indians of Arizona will participate in a new series produced by Gilbert E. Gable, of Philadelphia, tomorrow night (WJZ, but not WRC, 8:45 p. m.). Charles J. Rhodes, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, will speak at the premiere.

The restaurant of Amos 'n' Andy has its grand opening tonight. Ain't dat sumpin'?

ON the warpath because of too much advertising over the air Commissioner Ira E. Robinson declared:

"Advertising by radio can be accomplished without disgusting the public, but assuredly it is not so now. If the present overdose continues no returns from advertising by radio will be received. The method is simply killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

Judge Robinson cited the case of a station in Argentina that was barred from the air for eight days because it was broadcasting more than 250 words of advertising between successive numbers.

Canzoneri's knockout over Singer in one minute saved MacNamee a lot of talking.

The Cuban and Brazilian situations will be discussed tonight by Carl Byoir, owner of the Havana Post, the Brazilian American in Rio and other South American newspapers (WRC, 10:45 p. m.).

THE orchestra directed by George Dilworth, and the soprano soloist known as the Enna Jettick Songbird will present another fifteen-minute program tomorrow evening (WRC, 10 p. m.).

Mme. Louise Homer and Anna Case will head the cast of the Christmas Club program Wednesday (WRC—8 p. m.).

The Christmas Club is a Nation-wide organization for the promotion of the Christmas savings idea and according to Eliot H. Thomson, of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, has 92,000 members in this city.

The second concert by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Gabrilowitsch, will be heard next Wednesday over Columbia from 10:30 to 11:30 p. m., beginning half an hour later to give way to President Hoover's Child Health Conference address.

A FORMER Baltimorean, living on Wisconsin avenue, expresses regret that on certain nights station WTAM at Cleveland interferes with his favorite station, WBAL, at Baltimore.

WOL will inaugurate two new features for the early afternoon today—a two-hour cooking school, followed by fifteen minutes of bridge instruction by Mrs. James Lee Shelton.

"Parlor gymnasts who impress their friends by touching the floor without bending their knees are laying themselves open to rheumatism or kidney trouble," says Arthur Bagley, who broadcasts the health exercises each morning.

A better exercise than the old back-strainer, according to Bagley, is performed by bending the knees slightly, putting the arms between the legs and touching the floor about 6 inches behind the heels.

Dare Interprets the MODE

Black wool with white dots fashions this trim pleated dress, and black cheviot with white fur the slender, flaring coat. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie., Paris.)

Paris, Nov. 16.

A READER writes and asks me to tell her, "Honestly, now, Dare," if I would wear any of those cheaper furs, rabbit skin variety, for instance.

Depending upon the time, the place, the type of garment that it trimmed or was to be worn with, yes, my dear, I would! As to the white lapin evening jacquette or trimming for an evening coat, that's not a fair question, not fair to the rabbit, I mean—because it isn't his fault that I just don't happen to be the type that could get away with imitation ermine.

Frankly I prefer the out-and-out inexpensive but real furs to those that try to imitate a more expensive fur. For instance, skunk and wolf are both very handsome when used for trimming on woolen or tweed fashioned in the out-of-doors type of coats. Nutria erroneously called "imitation beaver" is nothing of the sort, but is a water rodent of South America in his own right, imitating nothing except perhaps certain types of humans.

While I would prefer to wear any of these furs to the average imitation of something else, I must admit that what is called "seal-dyed muskrat" is a splendid imitation of seal, both optically and as to endurance.

Who doesn't want to know how to make that adorable boudoir doll I just brought with me from Paris? There's a new idea afoot in boudoir dolls which demands that they be both decorative and useful, and this one has a specially contrived skirt which covers almost half of a single bed and completely covers the bed pillows.

And as a boudoir doll for a Christmas gift you just know how welcome that would be to any woman of any age—and this lovely doll is not at all difficult to make. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet and see for yourself!

* * * *

"Mademoiselle"—that's the name for the truly smart and practical ensemble of typical Bernard et Cie. chic that I have illustrated for you today. The coat of black cheviot cloth has a discreet touch of white lamb for trimming, and the practical dress is of black wool with fine white dots.

She Fell to Pieces.

The first thing she noticed was an alarming dryness of skin, a brittleness of hair and fingernails, which called for something more than simply medicine for correction. In fact, it called for and got a hot oil massage every night, which required the immediate purchase of flannelette sleeping pajamas and a supreme effort of the will and imagination in temporarily putting aside one's French handmade lingerie. But even one week's endurance of this nightly discomfort showed results. Tell you some more tomorrow.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Osborn" (also spelled "Osburne," "Osbourne," &c.) is found in early English records with an unusually large number of variations in spelling. It is of Scandinavian origin being derived from the Old Norse personal name, "Asbiorn," which means "divine bear." A certain Gerard Oseberne is mentioned in a thirteenth century list of English names.

The family name "Radclif" (also spelled "Radcliffe" and "Radslyffe") is of English origin. It means "the red cliff" and indicates an original place of residence. It is often found in old documents with the latinized form "de Rubro Clivo." Most families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in Radcliffe, Lancashire. A certain Willemus de Radclif is mentioned in the English document of the year 1379. The spelling, "Radcliff," is a rather frequently found modern variation.

The family name "Philipot" means "the son of little Philip." It is a French variation of "Philip," which is ultimately of Greek origin, and means "lover of horses." An English record of the year 1879 mentions a certain Johannes Philipot.

The family name "Buhler" (also spelled "Buehler") is of German origin. Its full significance is "he who lives at or near the hill." It appears to be first recorded in the year 1356.

The personal name "Ramon" is a Spanish variation of "Raymond." "Raymond" is ultimately of Teutonic origin, and may mean either "mighty protection" or "wise protection."

WORK ON BRIDGE

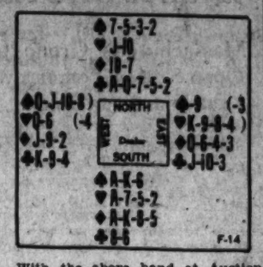
HOW AN EASY GAME WAS LOST.



With the above hand at Auction Bridge, South could bid one No Trump, North two, and South three; safer bidding would be: South two Diamonds, North three Clubs and South three No Trumps. At Auction Bridge South's one No Trump would be the only declaration.

West led the Queen of Spades. South won the trick and led a Club, the Queen finesse winning in the dummy hand. He then led the Ten of Diamonds from dummy and passed the trick up to the West hand. West won with the Jack and led a second Spade. When East discarded a Heart, South won and put dummy in with another Club and then led the Seven of Diamonds, but South was unable to make up a good Diamond for the fourth hand. All that he won, therefore, was two Spades, one Heart, two Diamonds and two Clubs—seven tricks. He complained that the "breaks" had been against him; do you see where he made a bad break himself?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The chances, to be sure, were against him; about the only possibility he had of making game was to find the adverse six Clubs equally divided and the King of Clubs with West. He should have played a small Club from dummy at trick 2 and let East win. East then would lead a Heart which South should duck; but when West returned a Heart or led a Spade, South would win and lead his second Club which dummy would finesse.

The natural breaks of the hand really would have been with Declarer. By his Club finesse he would have made four tricks in that suit besides two Spades, one Heart and two Diamonds. Declarer might have complained if East had held the King of Clubs, in which case Declarer would not have made a single Club; but he could not blame anybody but himself for not first giving away a Club trick so that if the finesse did succeed the Clubs could be established and run.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced text books, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangemen with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Astrological signs on this date are not very encouraging. They denote speculative losses, and disappointments. Differences with those nearest to you are also predicted. Conditions will improve during the later hours of the evening, and a more settled atmosphere will prevail.

Children born on this date are destined to be physically fit, and well equipped mentally. They will give very little trouble as youngsters, but steps will have to be taken to make them less selfish, less self-centered and more considerate of others. Their lives promise to be fairly successful.

You are, in your opinion, the victim of circumstances. Any disappointment that you may experience, any setback that may happen in your career, is always attributed by you to outside influences. You never look yourself squarely in the face, and frankly admit that you yourself are the disturbing factor, and the contributing cause. You complain of your business, but do you put into it that industry and energy, discretion or wisdom which are necessary to achieve results? You complain of the attitude of your friends, but do you ever show that faithfulness, loyalty and unselfishness which always ensure happy social relations? You think you are hard-done-by because peace does not reign in your household, but do you ever stop to think that you expect too much from others, and give too little yourself?

You are a genial companion—when in the mood. You have a personality that is charming—when you feel like exercising it. You are a good husband or wife—as the case may be—when the spirit moves you. You could, if you would, make your own life a great success, and prove to be a source of inspiration to others, if you would consider yourself less, and others more. Remember! You are not the only pebble on the beach. Life has in store for you many ups and downs. This varied experience is necessary to enable you to learn the lessons of life. No outstanding success is in store for you until you attain a mature age, and only then, will you realize that you only get out of life what you put into it.

Successful people born November 17: William Warren, actor. Tom Taggart, politician. Valentine Mott, surgeon. Giuseppe Campanani, operatic barytone. Frank Arthur Vanderlip, banker. Grace Abbott, social worker.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Platonic.

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: I am married twelve years, have worked for the past eight and now wish advice. My husband cares nothing for me and I never cared for him. We just married and soon found we should have stayed single. So far as I know he never has thought of any one else and neither have I.

We do not disagree, just go our way and never bother, and we do love our one child, now 11. She is the cause of my worry. She is very precocious and wise for her years and she knows just how things stand. Is this good for her? She likes her father and is always talking about him and doing things for him. I never stop her, for I have nothing against him. He never has given me cause. He keeps the house and I have all my own money to myself. I have not worked the past six months and everything goes on just fine. My mother says I will be sorry, for sooner or later he will meet some one and then I will sing another song and find out I really loved him. Is this a fact, do you think?

We have just lived as friends these past five years or more. Sometimes I imagine she hears things. His folks are fine to us, and I am sure he has told them nothing. I like them and they like me and are crazy about my little girl. What is your opinion? Do you think he cares for some one else, or what? LENA.

Mothers do have an uncanny aptitude for finding things to worry about. The fact that you and your husband have lived amicably for twelve years would seem to suggest that the plan of life you have evolved meets the requirements of your case, and that is about all one can hope for in the face of the facts. Two people who discovered after marriage that they have made a mistake are in a difficult position.

Very few under such circumstances succeed in avoiding the misery of recriminations and revolt. You are the exception. You have evidently at least great respect for each other as individuals, and must even be remarkably congenial to be able to survive five years of platonic association under one roof.

Personally, I suspect yours was a marriage robbed of the glamour of romance, either through compulsion on the part of parents, or through some other circumstances, and might have been one of unusual promise otherwise. You must be two very superior types, and it seems a pity that you are not in love. Perhaps it might be the best thing that could happen if he did become interested in some one else. Perhaps if something were to shatter your platonic calm where he is concerned, a belated romance might result. Your concern over such a possibility would indicate that you are still interested in him as a man, and suggests that all you need is some sort of jolt. It would be interesting to know the facts surrounding your marriage in the first place. The situation seems so evidently one where one or both felt cheated of romance, and thus wrecked the picture.

When more people know what real love is there will be fewer chasing hopelessly for years only to suddenly discover it walking quietly at their side. Give that a thought.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

STORIED BOXWOOD.

BOXWOOD is always associated with the storied gardens of the past. It is interesting to hark back through the ages and note the changes that have taken place in the modes and methods of gardening.

Boxwood is surely a plant of the ages, having come to us from the days of long ago when it was so popular in the gardens of the Old World. One old book of legends tells us that, as it resembled myrtle or bay, the ancients regarded it with apprehension, for they feared that if it were used by mistake for that other tree in the rites of Venus, that goddess would avenge herself by destroying their virility.

Until about twelve years ago we had to depend on England for our supply of these lovely bushes. These importations naturally ceased when our Government placed an embargo on them, hence the scarcity of boxwood and the consequent higher prices.

The boxwood family is a rather large one, but all varieties have virtually the same habit of growth. Probably the most commonly used variety is sempervivens. All boxwood will stand considerable pruning. They also stand tubbing or potting better than almost any other species of evergreens. All boxwood bushes, whether old or young, should be constantly watched for leaf miner, which in the last few years in the United States has been giving considerable trouble. As soon as you see the leaves beginning to turn yellow or brown, begin to spray for leaf miner.

The leaf miner is a small fly, the larva of which feeds within the leaf of the boxwood. The larva produces a yellowish oval blotch on the upper side of the leaf and a yellowish swollen underside. The miners discolor and kill the leaves and result in the disfigurement and ruin of the bush. The larva spends its entire life within the leaf, the adults emerging and flying, mating and laying eggs during May and June. Where bushes are badly affected, the injured branches should be cut away and burned.

When you detect the presence of leaf miner, begin to spray at once with the following spray:

1 cupful of molasses.
1 teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate.
1 gallon of water.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

MAN gets some of his diseases from the lower animals and, in turn, supplies them with some of his diseases. This is true of some communicable constitutional diseases, such as tuberculosis, undulant fever, and deerfly fever, and also of some skin diseases—for instance, some kinds of mange. This article, however, deals principally with some of the worms which pass from the lower animals to man.

The most important of these is trichinosis. This worm man gets from eating raw or only partially cooked pork, derived from infected pigs. However, trichina are occasionally found in cats, rats and cows. A close observer can see the trichina cysts in infected meat. The larvae parasites in these cysts are killed by cooking. When infected raw meat is eaten the young worms leave the digestive tract and bore into the muscles, causing a fever which may be mistaken for rheumatic fever, typhoid fever, meningitis, dengue, infantile paralysis, or the first stage of smallpox. Trichinosis is frequently fatal.

Creeping eruption is due to a worm which lives in the dog. The larvae of this parasite bore around under the skin causing a very painful skin disease. It is supposed to be contracted by walking around barefoot, or lying on the sand on bathing beaches. One man became infected by pulling off his shirt and lying on the ground under his automobile making repairs.

Man picks up most of his tapeworms by eating raw or undercooked meats. Solium infestation results from eating poorly cooked infected pork. Saginata infestation results from eating undercooked, infested beef. The broad tapeworm gets into man through raw or underdone fish meat.

Man gets one or more tapeworms from rats. Dogs supply him with at least one variety and probably more. The hydratid cyst, which may be a very serious disorder in man, is one stage of a dog tapeworm.

There are many who think that the common round worm is derived from the hog, but the tendency of opinion is in another direction now. But there are varieties of less important round worms which come to man occasionally from animals and fowls.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS . . . By JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER I.

It began this way:

Jean Melba had been to the Torrington-Winsted football game with Phillip Baldwin. Riding home in his shabby roadster, Phillip remarked that she was the best-looking girl at the game. To which Jean had replied quietly:

"Is this the prelude to another proposal?"

"No," Phillip lied, and added, "I mean it."

And he did, of course. Jean was a composite of yellow hair, great blue eyes, a slightly upturned little nose, and a small, cherry-red mouth. Add a slim, lithe figure and you have an unquestionably pretty girl. Phillip not only meant it; he knew what he was talking about.

"I'm grateful," Jean told him. "But if you don't mind, let's talk about something less personal."

"All right," Phillip agreed, "we'll talk about me. I'm very much in love. I have a job that pays fair wages. I could give a nice girl three rooms and a kitchenette and a heart full of real devotion. Not only that, but . . ."

"All you need is the nice girl. Is that it? But why ask foolish questions? If I run into a nice girl, I'll tell her where to find you, Phil."

He was sensitive. She saw the hurt in his gray eyes. "Phil . . . please!" She put a hand on his arm and leaned toward him. "Why do you always have to bring up the same old subject? You know I like you . . . better than any other man I know, but . . . I'm simply not ready to settle down, Phil. I'm only 19 and what have I seen . . . what have I done? I've just got to live a little first. After that . . ."

He nodded gravely. "By that time, I'll be dead of old age."

She laughed merrily. "Poor old decrepit Phil!" And then, seriously: "I don't necessarily mean years, Phil. If I could just get in the swim for . . . oh, a few months, long enough to know what it is, so I wouldn't always be dreaming about what it might have been . . ."

"I wish you'd get in and have it over with," he said petulantly.

She wanted to laugh again, but restrained the impulse.

For many minutes they rode through the peaceful twilight in silence. Jean slumped down in the seat with her head thrown far back, drinking in the cool, crisp air.

Presently she sat up with a little, "Oh . . ." And with her eyes on a lonely little star, mumbled, "Star bright, star light, first star I've seen tonight; I wish I may, I wish I might have the wish I wish tonight . . ."

Phillip grinned. "Wishing what?"

"You'd laugh."

"I promise not to."

"I wish that Santa Claus might come to see me this Christmas."

"Santa Claus!" He wiped the smile from his face with a comical gesture. "Say, it's about time you were growing up."

The little star twinkled gaily, and Jean winked back at it. "No girl ever quite outgrows the illusion of Santa Claus, Phil. She may think she does, but she doesn't. When she discards the child's St. Nicholas, she substitutes another patron saint. She couldn't live if she didn't."

"What does she call him, if not Santa Claus?"

Jean shrugged her shoulders vaguely. "Perhaps she doesn't call him—by name. But when she says 'I hope . . .' or 'I wish . . .' she's talking to him."

"I can't follow you," Phillip admitted smiling. "Anyway, we've gotten away from the subject. You wished that Santa Claus might come to see you Christmas . . . Was that all to the wish?"

"No."

"I'm not laughing."

"You will."

"Cross my heart."

She laughed gently. Then: "I wished that he might come and bring me the rarest of all gifts . . ."

Phillip looked at her curiously. "And the rarest of all gifts is . . .?"

"Adventure . . ."

"The opportunity to 'live,' as you put it?"

"Yes. To get out of the rut, Phil. To get into a fresh atmosphere, to see new faces, to run into the unexpected . . . to get a kick out of life for a change. . . . Do you see what I mean, Phil?"

He nodded uncertainly. "I suppose so, Jean. . . . You expect your wish to come true?"

She shook her yellow head sadly. "Of course not. I've wished it every Christmas since Dad died, and left me with the job of making my own living. . . . The fun's in the wishing."

"And suppose you awake Christmas morning to find me waiting at the door with a marriage license?"

The boy was persistent. She wanted to be angry with him, but she laughed in spite of herself. "Phil," she said suddenly, a mischievous twinkle in her blue eyes, "if you are waiting at the door with a marriage license Christmas morning, do you know what I'll do . . .?"

Phillip grinned. "Shoot me," he said, "or worse."

"Nothing of the kind. I'll . . . marry you!"

* * * *

That is substantially how it began. It was, in much greater degree than Phillip realized, Jean's final surrender. Since she had gone to work as the entire office force of the Red Diamond Novelty Co nearly a year before, she had been thrown with Phillip Baldwin daily. He was foreman of the Harrison avenue garage, just across the street from the Red Diamond plant, and was frequently running in for a hurried chat. She went out with him now and again and came to like him, as she had told him, more than any other man she knew.

But she had never seriously considered him as a husband. Chiefly because she was old-fashioned enough to believe that love should precede marriage, and however much she liked Phillip, she was satisfied in her own heart that she did not love him. How many times had he proposed, and how distasteful had she found the task of repeatedly refusing him.

Her conditional acceptance the night they came from the football game was wholly unpremeditated. Long after she looked back to that night and understood that their conversation had forced her to it. "You expect your wish to come true?" he had asked. And she had answered, "Of course not . . ." and with her words had realised that her happiness depended upon her acceptance of the little that life gave her.

The wishing star was for wishing only. Reality demanded that she forget her silly dreams and extravagant ambitions and make the best of what she had. Adventure, she decided, she could not have: Phillip was hers for the taking. And, tentatively, she had taken him.

But if Jean Melba could have seen through the veil of time and circumstance that concealed the future she might have understood that, after all, wishing stars are not, for wishing only, and that reality, as they say of heaven, is a state of mind.

* * * *

The next day, Monday, November 17, —a date to be remembered—Jean received a letter at the office that called up old memories. It was from Mollie Wilder. Jean and Mollie had gone through high school together and had been inseparable until Mollie, after a violent quarrel with her stepmother, had suddenly departed, bag and baggage, for New York. It had been all of a year and a half since she had gone, and during that time Jean had now and then heard from her, letters filled with the vicissitudes of a working girl in the big city, but the dominant note of which had always been Mollie's unrestrained enthusiasm for its gayer attractions.

She leaped to her feet, caught up a dressing gown and ran to the door.

This letter was no exception, save that for the first time Mollie indulged in what she saw as a vain hope. She wrote:

"Why don't you come on down here and get the hay out of your eyebrows? They don't pay much money, but there are plenty of other ways of grabbing off a dollar here and there. The men are bigger saps than they are in Kelsey. You give them nothing but promises and make them pay and pay. It's a swell life, Jean, honey, and we could have a great time. I've got a bedroom, sitting room (very small but comfortable) and a kitchenette. How about it?"

Jean shook her head soberly. She was fond of Mollie, but she had never approved of her attitude toward life. Once long ago Mollie had told her: "I'm a poor working girl and the world owes me a good living. If I know my onions, I'll get it, sister."

She was evidently getting it, but her methods were not Jean's.

Another paragraph in her letter interested Jean particularly.

"I've met a swell kid from Moberly, Mo., and is he crazy amout me? Wants to get married right now! His name is Cyril Thatcher and I hear his family has plenty. But you know me. How long would I last as a blushing bride? He comes to the store for me almost every night and it looks like he's going to demand a showdown pretty soon, but I'll play him as long as I can. . . ."

Millie's letter was on Jean's mind all morning, but during the afternoon she was too busy to think much about it. Earl Manley, president, treasurer and general foreman of the Red Diamond Novelty Co., called her out into the shop to check nearly 4,000 pounds of display fireworks to be shipped out to Atlanta next morning.

"I'll be glad when this stuff's gone," Manley told her. "It's more dynamite than I like to have in the place at one time."

"Dynamite?" Jean asked.

"Same thing," said Manley. "I hate to think what would happen if anybody dropped a cigarette around here . . . Did you get the two gross of mixed shower bombs?"

Jean wrote, and checked and rechecked. It was after 6 when they finished, and she all but ran to Mrs. Pritchard's a block away. Mrs. Pritchard was a kindly old soul, but she insisted that her boarders be on time for meals. Jean was rarely late and tonight she offered her landlady a hasty apology as she ran in.

"It's not your fault," Mrs. Pritchard said agreeably. "Go on in, child, and I'll get your soup."

Stretched out between clean, cool sheets that night, Jean found herself thinking of Mollie again. Of Mollie and New York, and of her own dreams of some day going there as Mollie had done; only—she couldn't do what Mollie was doing. If she couldn't have a job that paid her enough to live on, she would rather stay in Kelsey, where she could at least be respectable, in her own eyes.

And then she was thinking of Phillip and of her promise. Would he be waiting at Mrs. Pritchard's door Christmas morning? Would she? . . .

Whatever the question, it was never asked, for at that moment Jean's bed suddenly jumped from the floor like a bucking horse, the house trembled, and there came to her ears a noise like the break of doom.

She leaped to her feet, caught up a dressing gown and ran to the door. The house still shook. A woman's voice on the top floor cried out hysterically: "It's an earthquake! Take me out of here! Take me . . ."

Jean knew better. She ran down the stairs in her bare feet, jerked open the front door and stepped out on the narrow porch.

A block to the right the Red Diamond Novelty Co. Building was one great ball of flame.

As if in a stupor, Jean sat down on the top step and closed her eyes. Whatever else more important it might mean, the destruction of the Red Diamond Novelty Co. had but one immediate significance to Jean Melba—she was without a job.

Four Best Macaroni Recipes Are Published for Readers

Winning Dishes Will Offer Something Unusual in Way of Food for Washington Housewives; Spaghetti Ideas Appear Tomorrow.

For the hundreds of contestants who submitted recipes but who did not win prizes, and for the benefit of the general public, which followed the macaroni-spaghetti contest with such interest, The Post today publishes the first four recipes, as judged by the three chefs, for the use of macaroni.

Readers are advised to clip out these recipes and try them the next time they are planning something unusual for the menu. Tomorrow the first four prize-winning recipes in the spaghetti contest will be published.

Mock Asparagus Plate.

The macaroni winners are as follows:

Rinse and dry shrimps, depending upon number to be served. Boil enough string beans, whole, to have about six for each serving. Break a package of Mueller's macaroni, the very thick kind, into pieces about the average length of asparagus. Do not cook macaroni too soft. Drain with cold water. Put the macaroni spread out in a flat mass on a plate, lengthened like asparagus. Cover the tips with drawn butter to resemble asparagus tips. In the middle of the macaroni, place the string beans crosswise as though to bind the macaroni. On both sides put small mounds of shrimps. Have everything good and hot. Cover the shrimps with thick, Hollandaise sauce.

The same dish can be used as a salad. On individual plates put crisp lettuce leaves, have everything ice cold in this case, omit the drawn butter, and use mayonnaise instead of Hollandaise sauce.

STEPHANIE REILLY.
1301 Fifteenth street northwest, Washington, D. C.

Spaghetti Ring With Creamed Chicken Sauce.

Boil one package of Mueller's spaghetti for nine or more minutes to suit your taste. Drain thoroughly and turn into an angel cake tin, and chill. When cold turn out onto a flat dish, being careful not to break the molded spaghetti ring. Fill center with hot cream sauce to which has been added one cup of cooked diced chicken, a hard boiled egg (sliced), and a small can of mushrooms cut in small pieces. Decorate with thin slices of red pimentos and serve at once.

BESSIE BRYANT FITTS.
120 East Thornapple street, Chevy Chase, Md.

French Fried Elbow Macaroni.

One-half package Mueller's elbow macaroni
Fat for frying

Drop macaroni into boiling salted water and cook until almost tender. Drain well.

Fill deep fat frying pan about 2-3 full of fat. Heat to 390 degrees F.

Drop cooked, drained macaroni into hot fat—about half the amount at one time—and fry to a light brown. Dip out with small strainer or slotted spoon. Drain off fat on brown paper.

Delicious with creamed dishes.

MRS. ROBERT PAGE BURRUSS.
2804 Fourteenth street northwest.

Mock Potato Salad.

½ package elbow macaroni
6 large-sized potatoes
1 medium-sized onion
1 small red or green pepper
1 hard boiled egg
Mayonnaise and seasoning to taste.

Boil the potatoes with the skins on. When cool peel and cut in dice-size cubes. Boil the macaroni until tender, in salted water, immerse in cold water. Cut the onion and pepper in small pieces. Mix all together with the mayonnaise and seasoning. Garnish on top with the hard boiled egg and a little parsley if desired. This is quite an addition to the old-fashioned potato salad.

Roast Beef Hash, Serving Six.

2 cups chopped, cooked beef (left-over steak or roast)
2 cups cooked potatoes, chopped
2 tablespoons chopped onions
4 tablespoons chopped green peppers (these can be omitted)
4 tablespoons chopped celery
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2-3 cup milk or gravy
2 tablespoons butter

Mix all ingredients and pour into buttered baking dish. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve in dish in which baked.

A half cup of other cooked vegetables, as beans or peas, can be added if desired.

Mashed Potato Chocolate Cake.

1 cup fat (half butter)
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup warm mashed potatoes
3 squares chocolate, melted
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
2 cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder.

Cream the fat and sugar. Add all rest of ingredients and beat vigorously 3 minutes. Pour into three-layer cake pans, which have been lined with waxed papers. Bake 30 minutes in a moderately slow oven.

Creamy Frosting.

3 cups sugar
1½ cups water
1 tablespoon vinegar
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar, water and vinegar. Boil gently and without stirring until a fine thread forms when a portion is slowly poured from a spoon. Pour slowly into the egg whites, stiffly beaten. Beat until creamy and cold. Add vanilla.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

VEGETABLES IN THE CHILD'S DIET
(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

During the second year a well child should take eight ounces of vegetable soup or two or three heaping tablespoons of vegetable puree at his noon meal.

The following cooked vegetables are allowed: Peas, string beans, carrots, spinach, celery lettuce, asparagus tips, young beets, young onions and artichokes. All of these vegetables must be put through a fine sieve. Dried peas and beans may be given in purees.

Tubers, such as potatoes, should not be considered as a green vegetable. They are in reality starch, and although valuable for their mineral content, do not take the place of leaf or root vegetables in the diet. By 14 months a starchy vegetable or food such as potato or rice, macaroni or spaghetti, may be given with the vegetable soup or boiled vegetables at dinner. Rice, macaroni, spaghetti or barley may be given in the soup.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—Nearly all the scenes of a film taken in Africa were found to be lightstruck when the company returned. So it became necessary to refilm most of it and to restage many of the wild animal shots.

NORMA TALMADGE

Pumas, lions and other beasts of the jungle, imported for the occasion, were assembled at an isolated spot in Mexico, in a large enclosure lined with "prop" trees. Cameras were turned on them when they were released from their cages.

The animals that were supposed to fight merely looked at each other and walked away.

Experts are trying to devise ways to make them stage a battle.

When Bull Montana was "discovered" by Douglas Fairbanks in 1918 he was a trainer in a gymnasium in New York. Fairbanks brought "Bool" here as his trainer, but he turned actor.

He was successful for a number of years as an arch heavy. But lately parts haven't been coming his way so very often.

So Bull has gone back to his old trade. He is Doug's trainer again.

Overhead.

Outside of salaries, one of the largest items in studio overhead is the cost of insurance. And some stars' insurance premiums are no minor expense, either.

Seven stars, Gloria Swanson, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Buster Keaton and Eric von Stroheim, have life policies of a million or more. Never mind, I've figured it: The annual premium on a $1,000,000 policy is between $25,000 and $40,000.

Oddly, only a few companies insure their stars' lives and health. Several studios have insurance against loss of time through delays caused by weather or accidents.

Just about everything in Hollywood can be insured—except the success of the pictures.

Exit.

Spectators at the opening of a play here saw a bit of drama in the audience when the lights went on after the first act.

A star who recently sued her husband for divorce sat directly across the aisle from him. With him was another star, whom he has been "dating" recently.

When the about-to-be former husband discovered his soon-to-be former wife, he left his seat and sent a friend to occupy it during the remainder of the show.

Silver, with which film is coated, is removed during developing. Every year studios salvage several thousand dollars' worth of metal.

W. O. W. Will Hold Dance.

Company A, 103rd Regiment, the uniformed degree outfit of Oak Camp No. 4, Woodmen of the World, will hold a dance at 9 o'clock Wednesday night at the W. O. W. hall, 923 Grant place northwest. A feature of the affair will be the identification of a "masked marvel."

Missing Wife Is Found.

After a three-day absence from her home at 1529 Otis street northeast, Mrs. Elizabeth Tillittson, 57 years old, was found yesterday in Philadelphia. She had gone there to visit relatives. Her husband, George Tillittson, had asked the police to aid in the search.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

The Gift for Music.

The gift for music is the only one of the special talents which it has been possible to study and measure in such a way as to bring forth significant and practical results.

From such studies it appears that the gift for music is entirely unrelated to general intelligence. In other words, among a group of children selected for their high intelligence, musical ability would appear no more frequently than among an unselected group.

It is because musical ability is a native gift, independent of intellectual development, that we find in this field child wonders who rank among the great geniuses of the world.

Not only is musical ability a native gift, but one which it is impossible to develop through training where it does not already exist. Musically talented children, however, need training if they are to develop the full use of their powers.

Unfortunately, the tests which measure musical talent require a 10 or 11 year old level of intelligence for their execution, and it is therefore impossible to measure this capacity in children who fall below the 10 or 14 year old level.

The tests, therefore, are of no help in determining the existence of talent in young children. They should, however, be useful to the parent who, believing his child to be talented, plans to give him intensive musical training.

The use of these tests before much time and money and energy are expended in acquiring technique in the execution of music would often save all of these and much disappointment as well.

It is well to bear in mind, however, that children lacking in a degree of talent which would make intensive musical training advisable may yet be capable of learning to enjoy music and should, therefore, be given every opportunity to develop this capacity.

New York Clubman Marries.

Safe for the Daintiest Silks

THINK of it! A laundry service that is safe even for your dainty colored silks and rayons. Safe because it eliminates the old way of rubbing out the life of clothes to get them clean. In Manhattan's Net Bag System your pieces are sorted according to color and material into individual nets containing only your things. Fresh, foamy soap suds—of pure Palm Oil soap and soft filtered water—swish through every thread of the clothes. Floods of fresh, cool water rinse away every speck of dirt, leaving your things like new. No wonder our customers entrust us with their finest things. Remember Manhattan's famous Collection and Delivery System that brings you this remarkable service in just three days at no extra cost. And if you don't think Manhattan services are economical just read the list at the right and pick the one you like best. Phone for our driver today.

RAIL BROTHERHOODS WILL REPORT TODAY

Committee on Wage Program Believe Legislation Hope of Short Day.

TO PLAY DOWN STRIKES

Chicago, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The committee of 25 of the Railroad Brotherhoods and the Switchman's Union, in session to work out a wage and legislative program, will report recommendations for a six-hour day with eight hours pay at a meeting of the general chairmen Monday.

The committee, it is understood, is agreed that only through legislative action can the six-hour day be secured, and that before it can be enacted by Congress a long campaign of education must be conducted.

"Federal legislation must be sought," a member of the committee said today, "with the battle fought out in Washington."

Soft Pedal Strike Threats.

With this object in view, it is considered probable that a soft pedal will be put on threats of strike, partly because it is generally agreed that such agitation would tend to create an adverse public sentiment and partly because the engineers, the key men, are opposed to a strike exactly as they were in the Adamson law agitation and again in 1921.

On the other hand, the switchmen, who have no seniority rights to lose, and who have been displaced in large numbers by the adoption of yard devices that automatically distribute freight cars, are more inclined "to go the full route."

To Stress Unemployment.

The report of the committee will stress unemployment among railroad men and the large decrease in the number of enginemen, firemen and train hands since the period of Government control, and in recent years through the adoption of more powerful locomotives, automatic stokers and longer trains.

Although it is a basic rather than an actual six-hour day that is sought, it is figured that inauguration of the shorter basic day would provide employment for 100,000 men.

It is the further thought of the committee that in demanding a basic six-hour day the operating men will have the support of many industrial unions which have it on their program and the benefit of the campaign of the American Federation of Labor for a general reduction of working hours.

Flight Record Claimed By Italian War Aviator

Rome, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Right Wing Fascist organ, Tevere, yesterday reported that Ferrarin, the famous war ace, has won a new record at the Littorio Airport by rising 5,000 meters in 53 minutes.

He flew a plane newly built at Naples and averaged 20 kilometers an hour. The ship is named the RO-10 and is slated for civil work either between Rome and Vienna, or to the French frontier via Genoa. Tevere says it can cross the French Alps easily and rise to 5,500 meters.

MORE COLLAPSES FEARED AT LYONS

Walls of Houses Reported Shifting Under Continued Rainfall.

16 BODIES RECOVERED

Lyons, France, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Four more bodies were recovered today from the mass of wreckage left by a landslide believed to have buried at least 100 persons here last Wednesday. Sixteen bodies now have been recovered.

The day was one of sadness and apprehension, for continued rains caused fears that more houses would collapse. One wall of a house in the Chemin Neuf in the danger area did collapse with a terrific noise. The walls of houses in the Chemin Chazeaux were found to have shifted from their foundations.

Catholics were alarmed by reports that the famous Basilica Fourviere, on Crown Hill, was in danger of falling if new landslides occurred. Canon Berjat, of the Basilica, reassured the populace, saying the Basilica was built on a rock which extends far beneath the surface of the hill. He said there was no justification for the alarm.

The bodies discovered today were those of three women and an infant.

Two Fine Flyers lead a fleet of 9 Pennsylvania Trains Daily to Chicago

DAILY a fleet of nine swift Pennsylvania flyers, led by The Liberty Limited and The Golden Arrow, speeds to Chicago. When you travel westward, select the train with the schedule that best fits in with your personal and business plans . . . the train that leaves at the most convenient hour, gets you to your destination at the best time. Travel at your convenience.

To St. Louis, six trains daily, headed by The American and the "Spirit of St. Louis," offer an equally flexible schedule.

In addition to their swift schedules, Pennsylvania trains offer up-to-date appointments . . . courteous, well-trained personnel . . . appetizing menus in the dining car . . . comfort which makes the trip seem even shorter.

When you plan a trip to the West, remember the flexible schedules of the Pennsylvania. Travel over one of the smoothest roadbeds in America laid with rails more than one-third heavier than those in ordinary use. And let the Pennsylvania agent arrange the details of your trip.

FORMER BODYGUARD SUES G. BRYAN PITTS

One of F. H. Smith Defendants Alleged to Owe $25,000 for Services.

ACTION IN ALEXANDRIA

Little more than a week before three former officials of the F. H. Smith Co. are due to go on trial on charges of conspiring to embezzle nearly $5,000,000 of the firm's funds and to destroy allegedly incriminating records, revelation has been made that one of the three has been sued by his former bodyguard for personal and special services.

Harry S. Barger, attorney, disclosed that he had represented Anthony Senes, former bodyguard of G. Bryan Pitts, in suing the latter for $25,000 which Senes claimed was promised him by Pitts in obtaining "an abatement of Pitts' income tax assessments in 1924, 1925 and 1926."

The action, according to Mr. Barger, was filed about three weeks ago in Alexandria, Va., against Pitts, chairman of the F. H. Smith Co.'s board of directors, during an active period in the firm's history. Senes charged in his suit that the $25,000 "promised by Pitts for services of a valuable and effective nature" has been due since December, 1927.

The trial of the three former Smith Co. officials will open next Monday before Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court, according to Nugent Dodds, special assistant to the Attorney General.

Chest's Speakers To Attend Class

Weekly Course Will Open Wednesday Night at Homer Building.

Weekly speaking classes for Community Chest workers will be inaugurated Wednesday night at the Homer Building, with four addresses designed to improve the methods of presenting pleas for charitable aid.

The speakers will be Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., secretary of the Washington Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Homer Connellor, assistant pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church; Miss Hettie F. Anderson, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. W. W. Wheeler, of the District Federation of Women's Clubs. The class will open at 6:30 p. m.

Miss Blanche Renard, secretary of the chest's budget committee, will cite favorable points made by the speakers, while W. W. Wheeler will point out what he considers errors in technique. J. O. Martin, editor of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.'s publication, will be the presiding judge.

Social Agencies to Get Health Survey Results

Health conditions in the District, as ascertained in an exhaustive survey conducted by Dr. William F. Walker, will be reviewed at a meeting of the Washington Council of Social Agencies to be held at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Y. W. C. A. Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, District Commissioner, and representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and Merchants & Manufacturers Association, are expected to attend the gathering.

Dr. Walker represents the American Public Health Association, which started a survey of health and hospital facilities in the District more than a year ago, under the auspices of the Council of Social Agencies and the Community Chest.

Capitalist Nations Plan War on Soviet, Charge

Charges that the "capitalist nations of the world are plotting war against the Soviet Union" were made by Linn A. E. Gale, president of the Washington Open Forum, yesterday afternoon, in a lecture before the forum at 808 I street northwest.

Julius Davidson, chairman, explained that Gale's opinions did not in any respect bind the forum, which, he pointed out, is neutral. Gale, he said, was speaking as an individual and not in his capacity as forum president. "Communism is inevitable; it is the next step in social progress," said Gale.

FLEXIBILITY URGED IN CHILD AID FUNDS

Report to Conference Holds Restrictions Limit Possible Benefits.

FALKS DETAILS VIEWS

Greater flexibility in the terms under which gifts and bequests were made, so that funds will be available for unrestricted use, is essential to the proper provision for needy and neglected children, according to a report to be submitted to the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection when that body convenes Wednesday.

Homer Falks, chairman of the committee on dependency and neglect, said yesterday that although millions of dollars were given annually for needy children, rigid limitations usually handicapped those entrusted with the expenditure of the funds.

"Endowments, gifts and foundations for child care should be in general and flexible terms," he asserted, "leaving precise methods of care and choice of types of beneficiaries to the discretion of future trustees. Agencies for child care should express their corporate purposes in general, inclusive and flexible terms. Such agencies are exempt from taxation, because they are expected to do work which would otherwise have to be paid for out of public funds.

"Gifts and bequests for child care are to be encouraged, but all practical steps should be taken to bring to the attention of prospective donors the very great importance of leaving the precise methods of application of such funds to the wisdom of the future. Corporations engaging in child care, for like reason, should state their purposes in general and inclusive terms, rather than in narrow and exclusive objectives."

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agr., Weather Bureau, Washington, Sunday, Nov. 16—8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Mostly cloudy, with occasional showers Monday and probably Tuesday; continued mild temperature; gentle southeast and south winds.

For Maryland and Virginia—Mostly cloudy, with occasional showers Monday and probably Tuesday; continued mild temperature; gentle southeast and south winds.

The disturbance that was central over eastern Kansas Saturday night is now centered north of Minnesota and moving north-northeastward with increasing intensity, Sioux Lookout, 28.92 inches, and the extensive disturbance from Alaska continues to move slowly southeastward, being central tonight over British Columbia, Prince Rupert, 29.04 inches, and pressure is abnormally low thence southeastward to Nevada, Utah and Colorado. Another disturbance of marked intensity is moving slowly southward over the ocean with center about 600 miles east of Newfoundland. Pressure remains high from Greenland southwestward to eastern Hudson Strait, and thence southward to the vicinity of Bermuda, Nassolution Island, 30.40, and Chatham, N. S., 30.38 inches. Within the last 24 hours rain has again fallen over most sections west of the Rocky Mountains and over practically the entire Eastern half of the United States except the Florida Peninsula. The rainfall was heavy in portions of the South Atlantic and East Gulf States and Eastern Tennessee, Birmingham, Ala., reporting the greatest amount, 3.06 inches. The temperature has risen quite generally over the Western half of the United States, and it has fallen from Wisconsin and Minnesota southward to the West Gulf Coast, but the weather continues unseasonably warm from the Mississippi River eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

The indications are for occasional showers in the Atlantic States, the Appalachian region and Tennessee Monday and probably Tuesday and for generally fair weather Monday and showers on Tuesday in the Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region. The temperature will continue mild throughout the Washington forecast district during the next two days.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

AT SCANT COST

WHERE there are goods to be hauled and work to be done, the Ford 1½-ton truck finds its proper place. You will see these trucks in widespread service, lending their power and strength to the jobs in hand. In each case, the full measure of hauling value they give is increased by their marked economy.

Mechanical excellence, which contributes to reliability and capable performance in the Ford truck, is evident throughout its chassis. The 4-cylinder engine develops 40 horse-power at 2200 r. p. m., which is but a moderate engine-speed. More than twenty ball and roller bearings reduce friction and wear at important points in the chassis, adding to the life of the truck.

Simplicity of the electrical, ignition, cooling, lubrication and fuel systems also insures uninterrupted service, and lowers the cost of maintenance.

Other features of importance are the forty different kinds of steel in the chassis; the extensive use of fine steel forgings; the spiral bevel gear rear axle, with straddle-mounted pinion; 4-speed transmission; large, fully enclosed brakes; and dual rear wheels, available at small additional cost.

There is a wide range of bodies, making the Ford truck adaptable to economical service in many businesses. See this truck at the showroom of your Ford dealer. You can find the name and address of the nearest dealer in your "Where to Buy It" Classified Telephone Directory under the name "Ford."

INJURIES TO WORKERS SHOULD BE REDUCED, MEEKER STATES

Hands of Industry Bloody; Thousands Killed, Maimed

Reemployment as Well as Compensation of injured Workers Is Urged by Wilson's Commissioner of Labor Statistics.

By ROYAL MEEKER
(Commissioner of Labor Statistics Under President Wilson).
Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 16.—Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont recently issued an appeal over the radio addressed to the employers and employes of the United States, asking that they unite in an effort to reduce the enormous human and economic losses caused by industrial accidents. The occasion of Secretary Lamont's address was the award of prizes in the New York safety contest recently sponsored by the Merchants Association of New York.

Secretary Lamont gave out the estimate made by the National Safety Council for the United States in 1929, of 23,000 deaths and 3,000,000 disabilities involving money losses of $1,000,000,000 from industrial accidents, most of which are preventable. In New York City alone the money losses were estimated to be $60,000,000.

It is frequently stated that accidents in the United States are on the increase. This assertion is so unprecise as to be useless. Of course, accidents would naturally increase in number with the increase in population, if there were no other changes to be taken account of. But there are many other things which affect the number and rate of accidents. The increase in industrialization and the increase in machinery and the speeding up of the productive processes tend greatly to increase, not merely the number of accidents, but the number per thousand population and per thousand workers.

The iron and steel industry is one of the most hazardous of industries, but also one in which the best records of accident prevention have been made. The improvement, however, has been chiefly in minor accidents. Due to faulty engineering the severity of accidents remains high.

Most Accidents Preventable.

It is also sometimes asserted that 75 per cent to 95 per cent of all industrial accidents are preventable. It is not necessary or useful to dispute about the percentage or preventability, or whether employers or employes are most to blame for the fearful toll of accidents. Thanks to the studies made by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and other governmental agencies and the earnest, persistent safety work carried out by private corporations encouraged by the National Safety Council, such encouraging results have been achieved in certain industries as to indicate that a very high percentage of all occupational accidents can be eliminated.

The safety movement depends for its success upon a careful study of the causes and results of accidents. The safety engineer can not eliminate or reduce accidents unless he knows what specific things are most important in causing accidents. He must also classify accidents according to their severity, so that he can give attention to those conditions which cause the most serious disabilities. In accident prevention the number and the rate of accident occurrence or frequency are of minor importance compared to the severity of accidents.

The accident frequency rate is expressed as the number of accidents occurring per 1,000,000 worker-hours of exposure. This can be envisaged as the number of accidents which occur every hour of the working day among an army of 1,000,000 workers.

The accident severity rate is the number of days lost because of injuries per 1,000 hours an individual worker is exposed to accident. This will be clearer if we assume that a plant employs exactly 1,000 workers. The severity rate in this plant would register the number of days which are lost because of accidents occurring each hour the plant is operated. In some industries the accident frequency rate has declined while the severity rate has gone up.

Frequency Rate Reduced.

The accident records in iron and steel and other major industries, compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, may be taken as indicative of what may be achieved for accident prevention in the more dangerous industries. From 1910, when the safety movement was started, to 1927, the accident frequency rate per 1,000,000 worker-hours exposure was reduced from 5.20 to 2.30, or 56 per cent. In the cement industry, from 1919 to 1927, the frequency rate declined 67 per cent, the severity rate 49 per cent; in paper making, from 1920 to 1927, the declines were 41 per cent and 40 per bent, respectively; in chemicals, from 1923 to 1927, the declines were 27.5 per cent and 60 per cent, respectively.

If by carefully planned safety work such notable reductions can be made in such short periods of time, it seems reasonable to expect that intensive effort can in the next ten years cut in half the destruction of lives, health, and dollars by industrial accidents.

The statement has been made that since our country has become an independent nation, fifteen times as many persons have been killed or injured in industry alone as have been lost in the Nation's battles. This assertion may be accepted without comment as possibly true enough, but it is very misleading in its implication that work risks are more deadly than war risks. This assertion can be given a semblance of fact only when viewed through utterly distorted statistical spectacles.

The War Angle.

It should be noted that about 40,000,000 persons "gainfully employed" were exposed constantly, day in and day out, to work accidents during the eighteen months ending with the armistic of November 11, 1918. During that year and a half, from 100,000 to 4,000,000 American soldiers and marines were exposed to the hazards of disease and traumatic injury incident to preparing for and carrying on war. The strictly battlefield hazards, however, affected an average of possibly 500,000 men at the most, for not more than 400 twenty-hour days—a battle risk, let us say, of 4,000,000,000 man-hours exposure to battle injuries as against

COMMODITY PRICE SLUMP IS HALTED

Cheerful Character Comes After Gradual Decline in Market.

METAL PRODUCTS RISE

The threatened further serious relapse in the wholesale commodity price level was averted last week when the index held steady at the preceding week's figure of 82.2 (1926 equals 100). As a matter of fact, the level rose by less than 0.05 per cent, although this fractional gain does not show in the single decimal of the index figure. The cheerful character of last week's commodity prices came after a gradual decline since the week ended October 11. The index of a week back was a new low for 1929-30.

The market was spotty, with the leading commodities making conspicuous gains to hold the level steady against a larger number of less important falls.

The purchasing power of the wholesale dollar dropped by less than 0.1 per cent from the year's high of 121.7, reached during the week ended November 7. The dollar in wholesale markets was worth 21.6 cents more last week than in the base year 1926.

| Week ended— | Price index (1926 equals 100) | Index of buying power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents) |
|---|---|---|
| November 15 | 82.2 | 121.6 |
| November 8 | 82.2 | 121.7 |

Metal Products on Rise.

Last week's commodity market was characterized by sharp rises in several leading items, and small falls in a large number of items. This caused the index of the market to hold at the preceding week's level.

Raw materials and semimanufactured goods rose by 0.12 and 1.47 per cent, respectively, last week. Eggs, corn, oats, jute, beef, copper, tin and sugar were responsible for the rises in these groups, against lower prices in coffee, wheat, hogs, potatoes, wool and turpentine.

Finished goods dropped by 0.35 per cent last week, failing to show gains for the second consecutive week. Since the year's low of 84.2 in the week ended October 18, the price level of finished goods has fluctuated by less than 0.5 of an index point, indicating a steady level at 84.4.

Group Indexes Vary.

The group indexes varied in their movement last week. Agricultural products dropped by 1.45 per cent, with farm products steady, up by 0.12 per cent. Foodstuffs were weak, off by 0.9 per cent to the year's low of 87.8. Non-agricultural products rose last week by 0.82 per cent. The

BONDS CONTINUING DOWNWARD TREND

Sharp Decline in Price Lead Takes Index Near to Low of Year.

U. S. ISSUES ARE STEADY

(Irving Fisher Service).

The sharp decline in the bond price level continued through November 15, taking the index of 70 bonds to 100.04, only 0.18 per cent above the year's low on January 3.

Three groups, industrials, foreign government and second-grade rail bonds, reached lows for the year on the thirteenth. Over a period of six weeks since the 1930 high on September 26, the price index of all bonds has been off, moving down by 2.10 per cent from that date to November 13. The decline since the slight recovery culminating November 4, has been less precipitate than during the first half of October. The week closed at 100.21, up somewhat from the preceding day's low, so that the change over the week was a decline of 0.40 per cent. Trading was active, showing a 19.26 per cent increase over the preceding week.

Second-grade rails hold their place as showing the greatest weakness, down by 0.80 per cent over the week, although this grade conforms, as do all the groups, to the movement of all bonds. Industrial bonds, reaching a 1930 low at 97.00 on November 13, saw a decline of 0.27 per cent over the week. The low of foreign government bonds on November 13 of 98.74, carried it 0.28 per cent below the year's low on January 8. With slight upturn at the week's close, this group's decline for the week was by 0.35 per cent. U. S. Government bonds held steady at the year's high with a gain of 0.03 per cent over the week.

What Helps to Increase Trade.

The development of efficient monetary and banking systems tends to increase trade. There have been times in the history of the world when the money was in so uncertain a state that people hesitated to make many trade contracts because of the lack of knowledge of what would be required of them when the contract should be fulfilled. In the same way, when people can not depend on the good faith or stability of banks they will hesitate to use deposits and checks.

Influences Acting on Prices.

As Macaulay said, with the exception of the alphabet and the printing press, no set of inventions has tended to alter civilization so much as those which abridge distance—such as the railway, the steamship, the telephone, the telegraph, and that conveyor of information and advertisements, the newspaper. These all tend, therefore, to decrease prices.

Mohawks Tie Marines in Mud, 0-0

Gass' Punting Holds Devil Dogs; Two Threats Fail.

Hawks Lose Scoring Chance on Fumble; Daly Stars.

THREE "M's" were thoroughly mixed at Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon, and after some 60 minutes of slip and slide football the Marines, the Mohawks and the Mud were pried apart with the scoreboard still showing a pair of zeroes. Some 500 faithful fans filed out of the park with supporters of both teams claiming their favorites would have won on a dry field.

Not even the presence of Gen. Smedley D. Butler could spur the Marines to a score under the conditions. Like the Mohawks, the Devil Dogs fought for every inch they gained, but with scoring opportunities at hand a stubborn defense and the sloppy going turned them back.

Goss' Punts Big Help To Hawks.

While the Mohawks came closest to a touchdown, it was the punting of Hooley Gass which repeatedly extricated the Indians from embarrassing situations. On one occasion, Gass punted 60 yards from behind his goal line and made the tackle in midfield.

The Marines presented a snappy football team. They were equipped with the collegiate spinner-playa and triple passes and it was evident that the Hawks would have had to put up an even more sensational defensive exhibition than that of yesterday if they were to stop the Quantico eleven on a firm gridiron.

Lieut. Daly, former Naval Academy star, proved one of the few backs on the field able to keep his feet in the mud. He contributed a number of good gains, including the longest run of the game—one of 35 yards. On this dash, Fee Colliere, Mohawk quarter back and safety man, appeared to save a touchdown when he grabbed Daly by the foot on a diving tackle.

Mohawks Advance To 6-Yard Line.

The Mohawks had their best scoring chance just after the game started. The Marines fumbled after

Canzoneri Will Fight In Chicago on Dec. 29

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri, new lightweight champion of the world, has agreed to box in the Chicago Stadium December 29, meeting any opponent matchmaker Nate Lewis might select. It is possible that the winner of the Barney Ross-Harry Dublinsky bout in the stadium Friday night will be named to meet Canzoneri.

American Golf Pros Plan Japanese Tour

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Bobby Cruickshank and Wild Bill Mehlhorn, two of the leading exhibition players among American professional golfers, have accepted an invitation to play a series of exhibition matches on the principal golf courses in Japan, the Japan Golf Association announced today. They will sail from San Francisco November 29.

In addition to playing, the pros plan to establish a "caddy foundation" in Japan for the training of caddies along occidental lines. There are a good many good golf courses in Japan, but tourist players have occasionally had difficulties getting accustomed to Japanese caddies and the Japan Association believes a little professional training would help the club carriers of the island empire.

AVELINO PEREZ— "the Cuban eye-popper" CAN MAKE HIS EYES BULGE FROM THEIR SOCKETS AND RETURN AT WILL /

A WHITE CROW IS OWNED BY CHAS. M. STITT, of Hollywood, Cal.
829

LAST Saturday, you remember, I said that it was illegal to mutilate United States coins, but perfectly lawful to destroy them. The reason for this is that mutilated coins do not retain their face value. But you can destroy all the money you want to. Go ahead. And then there was pictured Riza Shah Pahlevi, who rose from stable boy to Shah of Persia, a $50,000,000 throne. He did it during the World War, when things were upset politically. That boy is certainly getting ahead in the world.

Now in the above pictures. . . The Cuban eye-popper—no, it's not a trade—is the only person in the world able to perform this feat. The trick is this. He breaks the equilibrium of the eye muscles and then contracts them.

The white crow is indeed a great rarity. Its owner rescued it from the merciless attack of two of its black brothers. Similarly there have been instances of white or "albino" blackbirds.

Floyd Hughes bet on Ma Ferguson in a recent Texas election. Ma lost.

MARLBORO 6-1 VICTOR AT SOCCER

British Uniteds Have Few Players; Cup Tie Next Week.

MARLBORO won a hollow 6-to-1 triumph over British United yesterday in the only soccer match played to a conclusion. The English kickers started the contest with five men and finished with eight. The win practically cinches the Washington Soccer League championship for the Maryland lads. The game was played in a heavy downpour with a handful of spectators viewing what should have been the feature of the league season.

Silver Spring no doubt decided the weather conditions were not propitious for soccer and failed to appear for its

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

THE last time a George Washington University Football Team was rated a favorite to defeat its ancient rival, Catholic University, the dope was knocked sky high by Cardinal aerial bombardments. That was in 1927, when the Cardinals, led by the passing wizard, Ray Foley, subdued a strong Colonial eleven by a score of 27 to 21.

Next Friday night in Griffith Stadium, G. W. and C. U. clash once more, and for the first time since 1927 the Colonials are regarded the favorites.

Already it has appeared evident that the forward pass will be Catholic's chief weapon in this annual scrap. And as the game draws near the Cardinals' chances of upsetting the dope seem more healthy. It will be remembered that at the beginning of the season the sharpshooters were picking G. W. to win just about as it pleased.

Colonials' Air Defense Weakness Revealed.

Colonial supporters are now worrying over the fact that the pass defense of Jim Pixlee's men is woefully weak. As much was demonstrated last Saturday when they failed utterly to break up the forwards of Albright, who swamped them by 33 to 0.

The Cards are going to capitalize to the fullest whatever weakness they find in the Colonial overhead defense and will be ready with Johnny Oliver, Buster Sheary and Tom Whelan to becloud the sky with darting pigskins. A short while ago the Cards almost upset a strong Duquesne Team with passes and since then have drilled intensively to increase the effectiveness of this sort of attack.

Hoppe and Cochran Start 18.2 Title Play

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Willie Hoppe, veteran billiard star, defends his 18.1 balk line title against Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, at the Strand Academy this week in a 3,600-point match beginning tomorrow. Twelve blocks of 300 points each will be played afternoon and evening every day this week.

At stake will be the diamond championship medal held by Hoppe and a side forfeit of $250. Sixty-five per cent of the gate receipts will go to the winner and 35 to the loser.

The match marks Hoppe's first move in his break with the National Billiard Association, which has controlled professional billiards through the sponsorship of equipment companies. The association has refused to recognize the match. Hoppe, with the support of Cochran and others, hopes to establish a new federation of billiard players.

BUELL FACES TRAMBERIA TONIGHT

Clash Features Card as Ft. Washington Shows Resume.

BOXING will be resumed at Fort Washington tonight, starting at 8:30 p. m., with Matchmaker Frankie Mann having arranged a six-bout card which calls for 40 rounds of fighting. All of the bouts, which will be staged in the Soldiers Armory, promise action.

Eddie Buell, Washington's flashy 126-pounder, will take on Jim Tramberia in the scheduled ten-round feature. The latter has met Frankie De Angelo twice on the Fort Washington ring, and made a hit on both occasions, proving to be a willing mixer of the rough and aggressive type. Buell will have his hands full gaining the verdict.

Strickler Battles O'Brien.

In the eight-round semifinal Billy Strickler takes on Mickey O'Brien, of Fort Bragg, N. C. Both of these 160-pounders sling a wicked pair of gloves and this bout should prove to be a worthwhile one. Tony Urian and Pat Kenurt open the card with a four-rounder, with the following bouts over the six-round route completing the card: Rody Davis, of Northeast, vs. Buddy Ealin, of Silver Spring; Willie Essinger vs. Young Lazarus, and Bennie Tootman vs. Whitey Sailor, of North Carolina.

Fans will be taken to Fort Washington free of charge on a boat leaving the Barracks Wharf at 7 o'clock and Alexandria at 7:30. For the information of those planning to motor to the bouts, the road has been recently repaired and now is in fine shape. Charley Short will be the third man in the ring, with the inimitable Jimmy Lake doing the announcing.

Army-Navy Cheering Squads Ruled Only "Gate-Crashers"

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Final plans for the Army-Navy football game, to be played at the Yankee Stadium December 13 for the benefit of the Nation's unemployed will be formulated tomorrow afternoon at an executive meeting between Grover A. Whalen and his Salvation Army citizens' committee and representatives of the Military and Naval Academies.

The corps of both service institutions—1,300 at West Point and 2,100 at Annapolis—will be admitted free to the game, as their cheers, songs, parades and tricks are considered as much if not more of a drawing card than the game itself.

Otherwise, the affair will be strictly a benefit attraction, and paid admissions will be exacted from the working press, photographers and radio broadcasters and members of Congress, who previously have been on the free list.

Both the Army and Navy Athletic Associations will distribute tickets at $5 apiece to its members, while the remainder of the seats will be distributed by the citizens' committee from a headquarters to be announced after the session.

A warning was issued by the committee today that any persons representing themselves as promoters or solicitors for the Army-Navy game were acting without authority. No money or checks for tickets will be accepted until the office of the committee is opened. The address will be announced tomorrow.

Society girls are expected to assist in handling the clerical work of the ticket committee after its organization meeting. It was learned tonight. The entire arrangements in connection with the game will be handled by volunteer workers, and all proceeds collected will be used solely for charity purposes.

C. U. and G. W. Meet Again Friday

Annual Encounter of Local Rivals Listed Under Lights.

Maryland U. at Navy. Saturday; Hilltop at Villanova.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE football for 1930 reaches the close Friday night, when George Washington and Catholic Universities, the warmest rivals in local sports history, meet in Griffith Stadium for the eleventh game of a series that began in 1920. But while this is the local finale, a game will be played Saturday which will prove a powerful magnet to Capital fans, when Maryland and Navy collide on Farragut Field at Annapolis.

Georgetown and Gallaudet also are scheduled for action on Saturday, the former against Villanova, a Jesuit rival, at Philadelphia, and the latter against St. Francis, one of the several small but strong Pennsylvania teams, at Lorreto, Pa. The last-mentioned is a night game.

All four contests loom up as hard tests for the teams involved, and if indications are borne out by developmeans each will be closely contested.

Colonials Seek First Victory Since 1924.

The George Washington-Catholic battle promises to provide plenty of excitement, for when these old foes clash in any sport no quarter is asked or given.

George Washington will be seeking its first victory in the series since 1924 and its third since the series was inaugurated. The 1922 game resulted in a Colonial victory, besides that of 1924.

In recent weeks the prospect of a runaway for the Colonials has vanished. The Cardinals have improved rapidly. Last Saturday's results did not augur well for G. W., as Coach Pixlee's team, weighted by overconfidence, took a 33-to-0 walloping from Albright, while Coach Bergman's outfit held Manhattan to a 7-to-6 score.

It is no secret that Catholic has been saving something for the forthcoming struggle in hopes of continuing its winning streak and proving earlier predictions wrong. Ed O'Brien, stalwart tackle, has been given a long rest and Bergman has eased up on the other regulars as much as possible.

Coach Pixlee was disgusted with the failure of his men at Reading. Though he previously conceded Albright to be a capable team, he thought the Colonials could win if they played the football shown against Tulsa and New York Aggies in their two preceding contests. But the Colonials, after running up 66 points against a wofully weak New York Aggies eleven, patted themselves on the back and refused to take Albright seriously. They reached the 10-yard line in the first quarter, but failed to continue ahead, and then, becoming disorganized, beat a retreat the rest of the game.

Maryland's Offense May Beat Navy.

Maryland goes to Annapolis with a fine chance of turning in an upset. The Navy will be favored. It is the

Big Ten Football Race Likely to End in Tie

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Northwestern is champion of the Western Conference, at least until next Saturday night. By that time Michigan will be joint holder of the title, provided the Wolverines defeat Chicago in the final game of the season.

Defeating Wisconsin, 20 to 7, Saturday, Northwestern closed its Big Ten schedule with five straight victories, and by defeating Chicago next Saturday, which seems as certain as death and taxes, the Wolverines will have won their fifth consecutive conference triumph, to divide the 1930 championship with the Wildcats. Purdue, the 1929 champion, seems certain to finish in third place, with fourth place in doubt. Purdue plays Indiana at Lafayette and the Boilermakers shape up like certain winners.

The undefeated and untied Northwestern Eleven, victorious in seven games, registered five of them in conference competition.

Scalzi's Ill-Fated Safety Ruled on Flimsy Evidence

Referee Turns Hawkshaw to Show Where G. U. Quarter Back Stepped Over End Zone; Hilltoppers Deserved to Win.

By JACK ESPEY.

A TEAM and an individual that play the game as wholeheartedly and try as hard to win as Georgetown and Johnny Scalzi deserve a much better break from Dame Fortune than she gave them last Saturday in the mud and mire of Yankee Stadium in New York. The worst Her Majesty should have given the Hilltoppers was a scoreless tie. New York U. won an unearned safety.

Outplaying their foes all the way, gaining twice as much yardage and surprising even their most ardent supporters by the thoroughness and effectiveness of their defensive efforts, the Hilltoppers had to accept defeat on a questionable decision of Referee C. Taggart, who ruled that Scalzi's foot was a few inches behind his own end zone line when he punted out of danger in the fourth quarter.

That was all-American hard luck. Scalzi and his mates had just smashed a Violet attack at the very doorstep of a touchdown—1 yard from the goal line—the closest the men of the Hall of Fame got to the Georgetown goal during the game. The Violets had four chances to put the ball over from the 8-yard line after recovering a fumble by Leroy Bordeau, but their vaunted power thrusts could not penetrate what was virtually an impregnable line from start to finish.

Mr. Taggart Turns Hawkshaw.

And what eyes Mr. Taggart must have. He was able to show Scalzi exactly where the latter's foot rested in the soft ground. The evidence, but what kind of evidence? The fact that any one of a number of feet may have made that imprint tainted the evidence as less worthy than circumstantial. The game was more than three-quarters gone. Certainly that particular piece of ground had not escaped a trodding beforehand.

Scalzi, who is a modest youth and an athlete who never baits officials, took the referee's word that the imprint was made by him, but he denied that he stepped back before he kicked. Kickers don't kick by stepping backward, at least when conditions are such that getting the ball away quickly is vital. It was vital to kick quickly from where Johnny stood. A blocked kick might have resulted in an N. Y. U. touchdown or an ordinary safety. It is easily possible that Scalzi, after punting, stepped back to avoid contact with onrushing Violet linemen—a gesture of self defense.

But no. Clear-sighted Mr. Taggart can distinguish the imprint of Scalzi's No. 7 anywhere, any place, any time—even so well as to tell just when it was made.

Gotham Scribes Say Referee Erred.

Some Manhattan writers claimed that Taggart obviously erred. If they were inclined to be prejudiced in their opinions, surely Georgetown wouldn't have derived the benefit.

Other New York scriveners, agreeing with Taggart's decision, viewed the result in the light of a payment of an old debt. Georgetown, they said, owed the Violet something for taking that 7—2 decision in 1928 when Ken Provencial scooped up a loose ball and ran 87 yards to defeat a N. Y. U. eleven that had clearly outplayed Georgetown.

New York U. was outplayed last Saturday as much as Georgetown was two years ago. But nobody had anticipated this. Here was a team that had handily beaten Villanova and Carnegie Tech and had held powerful Fordham to one touchdown.

While Georgetown's offense excelled the Violet's, the defense of the

Nagurski Is Hero As Bears Beat Giants

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The Chicago Bears defeated the New York Giants in a national profootball league game at the Polo Grounds today, 12 to 0. The game was fought out on a muddy field and in a drizzling rain that handicapped the Giants' attack, based largely on Benny Friedman's passing skill.

Nagurski broke through for both Chicago touchdowns in the third and fourth periods.

Amateur Body To Approve Marks

Hill's American Mile Record of 4:12 2-5 to Be Accepted.

Decline in Track Is Noted; D. C. to Gain Larger Scope.

THE performance of Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California sprinter, who last May ran 100 yards in 9 2-5 seconds in a Pacific Coast meet, will be recognized today as a new world's record, as far as America is concerned, when the Amateur Athletic Union meets in its forty-second annual convention in the Hamilton Hotel.

This was authoritatively indicated last night following a meeting of the national records committee of the union, which, along with numerous other subsidiary groups of the organization, discussed developments of the past twelve months in the field of amateur sport as the convention got under way informally.

Wykoff's time excels by on-tenth second the present accepted world's standard, accredited Eddie Tolan, dusky Michigan sprinter, who ran the "century" in 9 5-10 seconds in 1929 to displace Charley Paddock from the top of the list of the world's fastest runners.

Hill's Record for Mile To Be Accepted.

Not only will Wykoff's record be recognized, but all other important claims for new marks in track and field and swimming as well, it was indicated. Prominent among the others is a claim for an American record by Ralph Hills, University of Oregon athlete, who was timed in 4 minutes 12 2-5 seconds in a mile race last spring.

The A. A. U. is expected to recommend Wykoff's mark to the International Athletic Federation for international recognition.

More than 200 delegates from all sections of the United States representing 26 district associations registered at the Hamilton Hotel yesterday. The convention will be called to order this morning by President Avery Brundage, of Chicago. Maj. Gen. Herbert L. Crosby, District Commissioner, will welcome the delegates to the Capital. At noon the entire assemblage will visit President Hoover at the White House. A photograph will be taken.

U. S. Athletes Abroad Must Take Oaths.

A new regulation designed to forestall acceptance of gratuities by United States athletes competing in foreign countries has been drawn up by the foreign relations committee, Ferris also stated. According to this rule every American athlete invited to compete in a foreign country must upon acceptance agree under oath in a written statement not to accept any form of compensation for his services. He also must agree to go through with his acceptance, this clause being inserted to protect the foreign promoters against interest-stripping withdrawals from their programs.

Brundage Notes Decline In Track and Field.

A decline in interest in track and field, the oldest and in some respects the most prominent of all sports in the United States, has been officially noted during the last twelve months by the Amateur Athletic Union.

President Avery Brundage, of Chicago, who will read his report to the assembly today, has found that golf, tennis, swimming and other summer activities have taken away from the interest in track and field.

So marked has been the decline that President Brundage will strongly recommend that the officers and committeemen of every district association in the union do their utmost to revive and stimulate activity in the sport during the next year.

The convention is being sponsored by the District of Columbia Association, the youngest of the 26 district organizations within the union. More than 200 delegates from all sections of the United States and from Honolulu, Hawaii, were registered last night.

Meetings of various committees absorbed the attention of the delegates yesterday and the convention will be

$10,000 Race Draws Field Of Stars

12-Day Meet Opens With Prince Georges as Feature.

Sprinters to Clash in Burch Memorial; Jock Choice.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 16.—Bowie to Bowie is the beginning and end of Eastern racing. A fine program has been offered for the Prince Georges track for the beginning of the twelve-day session tomorrow. The post time on the first race is 1 p. m., Eastern standard time. The track is muddy. The fields are large. The feature is the $10,000 added Prince Georges (fall) Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, eighth running, sixteen horses named to start. The supporting feature is the W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap.

Sixteen have been entered for the Prince Georges with William Ziegler's Spinach, carrying top weight of 128 pounds, the handicapper's choice. The steady rains of the past two days has reduced the track to a bog and it is expected that the muddy going will result in several scratches.

Outstanding Sprinters In Burch Memorial.

Many of the outstanding 3-year-olds now in the East are scheduled to face the barrier in the Prince Georges with Spinach's chief contention coming from Bal Parr's clever filly, Her Grace; the Rancocas' Mokatam, Chaffe Earl's inconsistent Jim Dandy and Mrs. J. D. Hertz's Valenciennes, a recent winner at Pimlico.

The Burch Memorial has attracted thirteen entries from the 3-year-old and up division. It is a 6-furlong sprint that will bring together the outstanding sprinters campaigning on Maryland tracks. Favoritism appears to lie with Jock, the veteran campaigner of John Schorr, who has been displaying a recent return to form. Among others, he must beat Judge Schilling, a winner at Pimlico and The Spare, which scored twice at the Baltimore meeting.

Sport at Bowie Track Develops Quickly.

Racing has improved faster at Bowie than at any track in the country. The track had a master builder in James F. O'Hara, who was compelled to retire on account of ill health. This year the fall meeting has more horses and of higher class than for years. The attendance has increased every year since the million-dollar grand stand was built.

The big stakes that have become fixtures are: Saturday, the $30,000 Southern Maryland Handicap; Thanksgiving Day, $10,000 Thanksgiving Handicap; November 29, last day, $10,000 Endurance Handicap for 2-year-olds. The $10,000 Prince Georges Handicaps, spring and fall editions, open the meetings.

Bowie has the breaks in the fall. It is the only track running until Thanksgiving Day, when Jefferson Park starts. This fact concentrates the attention of the followers of the horses all over the country.

Betting at Pimlico Lightest in Years.

The Pimlico meeting did not suffer from falling off in attendance, except on two or three days, during the bad weather, but there was much smaller volume in betting than has been known in years.

The Pimlico track pays $9,000 State and county tax a day, and Maryland owes its wonderful public roads to taxes from the mile race tracks—Pimlico, Havre de Grace, Laurel and Bowie.

When Miller Henderson, trainer for the Audley Farm Stable, went to a Baltimore hospital for treatment for an ear trouble, his dog did not understand it. Dogs know they are not permitted on a race track, for the penalty is death if horses are on the course, but there are dogs in all the stables, and they get along fine with their own horses.

It was the custom of this dog to walk up and down the inclosure at Pimlico each morning while Henderson had his horses out on the track for workouts, and meet the horses at the gate and return with them to the stables. Missing his master, this dog assumed his usual beat on the outside, but seemed lost. He met the horses as usual when they returned to the barn, and remained in the stables until work time the following day, but refused to eat.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 16.—SPINACH may get a licking in the $10,000 Prince Georges. The William Ziegler, jr., horse has the highest weight he has ever carried—128 pounds. The Sanford Farm's $35,000 colt—STARTATIC—has 116 pounds, is a fresh horse, pointed for this race, and will be a long price. There is no contention that he ranks quite up with Spinach but the conditions of the race, the distance, the mud, all are in his favor. SPINACH can run all day, will be the close favorite, and may carry his high impost to victory, but he would have a better chance at a mile and a half.

STARPATIC will carry SPINACH so fast that the Sir Martin colt may never catch him. It was at Laurel that HER GRACE beat him when he had 126 pounds at a mile and a quarter. STARPATIC also was beaten in that race, his only start in Maryland. He has rested since then. Previous to that he defeated Sun Edwin at Empire City. STARPATIC is selected, and his stable has much faith in his ability to win. ESCUTC

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE LEADERS IN SCORELESS TIES

DEADLOCK REMAINS IN UNLIMITED RACE; BRENTWOOD VICTOR

St. Pleasant-Marion, Mercury-Brookland Fail to Score.

Centennials Awarded Forfeit; Palace and Del Ray Tied.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

FOR the second consecutive Sunday the so-called "crucial" battles betwen the four leaders in the unlimited section of The Post's Capital City Football League each resulted in a scoreless draw. Yesterday it was the Mercury-Brookland, Seat Pleasant-Marion contests which found neither team collecting a single point, much less gaining the decision.

Rain, which fell intermittently in each game, made the playing fields veritable morasses of mud and water and undoubtedly contributed greatly to both tie scores.

Managers of St. Stephen and Quentin, the clubs who were scheduled to clash on the Gonzaga gridiron in the third game on the circuit's fifth round card yesterday, agreed to postpone their contest until after the close of the regular league season. The deplorable condition of the Gonzaga field because of heavy rains made necessary the postponement.

So evenly matched were the Mercurys and Brooklands in their engagement staged on the Silver Spring gridiron that even if the playing field had been in the finest possible condition, it is extremely doubtful if either team would have scored. The game was a see-saw affair throughout, with neither club having any pronounced edge over the other.

The Brooklanders had the ball in Mercury territory most of the first half, making one serious threat to score in the dying moments of the second quarter. An exchange of punts gave the Northeast team the oval on the Mercs' 39-yard strip. A short pass, Holden to Evans, made a first down on the 28-yard line. Cannon on three successive plunges made another first down on the 16-yard mark. Sult, however, checked the threat by intercepting Holden's pass on the Southwesters' 8-yard line. During this first half the Brooklanders ran up 5 first downs to a single one for the Mercurys.

Twice in the third period the Northeasters got inside the Mercurys' 25-yard mark, to be halted without further gain. The Merc running attack failed to function satisfactorily until the final quarter when the Brooklands were hard pressed on two occasions to prevent a Southwest touchdown.

Throwing short passes with excellent success and pounding the tackles for sizable gains, the Mercurys marched from their own 24-yard line to the Brooklanders' 21-yard strip in this last period. Grant, Brookland's roving center, who played a whale of a defensive game all day, then intercepted a Mercury pass.

Blocked Kick Gives Mercury Ball.

A blocked kick on the very next play gave the Mercs the pigskin again on Brooklands' 21-yard line. Lewis then tossed a short heave to Handcock who was downed 11 yards from the Northeast goal line. A determined Brookland defense stopped three running plays and Handiboe dropped back to the 23-yard to attempt a drop-kick. His effort was too short and the game ended shortly afterwards.

Eight first downs were hung by the Brooklands during the battle to seven earned by the Southwesters. The line-plunging of Cannon and Voorhees, the defensive work of Grant and Woodruff, and the all-around performances of Capt. Johnny Holden featured for Brookland. The Limerick brothers, Sult, and Claggett bore the brunt of the Mercury play.

A courageous Marion eleven once more refused to admit defeat, when defeat seemed to be in the books for it, and battled the Seat Pleasants every inch of the way in a contest played at Boyer Stadium, Seat Pleasant. Three times in the second half the Southeasters stood on their own goal line and repulsed almost certain Seat Pleasant touchdown sorties, twice on the 1-yard mark.

The Marions even outplayed the Marylanders by a slight margin in the initial half, outrushing their hosts two to one, and threatening to score on one occasion. An intercepted pass gave the Southeast players the ball on Seat Pleasant's 39-yard mark early in the second quarter. A 25-yard penalty put the oval on the Suburbanites' 11-yard strip. The Maryland forwards then broke up a passing attack and Seat Pleasant took the pigskin on downs.

The lackadaisical efforts which characterized the Marylanders' play in the first half vanished at the start of the second. Augustine and Ratke were the spearheads of an offense which soon shoved the oval down the field to the Marions' 19-yard mark, where the attack was halted.

The Southeasters narrowly averted a safety being scored on them late in the third period. On fourth down a bad pass from center went over Hoff's head, Hoff recovering the ball behind his own goal line and lunging forward to the 1-yard mark before being tackled. A Seat Pleasant touchdown seemed imminent but the Marions rallied to stop four successive line attempts.

Poor Kicking Aids Marylanders.

Poor kicking on the part of the Marions enabled the Marylanders to get inside the Southeasters' 10-yard mark on two occasions in the last quarter. On one of these times the Seat Pleasants shoved the ball again to the 1-yard line. A 5-yard penalty at this point for too many time outs in the half, proved costly as only threes of these previous yards were regained on two attempts off-tackle.

Ratke tried to drop-kick from the 28-yard mark on the last play of the game, which went wide of the posts. The Seat Pleasants registered ten first downs during the contest, most of which came in the second half, to six for the Marions.

Outstanding for the Marylanders were Ball, Woodward, Hodkinson, Ratke, Fisher, Elliroy and Johnny Miles. For the Marions, Bergling Hoff, Nolan and Borden played the best football.

Alexandria Title Tilt Ends in Scoreless Tie

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Nov. 15.—A great game of football, was the unanimous opinion of the 500 fans, who stood in the rain to watch Engine Company No. 5 and the Iroquois Athletic Club, two local teams, battle for the 150-pound city title. The contest ended in a 0—0 tie.

Both teams made one threat for a touchdown in the final quarter. The Iroquois rushed the ball to the Smoke-Eaters 11-yard line, where they were held for downs, while the Firemen recovered two fumbled punts and were on the Iroquois' 15-yard line before losing the leather on an intercepted forward pass.

Capt. Sullivan, of the Iroquois, was the "Big Bertha" for his team. He did most of the ground gaining and backed up the line well. Elliott and Struder's work stood out for Coach Peyton's eleven. It is possible that the two clubs may clash again next month.

MERIDIANS WIN THRILLERE.

Mark Whelan, fleet Meridian half back, covered himself with glory yesterday afternoon by returning an intercepted pass 63 yards in the last three minutes of play for the touchdown which enabled his team to beat the Northeast Trojans in a Sport Mart League game, 6-0. The contest was staged on the West Potomac gridiron. By virtue of the triumph, the Meridians went into undisputed possession of second place in the circuit. Askin and Whelan starred for the winners.

NOEL-MERCURY TIE.

Noel House and Mercury battled to a 6-6 tie in a hard-fought 125-pound Sport Mart League game, staged yesterday afternoon on the Monument Grounds before 500 people. Aubrey Martin scored the Noel touchdown late in the first period on a beautiful 43-yard sprint around end. Lassise tallied the tying six-pointer for the Mercurys in the third quarter by plunging off tackle for 11 yards. Lassise and Henley stood out for the Southwest outfit, while A. Martin and Kent were the Noel luminaries.

NAVAL TEAM WINS FROM NORTHERN

Seaman Gunners 6-0 Victors in Upset; Bricker Scores.

THE Seaman Gunners, from the Washington Navy Yard, sprang an upset yesterday when they defeated the Northern A. C. eleven on the Silver Spring field by a 6-0 margin. The Sailors took upon the victory as qualifying them for games with the Apaches and the Mohawks in the District championship race.

Both teams turned back drives on the brink of the goal line before the Gunners shoved over their touchdown. Pigg gave the Sailors their scoring opportunity when he recovered the ball on the Northern 30-yard line on a blocked kick.

With Bricker doing the bulk of the work, the Navy drove toward the goal line, but there the Redbirds stiffened and took the ball on downs, a matter of inches deciding the issue. From here they kicked to Hanschman on the 40-yard line from where he returned to the 20-yard line as the quarter ended. This time the Navy was not to be denied and in a steady march they drove over the goal line, Bricker making it by inches. A pass for points was incomplete.

With but a few minutes left, Northerns strove desperately to gain the needed touchdown.

Outstanding for the Northerns were Maas, Bridges, Fox and Berry who contributed many good gains. The Gunners played "heads up" football with Pigg, Johnson and Bricker outstanding. Bricker was the individual star of the game, his kicking, passing, running and terrific plunging being the feature of his team attack.

The game was clean, well played and hard fought, few penalties being handed out and no injuries being suered by either team.

SCOTS ACCEPT CHALLENGE.

Rothesay, Scotland, Nov. 16 (A.P.). The Royal Northern Yachting Club of Scotland has received a challenge for the Seawanhaka cup from the Seawanhaka - Corinthian Club of America. The challenge has been accepted and the races will take place near here in the Firth of Clyde about the middle of June next year.

Hide and Seek Results When 'Gator Grabs Ball

Gainsville, Fla., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—It was a happy day for Coach Charlie Bachman when Dale "Muddy" Waters went out for football.

Waters is one of those lads whose No. 12 shoes and hands that hide the ball are his chief assets on the gridiron.

Standing 6 feet 3 inches, with 195 pounds of well-packed muscle, the big alligator star has little chance to carry the ball in his capacity as a tackle. But when he does it it's a game of hide and seek to find the oval.

He's a senior and is having his biggest year. Many observers pick him as one of the two best tackles in Dixie.

J. C. C. LISTS BOXING ON NOV. 24

Meets Philadelphia Team in Season's First Bouts.

THE Jewish Community Center boxing team will open its 1930-31 season on Monday, November 24, when it will meet a formidable aggregation from Philadelphia, Pa., sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Section of the A. A. U.

Coach Jim McNamara's mitt slingers are now entering their fifth year of club competition and have yet to taste defeat in dual encounters. With a couple of welcome additions to his veteran squad, the Sixteenth and Q streeters seemed primed for another gala season.

Marmel to Fight at 118 Pounds.

Eddie Marmel, late of New York University, will represent the Center in the 118-pound class. Leon Shub, 17-year-old Central High School student and a personal protege of the ever popular McNamara, is set to defend the Center in the 126-pound class, along with the classy Mike Tardugno. Shub is a southpaw. Tardugno earned a good many laurels in collegiate circles while representing Georgetown University.

Maxie Kossof, hailing from Rochester, N. Y., and winner of two bouts for the J. C. C. last fall, will again represent them in the 135-pound class. Jocko Miller, District champ, and runner-up for National A. A. U. honors last fall, will again represent the Center in the 14-pound class. The selections for the heavier classes, according to Jim McNamara, genial athletic director, have not been made as yet.

This show, as well as all future shows to be staged at the J. C. C., will be open to members of the Center only. Membership applications may be made at Sixteenth and Q streets northwest.

MARINES TIE HAWKS IN MUD, 0-0

Gass' Punting Holds Devil Dogs at Bay; 2 Threats Fail.

receiving the kick-off and when Colliere and Joe Sweeney worked a pass to give the Hawks a first down 6 yards from the Marine goal it appeared that the Indians would make a touchdown. However, two tries at the Marine line failed and a fumble lost the ball on the next attempt.

The remainder of the period was a flub and dub exhibition between the 40-yard lines.

In the second period, the Marines, with Young using a quick punt, backed the Mohawks to their goal. Joe Sweeney, on a punt, let the ball roll by him in the expectation of a touchback, but Carter, Marine end, grounded the ball on the 8-yard line. It was at this point that Gass got off his sensational 60-yard boot.

The Marines sent in a fresh line, starting the second half. Daly brought the service rooters to their feet by grabbing a punt and twisting his way through a number of tacklers to gain a clear road near the side line. Colliere brought him down on the Mohawk 40-yard line after a 35-yard gain.

Last Marine Threat Ends With Pass.

There was little excitement thereafter until the closing minutes of the game, when the Marines drove their way to three first downs in a row to put the ball on the Mohawk 15-yard line, where a pass failed just as the game ended.

The defensive play of Buck O'Brien, Mohawk end, was one of the outstanding features of the game. O'Brien repeatedly broke up Marine plays and hauled down the runner sometimes with a grab while sprawling.

KELLEY SAYS EASTERN IS READY

Inspired Team Plays Tech Tomorrow in Title Game.

By MIKE KELLEY
(Eastern High School Coach).

THIS Tech-Eastern battle tomorrow for the 1930 gridiron title may not be classed as "the battle of the century," but it marks the elimination of a season of real endeavor on the part of the eleven from Capitol Hill to rise above the level figured for it by admirers and depesters of the local schoolboys.

Many were of the opinion that Eastern had been holding back some potential strength that was let loose against Central, but such was not the case, for the Lincoln Parkers did as well as they knew how in each of the series games before Central was met, and after considerable floundering around, suddenly began to click, and the feeling was such a tonic that the players themselves don't seem to know when they're going to get over it.

Eastern Pepped Up For Battle.

Eastern is all pepped up over the idea of playing Tech for the championship. The strength of the Manual Trainers this season is no secret to them and they realize the task awaiting them on Tuesday of stopping Hardell's squad, that has run roughshod over the other series rivals. Tech has scored 90 points in three games against Business, Central and Western and has had no points scored against its team. Eastern, in its three engagements against the same teams, scored 25 points without being scored on.

"Chicago fears Purdue" used to be good for a laugh in the old days and "Tech fears Eastern" may cause ripples of amusement to followers of the series this year when one compares the records of the two teams in series play and considers the fact that the present Tech team is on a par with any Hardell has turned out in his seven years of coaching. Still you can't convince the wearers of the Light Blue and White that they are in for a drubbing Tuesday. They've been told right along by the critics that they were due for a good licking in each series game and the admonition didn't seem to ruffle their feelings to any extent; so now, with the championship at stake, they figure being the under-dog has its compensations.

Sportsmanship to Rule, Says Kelley.

However the outcome, Eastern enjoys battling Tech for honors in local schoolboy circles. The spirit of sportsmanship pervades the meetings of these rivals and tomorrow's game will be no exception.

An inspired Eastern team licked Central. An inspired Eastern club meets Tech with the odds against it but with the goal of a football championship, so long denied it, hanging in the balance. Eastern concedes Tech weight, Eastern concedes Tech speed but Eastern concedes Tech nothing in the way of fighting spirit and because of the latter, enters the crucial game on tomorrow ready to give its best and to offer no alibis, win, lose or draw.

CARDS-COLONIALS IN WEEK'S FEATURE

first game of a three-year series between the two Old Line institutions.

The attack developed by Coach Curly Byrd this fall is the most effective Maryland has possessed in many seasons. In seven games to date the Terrapins have never once failed to score less than thirteen points.

Navy, boasting a stronger defense, will have its hands full. If Maryland can match its own offense with a defense comparable to Navy's, then the Annapolis crew may take it on the chin for the fifth time. Navy, however, may be expected to put up a bitter fight against such an eventuality.

Having made a clean sweep of its games with Virginia's "Big Four" by downing V. P. I. last Saturday, Maryland now has bigger things to accomplish. Following Navy, it meets Johns Hopkins, Vanderbilt and Western Maryland. An Annapolis victory will give the Byrdmen a fine start in this tough late season traveling.

Villanova Offers Hurdle for Georgetown.

Villanova, despite losses to Bucknell, Duke and Gettysburg, figures to extend Georgetown to the limit; but if the Hoyas' efforts against New York U. last Saturday gave a true gauge on their strength, Villanova will find them just about all the opposition it cares to engage.

Bill Maczees, left half back, probably will be lost to Georgetown the balance of the season. He suffered a badly injured hip in the New York clash and spent Saturday night and yesterday in a hospital. Ed Leary and Johnny Bozek will divide the left half back duties in the Villanova and Detroit games.

Villanova, coached by Harry Stuhldreher, exemplifies the Notre Dame style of football, as does Georgetown. Georgetown already has beaten one Notre Dame exponent — Michigan State, coached by Harry Crowley—so that it feels confident of at least making it hot for the Wildcats.

Gallaudet will strike for its sixth victory of the campaign against St. Francis at Loretto, Pa. If successful, Coach Hughes' pupils will hang up the best record made by a Kendall Green eleven for a decade. The Blues surprised by downing the Langley Field Aviators last Saturday.

SAFETY BY SCALZI WAS QUESTIONABLE

Millsmen was really the outstanding factor. The front line that had started out so shakily at the beginning of the season gave a masterful performance. From end to end the charging Hilltop forwards looked as impressive as the great G. U. linemen of 1929.

Picking out any one member of the line for highest praise is a difficult task, so well did all play, but if this were a necessity the nomination is deserved by Dick Danner, reserve right guard, who has been filling in for Charley Brickman, injured regular, the past five weeks. Danner's tackling has not been equaled by a Georgetown lineman this year. He was dragging down Violet ball carriers from behind in their own back field.

LeRoy Bordeau, who yet hasn't learned to hold onto the ball when running, suffered the worst experience of his career. He fumbled no less than six times, twice when Georgetown was in scoring distance. He would have had a great day but for his bobbles. He was the biggest individual threat Georgetown had on the attack and proved himself a great source of trouble to New York on the defense.

Scalzi, in addition to directing his team smartly, bore the kicking burden and made two fine attempts to score drop-kicks. On the safety play his punt with a heavy, slippery ball carried 50 yards on the fly. Had the ball been dry both of his drop-kicks might have gone home.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

But the G. W. coaches are not asleep. Beginning this afternoon their instructions will deal with little but aerial defense. All of the Colonial practices this week will be held secretly.

Pixlee Reserves Three Line Mainstays.

G. W.'s running attack probably will give the Cardinals their greatest trouble. Pixlee withheld three important cogs in his ground offense from the Albright game. He kept Bert Bagranoff, guard; Walter Slaird, tackle, and Fred Mulvey, end, on the bench. This trio combines a lot of interfering ability.

Joe Carter, one of the leading Colonial backs, may be unable to perform Friday night on account of an ankle injury sustained at Reading. Billy Wells and Lee Carlin, other first-string ball toters, also were hurt last Saturday, but are expected to return for duty against Catholic.

Taggart Ill Omen To Georgetown.

Referee C. Taggart is getting to be bad news to Georgetown. He officiated last year at Annapolis when the Hilltop outfought the Navy but got only a scoreless tie. And last Saturday he was right on deck to hand out another bitter pill when the Blue and Gray dropped a fluky decision to New York U. after outplaying the Violet from whistle to whistle.

Coach Tom Mills told his players after the game to offer no alibies. "Show them you are real sportsmen; admit defeat and make no complaints," he said.

Wilton Lackaye, the actor; Arthur Devlin, former New York Giants third baseman, and Harry Costello, claimed by many to have been the greatest back Georgetown ever had, were among the Hilltop alumni who gathered in New York last Friday night to promise Mills their support of his administration of Georgetown athletics.

LOCAL A. A. U. EXTENSION LIKELY

Radius of 15 Miles to Be Included in District Body.

called to order this morning at 9 o'clock by President Brundage. A welcoming speech will be made by Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner. At noon the entire assemblage will visit President Hoover at the White House where a photograph with the Chief Executive will be taken.

D. C. Group Extension Probable.

Of especial local interest is the consideration by the national redistricting committee headed by Charles L. Ornstein of an application to extend the boundaries of the District Association whereby it would assume jurisdiction of an area within a 15-mile radius of Washington. The extension would take in the towns of Upper Marlboro, Hyattsville and Beltsville in Maryland and Fairfax and Vienna in Virginia. Through a previous extension the District association acquired the city of Alexandria.

The decision of the redistricting committee will be announced probably today. A favorable report is anticipated. The committee also is expected to report favorably on the application of a group of organizations in Texas for a new association to be known as the Gulf Coast Association with headquarters in Houston. This will be the twenty-seventh district association of the union. Applications for associations in Western Massachusetts and Northeastern Ohio will be tabled.

Simpson, Kiser, Rothert Selected.

It was announced by Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary-treasurer, that George Simpson, Rufus W. Kiser and Harlow Rothert, three outstanding American athletes, have been selected to represent the United States in track and field games in New Zealand this winter upon invitation. They will sail on December 24 and will return about the middle of March.

In this connection Ferris revealed that the foreign relations committee had drawn up a statement to be signed by these and all other American athletes in the future before they depart for foreign competition. In the statement the athletes must agree under oath not to accept any gratuity or compensation for his services and to go through with his acceptance of the invitation.

A feature of the day's sessions was the report that New York had bid $18,000 for the national senior boxing championships and that by a vote of 10 to 9 the event would be awarded to Gotham. Boston, which for 28 years had sponsored this event, is expected to bring up the question again today on the floor of the convention.

Marathon Awarded To Baltimore.

The 26-mile national marathon was awarded to Baltimore, the 15-mile event to Ypsilanti, Mich., and the 10-mile hike to the Connecticut Association. The national women's basket ball tournament goes to Dallas, Tex.

Regarding players competing on teams representing commercial houses, the legislative committee rejected a proposed rule that such players must be employed with the firms they represent on the court for a period of at least 90 days before being eligible to compete in the national tourney.

Among the recommendations made in President Brundage's report was an alliance with the Y. M. C. A., that the individual associations devise means of raising funds for the payment of coaches to instruct the young athletes, and that the A. A. U. take over the control of hockey.

Among the delegates present last night was Gertrude Ederle, the first woman swimmer to cross the English Channel.

Utah Gridmen Gain Third Straight Title

Denver, Colo., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The perennial football monarch of the Rocky Mountain region, Ike Armstrong's University of Utah eleven, today was in possession of its third consecutive championship.

The Utes became the first team to win the title three times in a row in the Rocky Mountain Conference by subduing the University of Colorado yesterday, 34 to 0. It was Utah's twenty-first consecutive victory on the gridiron. By defeating Utah Aggies, on Thanksgiving Day, Utah can finish its 1930 campaign as one of the few undefeated and untied teams in the Nation.

With the Indians a mathematical certainty for the championship, the race for positions today presented a garbled picture. Colorado and Brigham Young Universities are tied for second place, with Colorado having one more game to play and the Cougars through for the season.

HIGH COURT SQUADS TO BE CUT

Coaches Start Weeding Out Candidates Today.

MESSRS. Boyd, Coggins, Guyon, Moore and Woodworth, basket ball coaches of the five local high schools, begin the annual task of separating the chaff from the wheat this week, when work in earnest starts on the raft of aspirants seeking scholastic court berths.

All five teams have been riddled by graduation of their regular performers and the coaches must pluck promising material from the new ranks to fill in the gaps.

Squad of 108 Techmen Cut in Half.

Coach Artie Boyd, mentor of Tech, defending champions, has been supervising 108 courtmen and has already cut the squad in half. Everett Russell and Nelson Johns, regular forward and guard from last year's five, are the only veterans in the bunch. Graduation took Carl McCarthy, George Lasaise, Jake Olderson, George Talbott and Tom Wilson, the bulk of last year's team.

Eastern, which finished in a triple tie with Central and Western for second place last year, looks like it will be a strong contender again this year. Chief Guyon has had his squad out since the first week of school and has worked a large squad down to 25 seekers of berths. Capt. Barney Kane, Noonan, Shirley and Finneran are back on hand and exhibiting improved form. Graduation hit Eastern along with the rest of the schools, but a bit more lightly. Kessler, Miles, Phillips and Robey being those who have finished school.

Central was hit hard by graduation, with practically the first team wiped out. Lamson, Brandt, Cross, Parkins, Korman and Downey are some of the regulars now in college. Coach Coggins has about 45 men in hand. Delisio and Morgan, football regulars, are expected to bolster Central when released from grid activities.

Western to Reduce Court Squad Today.

Coach Clifford Moore, of Western, begins today to whittle his squad of 40 down to about 25. Western loses Phelan, Thompson, Babbitt and the Charles brothers by graduation, but has some promising looking new material in Everett Buscher and Stan Amidon, grid regulars, and Anthony Latona, local tennis star.

Capt. Bobby Lucas has had a large squad of Business basketers out for about three weeks. Coach Woodworth will assume charge of the squad after tomorrow, when Business ends its football season. Bill Duryee, Business full back, has been working out and is expected to capture the center position.

MARLBORO SOCCER TEAM VICTOR, 6-1

game with Gaithersburg, and the referee assigned to the Rosedale-Army game apparently was of the same opinion, as he was not on the field at game time.

D. C. Kickers and Gaelic-Americans were engaged in a better contest for about 40 minutes when rivalry reached the point of physical combat and Referee Ben Kail ordered a player from each team from the field. The Irish soccerist refused to leave and the match was awarded to the D. C. Kickers by forfeit.

Close Contest Anticipated.

The British United-Marlboro contest had promised to be the choice dish of the Washington Soccer League season as it would bring together two of the strongest teams of the league and at the same time decide the title. Few of the fans who had anticipated the game expected it to be played yesterday and this was true of the majority of the United Kickers.

It is true that the players should have been on the field, as it is entirely up to the referee as to whether a game should be played or not, but weather conditions would pardon most any one for thinking that the match would be postponed.

Marlboro, regaled in new uniforms, proved to be better mudders, of course with superior numbers, and rang up five goals in the first 45 minutes of play, but at the half time the bright uniforms were caked with mud. In the second period British United played with eight men and succeeded in denting Marlboro's goal for the first time this season. The score resulted from a well-placed corner by Jess Burton.

Cup Tie Expected To Be Thriller.

With the Washington Soccer League title practically decided and the Capital City circuit championship still in the grasp of any team in the league the fans will next be treated to the greatest cup tie ever staged by the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association.

Tonight the Capital City League entries will be received and it is evident that all six of the clubs will participate in the city championship games. With these it is estimated that fourteen clubs will play in the series.

The Washington-Concord Soccer Club is planning to play in Winchester next Saturday and Manager George Youngblood has named the following team to play against the Virginians: Heise, Caswell, Driefer, Beyer, G. Faulds, T. Blanche, Malloch, J. Blanche, E. Konnel, L. Konnel, Beyerlin.

Kansas and Oklahoma Deadlocked in Big Six

Kansas City, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The Big Six Conference football race again has swung back to a Kansas-Oklahoma first-place tie with four teams still with a chance to claim all or part of the 1930 championship.

Kansas, by defeating Oklahoma, 13 to 0 yesterday, kept in the running, and Oklahoma, suffering its first titular defeat, can keep its top position by defeating its remaining conference opponent, Missouri.

Missouri, by holding Nebraska to a scoreless tie, remained in the race with an outside chance for a title. Nebraska, twice conference champion, is not yet counted out of a share of the season's spoils. From preseason indications of a Kansas romp, the race has brought the teams to the stretch with no outstanding favorite. Iowa State completed its conference season by losing to the Kansas Aggies, 13 to 0, and looks back on the dismal record of no conference victories in two years.

For the first time this season rain took a hand in conference conflicts. It splattered the Kansas-Oklahoma and Missouri-Nebraska games, but more heavily on the latter, and undoubtedly played a part in the scoreless conflict which was a moral victory for the Missourians.

| Team. | W. | L. | T. | Pct. | Pts. | O. Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kansas | 3 | 1 | 0 | .750 | 112 | 50 |
| Oklahoma | 3 | 1 | 0 | .750 | 100 | 30 |
| Nebraska | 2 | 1 | 1 | .667 | 100 | 39 |

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—New municipal financing amounting to $27,305,168 and representing financing for 56 communities are scheduled for award this week, the Bond Buyer reports. Offerings last week totaled $36,164,000. The largest single issue this week is $19,892,000 Detroit bonds, to be awarded Friday. Other issues above $1,000,000 are Long Beach, N. Y., $1,247,000, also to be placed Friday, and $1,096,442 for Shaker Heights, Ohio, on Monday.

Twenty-seven ships with cargoes of raw silk will dock at West Coast ports during December, the traffic bureau of the Silk Association of America reports. Thirteen ships are due at Seattle, five at Vancouver, seven at San Francisco and two at Los Angeles.

Nearly every industrial group in the United States curtailed operations in October as compared with September, Electrical World reports in its monthly analysis reports from 3,800 manufacturing plants using electrical energy for power purposes. After a slight rise during August and September from the July minimum, the weighted average for last month fell to the lowest level since December, 1926, when an equally low point was reached for a single month. Exceptions to the downward movement were found in textiles, paper and pulp, iron and steel plants and leather products.

The New York Stock Exchange firm of Stokes, Hodges & Co., which had its origin in 1875 as Tappin & Stokes, has been dissolved and is being succeeded by a new partnership under the firm name of Stokes, Hoyt & Co., with Colgate Hoyt as senior partner. In addition to Mr. Hoyt, the members of the firm will be Walter W. Stokes, jr., Percy S. Weeks, William C. Downing and Albert G. Scherer, jr.

Directors of American Equitable Assurance Co. of New York and Guardian Fire Assurance Corporation of New York have approved plans for a merger under the name of American Equitable Assurance Co. of New York. The plan is subject to approval of the State superintendent of insurance, and stockholders of both companies will be asked to vote upon the proposal at meetings to be called shortly.

Offering is to be made tomorrow of a new issue of $1,356,000 Town of Bloomfield, N. J., 4¼ per cent gold bonds at prices to yield 3.50 to 4.10 per cent, according to maturity. The bonds mature in annual installments from 1931 to 1969.

Public offering is to be made tomorrow of a new issue of $20,000,000 two-three-year Federal Land Bank 4½ per cent bonds at 100 and interest. The bonds will be offered to the public by a country-wide group of the twelve Federal Land Banks, investment houses, institutions and upward of 1,000 dealers. The banking group is headed by Alex Brown & Sons.

COMMODITY PRICE SLUMP IS HALTED

textiles and building materials groups dropped to new lows, while the metal products and fuel and lighting groups rose by 1.35 and 0.93 per cent, respectively.

At last week's level the purchasing power of farm products was at the base year level, 100.0, but 2 per cent above the 1929-30 low of 97.8 in the week ended January 11, 1929. This contrasted with the purchasing power of the wholesale dollar which is at the high point for more than ten years, and 21.6 per cent above the 1926 level. This indicated that the value of farm products had declined less than that of manufactured goods.

Foreign Levels Firmer.

Since the week ended November 1, when commodity price levels in Europe took a sharp rise, foreign wholesale prices have been sagging. The indexes for England and France have shown weakening price levels during the past two weeks, with the rate of decline in England steady at 0.14 per cent per week. Some improvement has been shown in France where the level dropped by 0.38 per cent, compared with 0.51 per cent for the preceding week.

The market in Germany shows continued strength, with the price level steady last week at 91.5 following a rise of 1.33 per cent for the week ended November 1, and a rise of 0.22 per cent for the week ended November 8.

At last week's level the English index is 0.42 per cent above the October 17 low, the French index 0.13 per cent above the October 24 low, and the German index 1.55 per cent above the October 24 low.

HANDS OF INDUSTRY ARE CALLED BLOODY

at least 180,000,000,000 man-hours exposure to industrial injuries. With an exposure to "accidents" only one forty-fifth as great, our soldiers suffered 50,000 killed and 180,000 maimed in battle, while our industrial army had possibly 24,000 fatalities and 1,200,000 disabling injuries comparable to a "wound" recorded in battle statistics.

On a comparable basis of man-hours of exposure, then, the mortality rate in battle is certainly not less than 90 times the mortality rate in industry, while the battle injury rate is possibly no more than six or seven times as great as the industrial injury rate. These very rough estimates suggest only a small part of the awful destructiveness of war. The toll of war in broken physiques, smashed mentalities, ruined characters, and wrecked lives is vastly more terrible and more costly than the list of the battle casualties.

These statements are not made to excuse the inexcusable brutalities of "peaceful" industries. The hands of industry are bloody, and its conscience, if it had a conscience, would be weighed down with the burden of daily misery which crushes the lives of millions of workers. But it is neither necessary nor helpful to picture industry as more cruel than it really is.

Should Not Be Exaggerated.

The causes of industrial safety and of war prevention are injured by statements which exaggerate industrial hazards and consequently minimize war hazards.

The accident compensation insurance rates are intended to penalize the careless employer who neglects safeguards and safety work and to reward the employer who tries to cut down accidents. The accident records are the basis for the accident compensation rates charged by an insurance company or fund. The problem is, how to discriminate justly. It is just to assess a punitive accident compensation rate against a mine which had suffered a disastrous cave-in, due not to any neglect but to the nature of the rock, while another mine is given a favorable rate not because of any merit in safety work, but because nature has provided safe conditions? In such cases, would it not be more just to follow the Scriptural rule that the strong should bear the burdens of the weak?

Granted that more adequate compensatoin to disabled workers should be provided. How can the injured worker be encouraged to undergo surgical operations and physical and trade retraining if his compensation benefits are to be reduced in proportion to any increase in his earning capacity resulting from such operations and training?

The problems are complicated and difficult and very little progress toward realizing this program has been made in the twenty years since the compensation principle has become clearly recognized in American legislation.

The problems of preventing, curing and compensating industrial accidents are but parts of the vast problem of stabilizing industry and employment. These problems will never be adequately dealt with until reemployment is assured for injured workers who have been partially or fully restored.

NEW YORK MARKET HAS STRONG RALLY

Index of Industrial Group Rises 6 Per Cent Over Year's Low.

TRADING VALUES ARE UP

By E. W. DIEFENDORF
(Irving Fisher Service).

The New York Stock Exchange continued to decline through last Monday, dropping to the record low of 97.2 at the close of that session. After falling by 11 per cent from the October 28 high of 109.6, the tables turned and, with heavier trading, the market as a whole advanced by 6 per cent to last week's close, showing a net gain over the week of 3.2 per cent.

The tobaccos preferred and radio and theater groups failed to show gains over last week, as tobaccos closed the week off by 1 per cent, radios off by 10 per cent, and preferreds off by 1.8 per cent. The remaining groups made net gains last week of from less than 1 per cent in foods and sugars and household goods to 16 per cent in coppers, with the bulk of the market up by less than 5 per cent.

The outstanding features in last week's market were the abruptness of the turn and the increasing rate of advance. The low was reached on Monday in the average group, although the coppers and miscellaneous groups anticipated by two days and started up on the 8th. Building supplies, foods and stores lagged behind the average by one day; household products, radio, tobaccos and preferreds by two days, turning up on the fourth session of last week.

Rally Led by Coppers.

Coppers led the rally, closing last week up by 16 per cent from the recent low. Auto accessories and motors gained by 9 per cent each; building supplies, chemicals and drugs, electrical equipment, office equipments and utilities rose by 8 per cent; farm machinery, by 7 per cent; household products, machinery, oils and stores, by 6 per cent each; tobaccos were up by 5 per cent; radios and steels up by 4 per cent; foods and miscellaneous up by 3 per cent, and preferred stocks up by 0.3 per cent.

The average daily value of tradings in all stocks on the New York Exchange rose last week by 71 per cent to $187,800,000, with the values traded in common industrial stocks up by 86 per cent to $121,400,000.

All groups showed a rise in values traded, with spectacular gains of over $5,000,000 each daily in the utilities, steels, miscellaneous, railroads, foods and oils groups.

Foreign Levels Irregular.

Stock price levels in London dropped last week by 1.3 per cent, and in Berlin by 1.9 per cent, while the Paris level rose by 1.6 per cent, indicating a continuance of the irregular movement in stock prices on foreign exchanges. All three of the Irving Fisher foreign weekly stock price indexes showed gains from the year's lows, with the Paris level up by 1.6 per cent, Berlin by 2.0 per cent and London by 3.7 per cent.

An analysis of the continued declines in foreign stock prices shows the London exchange resisting the long-term trend; this has brought the price level from the January, 1929, high of 140.2 to 91.1 for the week ended October 17, a drop of 35 per cent.

Less Resistance at Paris.

Paris stock price levels have dropped by 47 per cent from the Janary, 1929, high of 181.3, to the November 7 low of 95.8, with less show of resistance to further decline.

The decline in Berlin has been of a different character. It does not show a steady decline from the January, 1929, high of 117.6, to this year's low of 94.1 for the week of October 10; this is a total drop of 45 per cent. It rather indicates periods of prolonged resistance during the first six months of both 1929 and 1930, but with a sharper drop than either London or Paris during the latter half of the year. The past three weeks shows Berlin price levels on the decline, gradually erasing the sharp gain for the week ended October 24, and returning more nearly to the long-term trend line.

Speculative Stocks Most Active.

Investment and semiinvestment stocks have shown parallel movements since the peak in the October rally, suffering a break of 11 per cent from October 28 to last Monday's low and advancing to close last week up from their lows by 6 per cent. The investment group made a net gain over last week of 3.1 per cent, compared with a gain of 3.8 per cent in the semi-investment group.

Speculative stocks suffered a more severe break of 18 per cent from October 27 to last Wednesday, but reversed its movement one day later than the market as a whole, advancing to close the week with the sharpest gain of 7 per cent. The speculative group showed a net loss of less than 1 per cent last week.

The weekly index for last week indicated a drop of 12 per cent in the investment group, 32 per cent in the semiinvestment group, and 34 per cent in the speculative group from the week's average a year ago, the low week in the 1929 crash.

Guaranty Deficit $20,561,681.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The total deficit of the now abandoned Nebraska bank guaranty law is officially set at $20,561,681.42 in the closing report to the governor of A. C. Shallenberger, former congressmen, who has been in charge of a special investigation for over a year. Claims still outstanding against the fund are nearly $30,000,000.

President Hoover Said

In an address last week to the Association of National Advertisers meeting in a Convention at Washington, in speaking of advertising, the President made the following remarks:

"The good will of the public toward the producer, the goods, or the service is the essential of sound advertising—for no business succeeds upon the sale of an article once. And, to maintain this confidence of the public, you and the mediums which you patronize have an interest that others do not violate confidence and thereby discredit the whole of advertising.

"You have recognized that responsibility. The Better Business Bureaus and the vigilance agencies which you have set up to safeguard the general reputation of advertising are not only sound ethics, but sound business. In the policing of your own business you are contributing soundly to self-government by curing abuse without the interference of Government."

The appearance of this announcement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper supports and cooperates with the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

FRENCH PRESIDENT PLANS RETIREMENT

Doumergue Preparing Home at Place of Birth as Term Ends.

NOT TO WRITE MEMOIRS

Paris, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Gaston Doumergue, greatly amused by various reports purporting to relate to his plans, after he retires from the Presidency of France next year, only smiles and keeps his peace.

From some quarters M. Doumergue hears that he intends becoming a senator, and there are at least three members of the upper house ready to abandon their seats in his favor.

Recently he received the visit of the manager of a large publishing house bidding for an opportunity to publish the president's memoirs, which he had been quoted as preparing.

Some say that M. Doumergue's plans are drawn up for a trip around the world.

67, Confirmed Bachelor.

The president has heard that he proposed getting married. At the age of 67 the President of France remains a confirmed bachelor.

Finally, his close friends aver that M. Doumergue simply intends to retire from political life and to reside near Nimes, his birthplace, and the truth appears to be found in the latter contingency.

It is known that M. Doumergue has no further political ambition. He deems that after having occupied for seven years the supreme function to which France can call any of its children one must definitely and finally efface oneself from the political arena, unless, the president is quoted as having told intimate friends, "the retiring president should be called upon to play a leading role, like M. Poincare."

"I intend to retire absolutely," M Doumergue is reported to have told friends from Nimes. "I shall not even try to become mayor of my village."

No Memoirs for Him.

Neither will the president write his memoirs. He is said to have deemed "useless, indecent and even dangerous" the bitter discussions raised through the publication of memoirs published after the death of recent great Frenchmen.

M. Doumergue did not mention any names. All of France remembers, however, the acrimonious polemics which followed the death of Marshal Foch and that of "the Tiger of France," Georges Clemenceau.

But in the little town of Aigues-Vives, near the shores of the Mediterranean, workmen are unveiling what the French call "modern comfort" in a little house which has been uninhabited for seven years. There Gaston Doumergue was born.

Uses Yeast 56 Years.

Pratt, Kans., Nov. 16 (A.P.).—When Mrs. W. B. Grier came to Kansas from Illinois 50 years ago with her husband she brought with her some home-made yeast, a gift from her mother-in-law. Today Mrs. Grier is still making bread using yeast which she has made from the original pit given her a half century ago.

Though foreign sales of automobiles declined the first half of the year, American exports of service appliances and garage equipment increased nearly 40 per cent.

ONE PERSON KILLED AND EIGHT INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Princess Anne Man, Struck by Truck, Succumbs in Baltimore.

THREE OF AIR STATION HURT ON FOGGY ROAD

Capital Woman Is Knocked Down by Machine and Shoulder Broken.

Accidents in Washington and nearby Maryland yesterday took one life and injured eight persons, three seriously.

William T. Todd, of Princess Anne, Md., died last night in a Baltimore Hospital from injuries he sustained when struck by a truck on the Crain highway near Croom, Md., early yesterday morning. Chauncey Smith, driver of the truck, told police that he hit Todd when the latter stepped in front of his vehicle. Lights of an approaching car blinded the truck-driver, he said.

Regaining consciousness at the hospital, Todd was able to tell police that the head-lights on his car had gone out and he was struck as he stepped into the road in an attempt to signal the truck. Smith has been summoned to appear at an inquest to be held Tuesday in Baltimore. Todd's death was due to a fractured skull, according to doctors.

Car Hits Culvert.

Three men attached to the Naval Air Station were injured, one seriously, when the automobile in which they were returning from Baltimore struck a culvert in a blinding fog near Savage, Md., at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning and turned over.

Boyd E. Scott, an electrician at the air station, is in the University Hospital, Baltimore, with two fractured legs. He had not regained consciousness last night.

Leland Holmes, mechanic, driver of the car, received a broken nose. He is in his quarters at the Naval Air Station.

Suffers Internal Injuries.

L. G. Jones, ship fitter, has internal injuries, the exact nature of which had not been determined last night. He is at the United States Naval Hospital.

Scott was taken to the Baltimore hospital in a Laurel, Md., ambulance. The other two men were brought to Washington in private automobiles.

Another Washington man was injured in an accident in Baltimore. He is Richard W. Cook, 23 years old of 3922 Livingston street northwest. Driving across the Hanover street bridge, his car skidded on the wet street and careened into a telephone pole yesterday morning. He received a fracture of the left arm and a lacerated scalp. He was taken to the Baltimore General Hospital.

Woman Seriously Hurt.

Laura Dennison, 26 years old, of 2210 Fairlawn avenue southeast, was seriously injured yesterday when struck by an automobile driven by Everett Giles, colored, 23 years old, of 1339 C street southeast.

The accident occurred at Thirteenth street and Potomac avenue southeast. She was taken to Casualty Hospital. She received a broken shoulder and possible internal injuries.

Skidding off the wet road at a turn near Meadows, Md., last night a car driven by Edward F. Sipple, of 125 Carroll street southeast, injured the two occupants. Grace Dodd, of the Stanhope Apartments, Sipple's companion, was most seriously injured, receiving a possible fractured hip and cuts and bruises about the face.

Another Car Overturned.

Sipple's injuries were diagnosed at Casualty Hospital, where both the injured were brought, as being lacerations and contusions of the face and body. The car was headed for Marlboro when the crash occurred.

Forced into a bank and his car overturned when struck by a hit-and-run machine on the Crain highway near Marlboro early yesterday morning, Howard Bradford, of Reynoldstown, Md., had a narrow escape from death. Bradford was driving alone toward Priest Bridge when a machine passing him sideswiped him and forced him off the road.

Bradford's machine then, according to reports, struck a bank and careened back on the road, overturning. The car was completely wrecked, but the man was uninjured.

Sisters Hurt in Crash.

Two sisters were injured, one seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding was propelled through an iron fence at Sixteenth and D streets southeast after striking another machine about 10 o'clock last night.

The most seriously injured, Maude Sampson, of Branchville, 27 years old, was taken to Gallinger Hospital by a passing motorist, where she was treated for severe lacerations of the face and neck. Helen Sampson, 22 years old, the driver of the car, received lacerations of the upper lip. She was treated at Gallinger Hospital and discharged.

Everett M. Stanley, 21 years old, of 2303 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, driver of the car which is said to have been struc by Miss Sampson's machine, escaped injury, but a young woman, companion, Cecelia Slack, 17 years old, of 511 Sixteenth street southeast, received abrasions of the face and knee. She was treated at Casualty Hospital and discharged.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL SHEDS A TEAR FOR AMERICA.

"WELL," said Elmer Twitchell, "I have been talking to the pessimists, and it's all clear to me why the stock market is having so many sinking spells. America is finished as a great country. There will never be any business in it to speak of again.

* * * *

"The chief thing that's hanging over the stock market just now, though, is President Hoover's disappearance. Didn't you know President Hoover had disappeared? Yes, sir! He decided there was no use wasting time as head of a country that had no future, so he packed up and dropped out of sight. Nobody knows where he is. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, has vanished, too. The mint's been closed for months and, while it's being kept from the public, the White House was destroyed by a red mob away back in June.

* * * *

"And another thing: there's really no such thing any more as the stock exchange. It was sold for debts more than a month ago, and all the quotations the papers print every night are just drawn out of a hat. Henry Ford's moved most of his plants to Europe, General Motors has ceased making cars and is converting its plants into indoor Tom Thumb golf courses, and the United States Steel Corporation has been getting succor from charity for six months.

* * * *

"Only a few American railroads are running. A lot of people think they see many trains a day pass through the town, but it's really one and the same train. The company keeps running it back and forth to keep the public from suspecting anything's wrong.

* * * *

"THE Standard Oil Company hasn't operated since last October and John D. Rockefeller is selling apples at Fifty-ninth street and Broadway. He's incognito, but it will all leak out in due time.

* * * *

"The General Electric plants have seen the uselessness of going ahead making electrical supplies. Sensing that the American public is tired of comforts and luxuries, the company has decided to remodel its factories to make high-wheeled bicycles, kerosene lamps and old-fashioned washtubs.

"All the big telephone, telegraph and radio companies have practically shut up shop, as it's been discovered that the average American is determined to go back to the age of communication by smoke signals.

* * * *

"Yes, sir," concluded Elmer sadly, as he wiped away the tears, "America is sunk. She'll never be any good again. She's finished, ruined, dead. And it seems a shame. She was so young and pretty!"

PIPE DREAMS.

I was moneyless one Monday
And feeling rather blue,
When some one shouted at me,
"Here's five I owe to you."

Too eagerly I grabbed it,
For I was sorry when
The stranger raised the question,
"You're sure it wasn't ten?"

Then fortune still pursued me
And held me in its clutch—
I went to pay my dentist;
He said he charged too much.

And then unto the landlord
In ecstacy I went,
I told him of the dentist;
He wouldn't take the rent!

THERE is practically no unemployment in France, Washington is informed. They must have some other name for souvenir postcard selling.

AD SIMILES:

As stale as the water on a speaker's table.

As unfathomable as a public links golfer whistling, "I've Got Rhythm."

IT'S A HARD LIFE.

Not only big troubles can bother;
Not only small ones can pester
and hurt;
When I'm set to rush to the office—
A button comes "offa" my shirt!

GASOLINE STATION IS HELD UP SECOND TIME WITHIN WEEK

Three Armed Men Get $40 From Standard Branch on Conduit Road.

FLEE IN AUTO BELIEVED STOLEN FROM VIRGINIA

Attendant Is Victimized in Earlier Robbery Has Broken Skull.

For the second time within a week the Standard Oil Service station at 4812 Conduit road northwest, last night was held up and robbed by armed and masked bandits who used the same tactics.

Robert Newby, the attendant at the station, had closed the place for the night when three armed men drove up in a touring car and commanded him to reopen the place.

Newby was ushered into the station and forced to open a safe, from which $30 was taken. They then took $20 from Newby's pockets. The robbers overlooked $130 which was hidden in the safe. The men escaped in an automobile which is believed to have been stolen from Clarendon, Va., a short time before.

Clinto Baker, 25 years old, of 26 Adams street northwest, is in Emergency Hospital with a fractured skull received last week when he was struck over the head with a jack hnadle by two Negroes who held up the same service station as he was about to close.

On that occasion the stick-up men obtained only $13. This was from Baker's pockets. He was struck when he stalled for time while fumbling with the dial on the safe which he had been ordered to open.

Permission Is Sought For Removal of Statue

Legal sanction is to be sought this week by the office of Public Buildings and Public Parks to move the statue of Gen. John A. Rawlins, Civil War hero, from the south side of Pennsylvania avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets northwest, back to its former site in Rawlins Square, New York avenue and Eighteenth street northwest, south of the Interior Department.

If authorization is received, the statue will be moved early next year, it is expected. The Fine Arts Commission has given its permission for the move. The site where the statue now stands is to be occupied by the new Archives Building. The statue was moved from its original place on Rawlins Square after complaint was registered by members of the Grand Army of the Republic that Rawlins Square was, at that time, too isolated.

Saturday Holiday Questions Ready

Federal Department Heads Will Reply to Bureau of Budget Today.

Heads of Government departments today will start answering a questionnaire sent to them by the Bureau of the Budget as part of a survey to determine how much it will cost Uncle Sam to let his employes here quit work on Saturday afternoons.

The material is to be assembled by the Bureau of the Budget and presented to Congress when it convenes next month. Legislation authorizing the year-round holiday has been enacted by the Senate, but has not passed the House. The chief objector to the bill in the House, Representative Cramton, of Michigan, was defeated for reelection.

The half holiday on Saturdays is being supported by the Federal Bar Association, the National Federation of Federal Employes and by Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, a leader in Government workers' organizations.

College Presidents Will Meet Tonight

Negro Land-Grant Schools to Discuss Problems at Convention.

A conference of Negro land-grant colleges will be held in four-day session this week, beginning tonight at Howard University, and continuing daily thereafter in the auditorium of Interior Department. There will be 21 college presidents in the group, together with their staffs, who will discuss problems of interest to their college organization with prominent educators, philanthropists, economists and Government officials.

Dr. M. W. Johnson, president of Howard University, will welcome the group tonight, and responses will be made by R. S. Wilkinson, J. R. E. Lee, J. S. Clark and John W. Davis. The session will consider training of Negro extension workers, building programs, and requirements and needs. At this session Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur, of the Interior Department, and William J. Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, will be presented.

Officers of the association are W. J. Hale, president, Nashville, Tenn.; W. R. Banks, vice president, Texas; R. S. Crossley, secretary, Delaware; J. F. Drake, treasurer, Alabama.

"Burnt-Match Burglar" Leaves Empty-Handed

The "burnt match burglar," sought for more than a year, broke into the home of C. F. Meyers, at Seeks Corners, near Silver Spring, Md., but took nothing.

Entry was made by opening a back door with a skeleton key. Corp. B. L. Snyder, of the Montgomery County police, found the interior of the house littered with burnt matches.

Missing Woman, Ill, Found in Baltimore

Miss Isabelle Willson, 21 years old, who disappeared from her home in Chevyrley, Md., early yesterday morning, was located last night in Baltimore, according to a report received by local police.

Miss Willson was recovering from a nervous breakdown and is believed to have wandered from home in a daze. She is understood to have communicated with police in Baltimore and expressed a desire to return home.

AMERICAN CULTURE DECLARED NEEDFUL OF CHRISTIAN VIGOR

Trend Toward Materialism in Nation's Life Decried by Bishop Strider.

3,000 ATTEND OPENING OF PREACHING MISSION

Services Will Be Conducted Throughout Week in 35 Episcopal Centers.

American culture lacks its full measure of power and stability because of the need for greater emphasis on Christian ideals in education, business, politics, home and personal action, the Right Rev. R. I. L. Strider, bishop coadjutor of West Virginia, told the congregation of 3,000 assembled in Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon for the opening of the Episcopal Diocesan Preaching Mission, to be held in 35 mission centers during the next week.

Thousands more heard the service by radio through a broadcast over WMAL, to every part of the Washington Diocese.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, presided. The 35 missioners, including bishops and clergymen from all over the country, were seated on the stage. A vested choir of boys, made up of the cathedral choir and singers from many churches in the diocese, led in the program of familiar hymns, directed by Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster of the Washington Cathedral.

Other Bishops Take Part.

Prayer was offered by the Right Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, bishop of Colorado. The Scripture lesson was read by the Right Rev. Philip Cook, bishop of Delaware. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of the Washington Cathedral, had charge of the arrangements.

In his introductory address Bishop Freeman stressed the fact a fuller knowledge of Jesus Christ is the supreme need in this troubled and confused age. He quoted an industrial leader as telling him recently that "the security of business resides in the maintenance of those principles that alone contribute to moral worth and Christian character."

That a revival of religious thought and action is needed in this country, to restore the confidence of the people in things fundamental and essential to the prosperity, security and moral stability of the Nation, was asserted by Bishop Freeman.

A lay speaker, Dr. William G. Sturgis, of the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral, outlined the purposes and meaning of the preaching mission from the layman's point of view. He declared that the Episcopal Church needed such missions to quicken the interest of its communicants in the eternal truth of Christianity.

Held Vital to Civilization.

Bishop Strider, in his address, declared that the Christian religion is a vital necessity for the health and happiness of life and civilization. He pointed out that the United States meets three of the four tests of a great civilization—the material, the intellectual and the social, but that its progress in religion does not keep pace with its advance in business, education and the social arts.

"Our nation must decide," he declared, "and decide quickly before it is too late, whether for us progress means advance only in material, mental and social welfare, with moral and spiritual obligations forgotten.

"If so, then already the keels of modern America are set upon that grim and awful roadway, a ream on either side with the skulls of vanished civilizations—a roadway which ends at the precipice of national disaster."

Urges Leaders Point Way.

Bishop Strider called upon those holding positions of leadership to give religion its proper place in their lives. He declared, in conclusion, that the contribution which Christianity has made to modern civilization is basic, and that without this force in national life American communities would lapse into barbarism.

The missioners preached their first sermons in the 35 mission centers established in the diocese last night. It was reported that large congregations attended these openings. Similar services will be held twice daily in the mission centers, the evening meetings being at 8 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to the public by the Commission Evangelism, of which Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes is chairman, to attend these services.

Thief Gets $10 at Point Of Pistol and Escapes

Howard B. Wills, of 1402 N street northwest, was robbed early yesterday of a billfold containing about $10 at the point of a revolver in the entrance to an alley near Eighth and P streets northwest.

Policeman R. D. Chenault, of the Second Precinct, chased the robber into an alley between Tenth and Eleventh and R and S streets and then lost the trail. A description of the man, who was colored, was obtained.

$535,000 Available For Howard Funds

President Makes Report on School to Secretary of Interior.

Appropriations of $535,000 from private sources were indicated today as available to Howard University by Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president, in his report to the Secretary of the Interior. This amount included $250,000 from the Hubert estate, $211,970 from the General Education Board and an additional $70,657 from the Julius Rosenwald Fund. Of the total budget of $915,802.63 the Federal Government appropriated $334,251.25 and made gifts of $44,802.63 in materials and supplies.

The university enrolled 2,619 students from 26 States and 18 foreign countries. The president reported the successful establishment of a full-time three-year day school of law, a division of student health, additions to libraries of all colleges, inauguration of a program of graduate fellowships for teachers, beginning of a professional course for preparation of teachers of physical education, and registration of the college of dentistry by the State of New York.

Buildings, grounds and equipment of the university are valued at $3,246,680.

Faith Recognizes God, Says Rev. Percy Hall

Alexandria Rector Tells How Knowledge of Unseen Arises.

St. Paul's Church in Alexandria heard a strong sermon yesterday morning from its able rector, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall. Mr. Hall's theme was "Faith," and his text was Hebrews, 11:13: "These all died in faith."

After defining faith as "perception and recognition of things unseen," Mr. Hall launched into the heart of his discourse, speaking in part as follows:

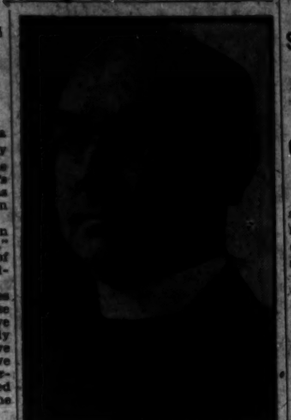
"In the distance one perceives shapes. Nearer, one can recognise friends, or, it may be, foes. When we heard President Hoover's carefully worded warning on Armistice Day we perceived some danger of war; but we fail to recognise far off the war-minded notables, or the oppressed and desperate peoples that caused the presidential warning.

"When we hear an airplane buzzing overhead we soon perceive science as its creator; but our recognition of the various inventors, students, discoverers in the background, is vague; and we are not all sure whether they are to be reckoned friends of humanity or disturbers of our peace.

"When we buy in a chain store we perceive efficiency perhaps and progress; but what, we ask, do the big business men, the absentee directors, look like who are so persistently insisting on efficiency and new methods in every line of effort? Can we trust them or are they a menace to the community? We wish we could recognize more clearly what causes and persons stand behind these and other ordinary happenings in our daily life. We wish we knew what they are like.

"Similarly when we pass a church we perceive vaguely the idea of God. But what is He really like? How many of us have at some time or other recognized Him ourselves? Every one has heard, read and thought of God. How many can truly say in humility: 'I know what He is like?' How many of us have both perceived and recognized Him in nature and in experience with our soul's powers.?

"There are men who declare God coldly indifferent to earth's affairs. Some estimate Him arbitrary and cruel. Some believe Him impotent and our fellow-sufferer. Others are agnostic, and maintain that we are all ignorant of Him. Some have recognized personally His majesty or His power; His indignation at sin; His pardoning grace; His healing energy; His fatherly love. 'I had heard of Thee with the hearing of the ear, but now mine eye seeth Thee' said Job at the conclusion of the fateful argument. After 40 chapters of discussion his soul recognized God and was at peace.



REV. PERCY FOSTER HALL.

"Citizens of Samaria said to the woman of the well, 'Now we believe, not because of thy word; for we have heard Him ourselves.' They perceived and with their soul recognized divinity.

"Wordsworth, Browning and other poets reveal the crass stupidity of those who go through life seeing everything but God. They extol the happiness of those, who giving attention see every bush afire with God' and recognize in calamity 'God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own.'

"'These all died in faith.' They also lived in faith. They personally recognized God. Do you recognize, or do you just 'admit?'

INCREASE IN MOTOR PRODUCTION MADE

Stand Against Price Slump by Copper and Steel Producers Cited.

OIL STATISTICS IMPROVE

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—Fresh signs of reversal in the trend of commodity, and security prices cast rays of sunlight into the gloomy business atmosphere last week.

Indications of a change of trend in business could scarcely be expected to be conclusive at this time of year, but a determined stand against price depression by copper and steel producers, together with resumption of activity by automobile manufacturers, were widely regarded as promising developments.

Statistics appearing for October were largely cheerless, but the action of the security and commodity markets indicated that discouragement over the failure of the autumn business revival to reach normal seasonal proportions was disappearing in the light of constructive plans for the future.

The week made a decidedly bad start, with securities and grains dropping to new lows for the depression on Monday, but a climax seemed to have been reached on that day, and recovery or greater stability was apparent thereafter.

Weather Hurts Retail Trade.

Warm and rainy weather during the week interfered with retail trade throughout extensive areas and tended to make merchants cautious. This was reflected in the wholesale markets, although a little more activity was reported in holiday lines. Some let down was reported in the primary textile markets, where betterment had been noted of late, but buyers have yet to cover many needs for the holiday trade.

The outstanding development of the week in the commodity price situation was the increase in copper metal prices from 9½ cents to 12 cents a pound, on announcement that copper producers had agreed upon a curtailment plan to check the steady piling up of stocks of the past 10 months. At the recent levels of 9½ and 10 cents a pound, it was well known that many producers were operating at a loss. Even at 12 cents, the price is the lowest in years, with the exception of the past few months.

Conspicuous also was the posting of T. E. Carnegie Steel Co., subsidiary of U. S. Steel, of minimum prices on plates, shapes and bars. While these quotations were those which had been quoted in the regular markets, competition had forced prices at which transactions were actually being completed substantially below market quotations. The minimum price quotation was regarded as an important step in establishing stability, and reports from leading centers indicated that consumer inquiry had been stimulated, although most of it was for delivery well in the future.

Steel Operations Drop, Report.

Nevertheless, operations in the Youngstown area are expected to be stepped up from 50 to 52 per cent of capacity next week. Iron Age reported that operations for the industry at large early last week were at 44 per cent of capacity, against 49 a week previously.

The weekl petroleum statistics were the most encouraging in several weeks, showing a substantial reduction in gasoline stocks on hand. Nevertheless, the industry remains unsettled. The Export Petroleum Association withdrew its price schedule, leaving the way open for price cutting wars in the foreign markets. Numerous mergers which have been expected in the industry appeared to have been abandoned pending more normal conditions. The projected Prairie-Sinclair deal was said to be "off."

The seasonal pick-up in motor manufacturing, as new models are brought into production in advance of the January automobile shows, was reported from several plants. Most of the larger producers also report that dealer stocks have been drastically reduced, and some said that dealer inquiry is more active.

The "Annalist" monthly index of business activity, as reported in preliminary form for October, recorded another new low for the decline, but it was notable that the index for textiles alone maintained the improvement of September, and bituminous coal showed a small gain. This index is weighted for seasonal and long-term trends.

CHILDREN IDENTIFY AUTO TRUCK VICTIM

Description of Mrs. Margaret Glanoly Read by Son and Daughter.

INQUESTS ARE CALLED

The body of Mrs. Margaret Glanoly, 53 years old, of 815 Columbia road northwest, who died under the wheels of a motor truck at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest on Saturday night, yesterday was claimed by her son, Charles, and daughter, Helen, who read descriptions of the accident in newspapers.

Because of the inscription in the case of a watch which she carried, Mrs. Glanoly was first identified as Maggie O'Brien, her maiden name inscribed on her watch. The body was sent to the District Morgue to await identification.

A coroner's jury yesterday was summoned to hear testimony in the cases of Mrs. Glanoly and Mrs. Ida Adams, both of whom were traffic victims, killed Saturday night almost simultaneously within a few blocks of each other. The jury is to convene at 11 o'clock this morning.

Identification of Mrs. Adams, who was hit by a street car at Ninth and E streets northwest, shortly before 7 o'clock, was made by her niece, Mrs. Hannah Martin, of 322 Fourth street northeast, who had listened in on the radio broadcast sponsored by the Police Department.

Family Is Saved By Rescue Squad

Seven Persons Overcome by Open Gas Jet Are Quickly Revived.

Humbert Fondane, 40 years old, of 1217 Florida avenue northeast, and his family were saved from death early yesterday by the prompt action of the Fire Department Rescue Squad.

Fondane, his wife, Helen, 38 years old, and their five children were overcome by the fumes of gas from a stove jet accidentally turned on. The man awakened and revived sufficiently to open the windows and call the rescue squad before lapsing again into unconsciousness.

The firemen administered oxygen and revived Emanuel, 5 years old; Michael, 4 years old; Marie, 2 years old, and Anna, 4 months old, all of whom were unconscious. Another child was made only slightly ill by the fumes.

Chicago Official Divorced.

Chicago, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The Herald and Examiner said last night that Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, city health commissioner, was divorced by his wife in a decree granted in Chicago Heights September 25 last. Mrs. Kegel's grounds, the newspaper said, was cruelty.

MINING ISSUES HEAD RECOVERY ON CURB

Utility Leaders Reach Best Prices in Several Weeks as Trend Changes.

COURSE PUSHES OILS UP

New York, Nov. 16 (A.P.).—The most durable rally in months has brought new cheer to the curb market, which needed just such a tonic.

Although the advance of last week was not as strong as the upturn on the big board, it was impressive enough to bring substantial covering, especially in stocks that had been harboring die-hard shorts. Such activity was especially noticeable in the mining shares and in issues of companies interested in those securities.

Oils failed to follow the rally as unanimously as did the utilities, although the deflation in the former had been as severe as the mark-downs in the latter. The petroleum stocks found no favorable industrial news to help their case, but improved on the general strength of the market. Standard oil shares made liberal recoveries from their recent lows, Indiana rising well above its minimum. Vacuum, whose merger with Standard Oil of New York, awaits a court decision on its legality, was also strong.

The utility leaders reached the best prices in several weeks. Electric Bond & Share climbed ten points above its low. American Superpower's response to the 40-cent dividend for 1930—representing a 60-cent reduction from the last payment—was brisk when the disbursement was announced, suggesting that the dividend was better than had been anticipated, but the stock was hesitant in pushing the advance. However, it moved higher again on Saturday. American Cities Power & Light A had a broad recovery.

Newmont Mining, whose interest in the copper situation comes from its ownership of mining shares, was actively taken in Friday's session. It had made a new low at 50 on heavy selling based on the depression of the copper industry, but when this gloom was lifted, shorts hurried to protect their liberal profits and the price soared rapidly.

Strength of Diamond Match new was a feature in the industrial division. This issue mounted several points from its low of 12½ in sympathy with the turn in the old shares on the big board. Strong specialties included Spiegel, May & Stern preferred, Columbia Pictures, A. O. Smith, Aluminum of America, U. S. Gypsum, American Cyanamid and Anglo-Chilean Nitrate.

Investment trusts lagged behind the procession, but firmed after weakness early in the week.

ALBERT LUCHS, 56, DIES AT HOSPITAL

Demise Follows Long Period of Failing Health; Funeral on Tuesday.

LIVED FULL LIFE HERE

Albert Luchs, 56 years old, of 728 Sixth street northwest, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital after a long period of failing health.

Mr. Luchs was a member of an old Washington family, and the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Luchs. His father was head of the Island of Cuba Tobacco Co., which operated for a number of years on Eighth street, between E and F streets northwest, and later on Seventh street near F street northwest.

Mr. Luchs lived throughout his entire life in the same block in which he was born, at 714 Sixth street northwest. He was engaged in a mineral water business here for many years, but retired several years ago because of ill health.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. David J. Kaufman, and a brother, Norman L. Luchs, both of this city.

Funeral services will be held from Geier's chapel, 1113 Seventh street northwest, at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, conducted by Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, with which Mr. Luchs was affiliated. Interment will be in the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

JAMES M. CLARK DIES.

Resident of District for 40 Years; Funeral Set for Today.

James Murdock Clark, of 242 Eighth street southeast, died Saturday in Casualty Hospital, after an illness of two weeks. He was 61 years old.

A native of Northeast, Md., he had been a resident of the District for 40 years. Until 1913 he was connected with the firm of Clark & Grupper, brick manufacturers, of South Washington, Va. At his death he was a clerk in the City Postoffice.

A member of the Knights of Pythias and the Sons of Civil War Veterans, Mr. Clark was active in both organizations. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida W. Clark, and a son, Alfred H. Clark, of Wheeling, W. Va. Funeral services will be held today at the residence, with burial tomorrow in Northeast, Md.

TEACHING SYSTEM SCORED, DEFENDED

Secular League Open Forum Told Faddists Control District's Schools.

CHARGE WARMLY DENIED

Adverse criticism of the teaching system in the District's public schools, punctuated by a strong defense, enlivened the Secular League's open forum yesterday afternoon at 1006 E street northwest.

Philip Ebert charged that parents have to make up for the shortcomings of the public school system here by teaching their children at night. Faddists, psychological and otherwise, are in control, he said, and the pupils' time is taken up with so-called intelligence tests, health reports and the like.

Particular fault was found by Mr. Ebert with the system of teaching English. Children, he complained, "have to make toy horses of Troy and rafts of Odysseus and maps of Homer's world." Mr. Ebert quoted letters from Brig. Gen. Amos A. Fries, voicing similar criticism. Others who spoke disparagingly of the school system here were Judge Frederick Heller and Francis D. Scott.

Defense was voiced by Mrs. Ivy B. Norton. She supported the intelligence tests as one of the best features of the Washington system. Others who upheld the system were John D. Bradley, Thomas Eckler and C. B. Norton.

Retired School Official Is Dead

Miss Anne Beers, Former Principal, Succumbs at Home Here.

Miss Anne Beers, former principal in the District Schools, died suddenly yesterday morning at her home, 1332 Massachusetts avenue northwest. She is survived by a brother, William Beers, and two sisters, Miss Cornelia Beers and Mrs. Margaret Somarindyck, both of New York.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Miss Beers was born and educated in Washington. She became a teacher in the elementary schools shortly after her graduation from the Washington Normal School, later attaining the rank of supervising principal in the old fourth division. A position which she held for fifteen years. She retired some years ago.

She was a charter member of the Woman's City Club and was active in the work of the District Education Association and the National Education Association.

Police Dog Bites Boy; Faces Test for Rabies

Attacked by a police dog yesterday on E street northwest, between Ninth and Tenth streets, 11-year-old Joseph Smith, of 700 E street southwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital.

The animal, which police say belongs to Albert Ward, of 511 Ninth street northwest, will be examined for rabies by the Health Department.

Mother Says One of Her 15 Children Fled With Rings

Gypsy Woman, Who Claims Double Sight and Psychic Powers, Tells Police Daughter, 17, Eloped With Man, Taking Diamonds With Her.

One of the fifteen children of Mme. Bessie Stanley, a gypsy, of H street, near Twelfth street northeast, ran away with a man named Louis Banana and a number of diamond rings, according to a report given police by Mme. Stanley.

The girl's name is Mary. She is 17. Mrs. Stanley wants her arrested, Banana sent to his home on the same block of H street and the rings brought back. Mme. Stanley expressed fear last night that her daughter and Banana had eloped. They were seen to leave the H street community about 6 o'clock last evening, she said.

Mme. Stanley figured in last week's news when she was fined $10 in Police Court for selling a love charm to Policewoman Caroline Alexander. The charm was supposed to have been sold with the understanding that it would give the policewoman control of her husband's mind. The charm, according to testimony given by the policewoman, did not have this effect.

Mme. Stanley testified in court that she is the mother of fifteen children and added that her husband is unemployed. She also claimed to have double sight and psychic powers. She was positive, she told police last night, that her daughter had run off to Rockville with Banana to marry him.

Rockville police were told to be on the lookout for the couple—and the rings.

Contractor Denies Importing Labor

Bidder on New High School Says Great Percentage Used Was Local.

A statement denying charges that all labor and materials used in the construction work were imported from North Carolina was issued yesterday by W. F. Rose, president of the Rose Construction Co., of Goldsboro, N. C., who placed the lowest bid for the building of the new Roosevelt High School here.

Mr. Rose, in his statement, declared that all past work done in the District by his company employed a greater percentage of local labor and materials than were brought by his concern from North Carolina. Several buildings on the St. Elizabeth Hospital grounds and the Eliot Junior High School, now in the process of construction, are among the structures erected by the Rose Co. in Washington.

"I want fair play," Mr. Rose said, "and I am willing to cooperate with local firms as has been my policy in the past."

Maryland University Star Will Get Medal for Valor

Heroic conduct of a University of Maryland football star while serving as a United States Marine Corps noncommissioned officer in Nicaragua in 1928 has won for him the Nicaraguan medal of merit to be presented in military ceremonies at the institution at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

He is Al Woods, 24-year-old quarterback of the Old Liners' grid team, and a resident of Columbia, Mo., who will be decorated on behalf of the Nicaraguan government by Curly Byrd, vice president of the university and director of athletics, on the drill field.

The full R. O. T. C. detachment at the university, under the command of Maj. A. C. Gillen, U. S. Army, and the student body will witness the ceremonies.

The medal is being awarded for valor when Woods distinguished himself in a party of about 50 Marines who were besieged for several days by revolutionists under Sandino at the little town of Ocotal, in Nicaragua, before their rescue by Marine planes.
